SHAW DECLARES EXECUTIVES ARE OVERRIDING LAW

Ex-Secretary of the Treasury Says Ours Is an Age of Bossism.

A MENACE TO PUBLIC

IS "NOT A PESSIMIST"

He Thinks There Is Always Some Ground to Hope for the Best.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Former Secretary og the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw delivered an address today before the convention of the National Electric Light Association. He said in part:

"In several of the states the people are holding the executive department responsible for legisation and are demanding that it coerce the legislative department, if necessary, and are giving it all the credit for such legislation as is enacted.

"No man is responsible for this sentiment. It is a part of the evolution of the times. The trend of the times is toward political bossism. He who through love of power reaches out his hand to crush a business opponent is universallyl considered worthy of the Penitentiary, while they who through love of power reach both hands to crush political opponents are the recipients of the highest praise from the press, the pulpit and the people.

Parties Radical Now.

"Until recently we have had the benefit of a progressive and a conservative party. But now both political parties have become progressive, if not radical. For the first time in human history a great English-speaking people is without conservative leadership. I have never ceased to be thankful that a minority has always stodd ready to challange the majority, but there is now no challenge in party.

FRANCE MUST RECOGNIZE PRETENDER IN MOROCCO

Sultan Mulai Hafid Will Gain More Power if He Marches Into Fez.

PARIS, May 22.—The prospect of the early entrance into Fez of Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, a circumstance that would give him possession of the three capitals of Morocco—Morocco City, Fez and Mequines—compels France reluctantly to face the possibility of having to recognize him as the ligitimate Sultan of the Empire.

Although Sultan Abd El Aziz has retaken Saffi, and presumably has an army marching to re-take Morocco City, the army sent toward Fez, under Gen. Bagdani, has been blocked by the Beni Nassen tribesmen.

FEZ, Morocco, Sunday, May 17.—Mulai Hafid, the usurping sultan, made his entry into Mequinez yesterday. He was escorted by the Vizier and his arrival was attended with much pomp.

UNITED WANTS TO CHANGE SUBURBAN DOWNTOWN LOOP

McCulloch Asks Permission From B. P. I. to Construct Switch at Ninth and Locust.

Capt. Robert McCulloch, general manager of the United Railways, appeared before the Board of Public Improvements Friday morning to obtain permission to change the route of the Suburban line to run cars west from Sixth street, on Pine street, to Ninth street and thence to Locust street, instead of making the present Fourth street loop.

To do this a switch will have to be constructed to join the Ninth street tracks to the Locust street tracks. Capt. McCulloch asked for a permit to do this.

The proposition was vigorously fought by Joseph P. Whyte of the Board. He said that the United Railways had no right to deprive Fourth street of the present accommodations.

Capt. McCulloch answered that it was his intention to run a few cars over the Fourth street loop, and that he wanted to make the Ninth street loop to accommodate the Scruggs, Vandevoort & Barney Co.

The matter was referred to the Street Department Committee of the Board of Public Improvements.

Woman Injured in Race.

In the St. Louis papers of Saturday, May 16, the Union Electric Light and Power Co. had the following advertisement:

> "To the Public: We offer a prize of $100 to the person who will within ten days suggest to us in writing the details of a plan, the most effective and practicable, to interest the public in the TRUTH concerning our rates of service. * * * The TRUTH is that our present rate schedule, dated Nov. 1, 1907, is the lowest and most equitable one ever issued, and is a substantial reduction below our previous rate schedule—not an increase over it—and the small user is the greatest beneficiary."

The test of the Union Electric Light and Power Co's claims lies in a determination of whether the consumer of its utility is actually paying more for his service now than he was prior to the inauguration of the November schedules.

In order to ascertain the TRUTH concerning this condition the POST-DISPATCH proposes to the Union Electric Light and Power Co. the following:

That a commission be appointed to examine the books of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., whose purpose shall be to compare the amount of consumers' bills now with their bills for a corresponding period a year ago. If the consumer is paying LESS ACTUAL, NET MONEY for his service NOW than he was for the same service THEN, the company's claim on this point will be established. If he is paying MORE, the claims of users of the service that they are being charged exorbitant sums will be established.

In order that a fair commission may be chosen to make this investigation, the POST-DISPATCH proposes that it (The POST-DISPATCH) name one member of the commission and the Union Electric Light and Power Co. the second member; and that these two members choose a third.

This commission shall have free access to all consumers' accounts in the Company's books, and the POST-DISPATCH pledges itself to publish its findings, whatever they may be.

GREAT DAY FOR LITTLE WORDS IN TRACY'S COURT

Patrick Mee's Captor Says of Bryan Nary, "He Hit Mee."

Bryan Nary and Patrick Mee, each accusing the other of having disturbed the peace, were defendants in the City Hall Police Court Friday.

Sergt. Driscoll of the Magnolia Avenue Station was called to the stand.

"What was Nary doing when you arrested him?" asked Judge Tracy.

"He was choking Mee," said Driscoll.

"Choking you?"

Not Me, but Mee.

"No, he was choking Mee."

"If he was choking you, why didn't you charge him with resisting an officer?"

"He wasn't choking me."

"You just said he was."

"No, I said he was choking Mee—Patrick Mee, 4115 Cozzens avenue."

"O, I see."

"Who gave Nary that black eye?"

"That was Mee."

"I Didn't Hit Him, It Was Mee."

"Did you hit him with your club?"

"I didn't hit him at all. It was Mee."

"The other defendant, you mean?"

"Yes."

"O, I see."

Patrick Mee took the stand. "Your Honor," he said, "me and Bryan were just having a friendly fight when the policeman butted in.

"What do you call a friendly fight?"

"The kind me and Bryan have."

"Bryan, have you anything to say?" asked Judge Tracy.

Has Short, Ugly Word to Say.

"Not a damned thing," said Bryan.

He gave the same answer three more times.

"Well," said Judge Tracy to Bryan, "you have used a very bad word in this courtroom four times and for that I will have to fine you $15. I will discharge Mee."

House Defeats Ship Subsidy.

PASTOR SUICIDE WHEN CHILDREN GO ON STAGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 22.—Feeling he had been disgraced by two of his children adopting the stage as a profession, Rev. Rufus H. Fletcher, a Methodist Episcopal preacher, committed suicide here by swallowing carbolic acid.

Dr. Fletcher, 45 years old, was pastor of the church at Fairfax, Mo., but his family has lived here several years, and he spent part of his time here.

One daughter, Mrs. Mabel Marsburger, formerly was an actress, but quite the stage some time ago. Another daughter, Ruth, 16 years old, is with a theatrical company playing in Scranton, Pa., and a son, Carl, 14, sings illustrated songs in a 10-cent vaudeville house here.

Failed to Abandon Stage.

It was about Ruth and Carl that their father worried, and he had made many attempts to induce them to abandon the stage but did not receive the support of their mother and other members of the family.

Recently members of Dr. Fletcher's congregation at Fairfax began to inquire why his family did not make its home with him, and an investigation was started. The preacher always had tried to keep the fact that his children were inclined to worldly things from his flock, but it became known and he was despondent over it.

Awaits End Reading Bible.

After taking the poison, Fletcher took a Bible and lay upon a couch reading it until he became ill and told his wife what he had done. She sent for doctors and when they arrived the preacher was unconscious. The Bible had slipped from his hands, but between the leaves was a slip of paper upon which was written "Shall I die for their sins?"

There were no marks to indicate what he had been reading, but it is believed he was searching for a passage of scripture to justify his act.

Caused Trouble in Nebraska.

Fletcher stood well in the church, but his children had caused him much trouble at Calloway, Neb., where he formerly was stationed, and he resigned the pastorate on that account.

He told his wife he could not live if their children continued in such sinful lives, but she refused to believe he had taken poison until after the postmortem.

WOMAN DRAGGED FROM HOME TO INSANE ASYLUM

Bohn Declares Her Daughter Authorized His Action.

Mrs. Regina Shine, a widow 72 years old, was overpowered in her room Thursday afternoon, dragged forcibly down the stairway, thrust into a carriage and taken to St. Vincent's Insane Asylum by William F. Bohn, Chief Deputy Public Administrator, assisted by Policeman Stephensmeyer of the Carr Street District and the driver of the carriage, whose name is not known to the authorities.

After she had been locked in the asylum, Mr. Bohn returned to her house and searched it. He took charge of $10,000 in bonds and $39 in cash which he found there.

Mr. Bohn refused to talk about the case Friday, except to admit that Mrs. Shine had not been adjudged insane and incapable of managing her own affairs.

Bohn Declines to Talk.

"Under whose order did you capture her and take her to an asylum?" he was asked.

"I can't discuss the case now," said Mr. Bohn, "further than to say my orders were satisfactory."

The orders, Deputy Bohn said, came from Mrs. Shine's daughter, Mrs. John Crawford, of 4724 St. Louis avenue. Mrs. Shine, who lives at 932 North Twenty-first street, has a son, John T. Clipys, in Burnsville, Mo.

Had Great Difficulty.

Policeman Stephenmeyer, who assisted in the taking of Mrs. Shine, said:

"We had great difficulty in subduing Mrs. Shine. I don't know much about the case except that Mr. Bohn went first to her home and tried to coax her to go with him on a street car, to the asylum. She refused to go and then he got the carriage and called me to help him.

ALFRED VETTER IN ACCOUNT WITH POLLARD; ONE DAMN, $10

Each of Four Letters in That Word Worth $2.50, Judge Decides.

D.	$2.50
A.	2.50
M.	2.50

Total, D-A-M-N	$10.00

This is the new Pollard arithmetic as taught in one short lesson to Alfred Vetter in the Dayton Street Police Court Friday.

Vetter lives at 5366 Goodfellow place, and August Schacht lives across the street at 5365. They had each other arrested on cross charges of disturbing the peace. Schacht went to the home of B. M. Clare, who occupies the flat above Vetter, Thursday night.

Vetter was sitting on the porch.

"He gave me a fierce look and I had him arrested," testified Vetter.

"Why did you give Vetter a fierce look?" asked Judge Pollard.

"Because he said 'Damn,'" replied Schacht.

"I'll fine Vetter $10 for that damn, and I'll discharge you," said Judge Pollard, "but don't look fierce any more."

There have been showers in the Mississippi Valley, Eastern and Lake States in the last 24 hours.

Temperatures are lower in the Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and generally higher elsewhere.

recall what the policy has been consistently for a period of four years. In the first instance, one must wait a considerable period to note whether the fact tallies with the promise. In the second instance, one has only to review his experience of the past four years to verify the accuracy of the statement.

We think it would be idle to pass in review a series of facts more vividly to recall to mind the consistent manner in which the business policy of the Union Electric Light and Power Company, as above defined, has been pursued. There can be no difference of opinion among the well informed as to the reduction in rates brought about by this company, nor as to the improved quality and reliability of the service, nor as to the tremendous capacity it has installed in power plant, batteries, substations and lines, built to anticipate any possible demand for electricity and the very [illegible] of that construction.

FROM A UNION ELECTRIC L AND P CO ADVERTISEMENT.

PAINT COMPANY CLAIMS THE $100 LIGHT REWARD

As "Best Plan to Interest the Public" Consumer Exhibits Bills Showing Big Increase in Rates.

Ernest W. Summerskill, vice-president of the Great Western Paint and Color Co., 814 Manchester avenue, wrote a letter to the Union Electric Light and Power Co. Friday in which he declared himself a candidate for the $100 reward recently offered by the electric company for the "best plan to interest the public in the truth concerning our rates for service."

Accompanying the letter Mr. Summerskill sent bills rendered his firm by the Union Electric Light and Power Co. for electric power for the month ending May 20, 1908, and, for comparison, the bills for the corresponding time in 1907. These bills show that last year the paint company paid $68.74 for 1812 kilowatt hours of service, and that this year, after the electric company's new contracts went into effect, the paint firm is charged $77, an increase of $8.26, for 1500 kilowatt hours, a decrease of 312 kilowatt hours of service.

Light Company's Statement.

In offering the $100 prize, the Union Electric Light and Power Co. said:

"The truth is that our present rate schedule, dated Nov. 1, 1907, is the lowest and most equitable one we ever issued, and is a substantial reduction below our previous rate schedule, not an increase over it."

Mr. Summerskill also enclosed his electric bill for April, 1908, in which, though working five days more than in May and operating one 11-horsepower lead mill, which is now idle, he was charged for only 708 kilowatt hours, costing $43.25.

His letter to the general manager of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. follows:

"In connection with your offer of $100 reward in your advertisements in the daily papers, we hereby claim that reward, and produce our bills to substantiate our claim.

"GREAT WESTERN PAINT AND COLOR CO."

Summerskill Claims Reward.

Mr. Summerskill bases his application for the $100 reward on the claim that his method of contrasting the electric company's rate schedules under the old and new tariffs is "the most effective and practicable plan," to quote the company's advertisements, "to interest the public in the truth concerning our rates for service."

His decision to apply for the reward was indorsed Thursday in a meeting of the directors of his firm. They are, besides himself, William Grafeman, Peter Hahn, Victor Diesing and James H. Roach. The company requires power to operate a number of mills, in which paints are ground.

"During the month ending May 20, 1907," said Mr. Summerskill to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "our shop ran steadily, closing only on Sundays. We were operating every mill. During the corresponding time this year we were idle five days, besides Sundays, and had sev-

NEVADA'S GOVERNOR DIES ON HIS RANCH AFTER ILLNESS

End Had Been Expected for the Past Week, When He Began to Sink.

RENO, Nev., May 22.—Gov. John Sparks of Nevada, who had been ill for some time, died on his ranch near here at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Last night his physicians announced that the patient was seriously ill and that there was little hope of him living through the night.

Gov. Sparks' term would have expired Dec. 31, 1910.

Neuralgia of the heart was the cause of death. He had served a previous term as Governor.

His wife and sons were at his bedside when death came. He was born in Mississippi in August, 1843, and had been Governor of Nevada since 1902.

Don S. Dickerson will become Governor Nevada. He is 34 years of age and will be the youngest Governor this State has ever had.

"IMAGINATION" KISSES SENT IN SNELL LETTERS

MENTIONS HER MOTHER

"She Will Arrange for Us to Take a Trip Together," She Writes.

MONEY AND DEVOTION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLINTON, ILL., May 22.—The contestants in the Snell will case today began the introduction of letters, in the endeavor to prove that the mind of the late Col. Tom Snell, millionaire railroad builder, was unbalanced by the influence of Mabelle Snell McNamara.

The letters, it was stated, are from Mabelle Snell, with the exception of two which refer to the gift of a fur coat. This, it is stated, was written by a married woman in Clinton. Not all those made public today have been formally introduced.

Mabelle Snell McNamara, who was represented as the grandniece of Col. Snell, is now the wife of a Kansas City man.

"Imagination Kisses."

In one of the letters read today occurs the paragraph:

"I send you one of our 'imagination kisses,' because they are better than none. Take it at exactly 8 o'clock in the evening. So shall I. You understand, sweetheart, I am your own."

Other letters are as follows:

"My Ownest Angel Boy: I am in such trouble. The gown I was hoping to have done for you to see is a failure. The fool woman cut it too high in the waist, and ever since that I have been trying to have it fixed, but you can't fix anything that's utterly ruined.

"Old Dearest."

"I am so glad that you told them what was what. How in the world you put up with such insolence I cannot see. They must think you have greater patience than I ever gave you credit for, and I have tried you sometimes, haven't I, old dearest?

"And now I have to try you again, because I just must have money unless you want to see me coming to meet with —

"I know you love to have me properly dressed, and I love to be well dressed for your sake, but it is as plain as the problem of two and two that clothes cost money, and I haven't any more to spend now unless you send me some.

"If I can have $500, I can buy just what you would like and you know you think my taste in things to wear is good.

Wonders If He Means It.

"What was it you said, 'the model's beauty and the sculptor's eye for effect.' You see I don't forget any of the nice things you tell me, and sometimes, only sometimes, I wonder if you mean them all.

"But you dear old, darlingist darling, I love you beyond any words that ever were used to describe love since the world began. The Soloman songs are foolish twaddle if they are supposed to describe love.

"Why, I love you so that my breath comes short and my eyes close in rapture at the thought that comes to me.

"I dream of you at night, and for the lapse of a dream am transported to the realms of bliss, but dashed to earth in the cold gray of reality when I wake up.

"But I love you more than any woman ever before loved any man, and I believe we were made to love each other, because your kisses burn me and to clasp you in my arms is delirium.

Send Me That $500.

"If you can send me that $500 this week it would be best, for I am hard up.

"Kiss me goodnight at midnight. Don't forget. YOUR BABY GIRL."

Another reads:

"My Sweetest Darling:

"Shall I see you again? Shall we ever again have one of our kisses, the kind that you told me I only knew how to bestow?

"What have I done that you neglect me for five whole days? Is it the relatives again, saying things about me to my dear, dear sweetheart?

"Why cannot we love each other without people interfering who never in their lives knew what such love as ours is?

Makes Her "Chokey."

"My sweet darling, I want you with me. It makes chokey in may throat and my heart beats so fast when I think of your kisses, dear, that I must press both hands against it to still its throbbing.

"I want you, I want you, I want you—you must come to me on the next train. Kansas City is a desert without you, and it will be a corner of heaven if you were here. It would be our corner, too, you dear sweetheart. Please

TAKAHIRA IS FOR ARBITRATION IF NECESSARY

ADVICE GIVEN NATIONS

All Troubles, Says Japanese, Usually Spring From Internal Dissensions.

LAKE MOHONK, N. Y., May 22.—Baron Kogoro Takahira, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, addressed the Conference on International Arbitration.

After deprecating any expectation that he would have anything of particular interest to say, Baron Takahira defined the position Japan occupies in regard to international affairs. He said that Japan being the youngest of modern nations, looked to her elder sisters to point out the paths in which she should tread. As to arbitration, his country approved of it and had shown as much in some disputes. The position of the United States on the question he commended, saying: "When the American Government took the initiative to conclude arbitration conventions with the powers Japan promptly accepted its proposal." He complimented this Government on its policy.

Internal Troubles Cause Conflict.

Outside disturbances in any country, the Baron said, are traceable to internal wrongs and dissensions, which cause more international disputes than the conflict of outside interests.

As to Japan, he said: "Young as she is she is holding her own despite the vicissitudes through which she has been passing during the last half century. The criticism and complaints that have been brought against her, regarding her attitude and policies in the far East, appear, in my opinion, due to the rather hasty conclusions of traveling obervers. Some are advanced against our nation in our new field of industrial activities in Manchuria; others against the attitude we have adopted in the less organized kingdom under our protection. These are the countries from which Japan acquired in former times her system of government, education and even religion.

Order Must Be Maintained.

"If these countries live up to their ideas of government and society, however obsolete, it is certain they could maintain their positions more securely. But failing in this they have allowed themselves to fall into an unhappy condition and have permitted themselves to become the prey of sinister design and selfish purposes. With such countries as neighbors, Japan could not feel repose, but found her own position threatened, and she was finally obliged to take the necessary measures for her self-preservation and to assume responsibilities for their peace and happiness.

Satisfied With Work.

"We have a saying, 'Look at your work when done.' It is a most encouraging sign of our work that even in its 'half done' stage, there is no danger of disturbing international peace in that part of the world, insofar as our influence extends.

"If every country deals with the matters between nations and also its own internal affairs in a right spirit, I am sure that even arbitration will no longer be found necessary."

ST. LOUIS COUNTY GRAND JURY IS INVESTIGATING ITSELF

Panel Hears That Clerk Was Not Blindfolded When He Drew Their Names.

The St. Louis County Grand Jury is investigating itself. Some of the members who were sworn in Wednesday do not believe that the panel was legally drawn and they may ask the Circuit Court to dissolve the body.

County Clerk John Ruhl was summoned before the jury to tell the members how they were drawn and he was in the jury room an hour Friday.

The law says that the County Clerk shall be blindfolded and that the drawing must be in the presence of the three judges.

The custom of blindfolding the Clerk has not been followed for several years.

When the present panel was drawn, all of the judges were in the room but Judge Kassebaum, some of the jurors have heard.

BILLS NOT COMPARED

BY GEORGE W. EADS,
A Reporter for the Post-Dispatch.

I obtained that interview from Mr. Holman.

I went to his office to find out whether he had been employed by the Union Electric Light and Power Co. to compare its November rate schedule with the rates in effect prior to that time.

When I called on Mr. Holman, whom I have interviewed many times, he was alone in his private office.

We discussed general subjects for a few minutes. Mr. Holman said that he was going to New York for some committee conferences regarding the meeting of the American Society of Engineers, and that from New York he was going to Denver to try to finish the appraisement of the Denver Waterworks.

Discussed His Business.

From Denver, he said, he was going direct to Detroit to preside at the convention of engineers, and then he was going to try to find a quiet place for a week's rest. He said he had been working very hard on difficult subjects and had been forced by the pressure of his business to decline several good engagements.

After some further conversation, I asked Mr. Holman:

"Have you entered the competition to win any of the Union Electric Light and Power Co.'s $100 prizes by devising a plan in which to interest the public in its new rate schedule?"

Mr. Holman then told me, without further solicitation, that he had been employed by the Union Electric Light and Power Co. to chart its new rates.

He said he had drawn a series of big charts to illustrate the new scheme of rates. He described the charts as being almost as large as the top of his desk, and said he had forwarded them to the Union Elictric Light and Power Co. He said he did not know whether it was the intention of the company to make the charts public.

In concluding his comments on the charts, Mr. Holman said, voluntarily:

"My conclusion, after comparing notes, is that they are theoretically lower than they ever were."

Phrase Made Deep Impression.

Mr. Holman's statement, freely made, that the rates were "theoretically lower," made a deep impression upon my mind. It occurred to me that here was the nub of this whole question. The lighting company has been contending that its rates are lower. The consumers, who are paying the bills, say they are finding that they are paying more for electricity than they were under old contracts.

I was curious to know whether Mr. Holman had arrived at his conclusions from the study of the printed schedules, or had gone into the practical end of the question by taking up the consumers' bills and analyzing them. With Mr. Holman's word's "theoretically lower" fixed in my mind I then asked him:

"Have you made any comparison of consumers' bills to determine whether the rates are actually lower?"

"No; I do not know how the rates will work out in the bills."

The two important facts brought out in the interview were that Mr. Holman's conclusions were theoretical, and that he had not gone into the practical phase of the question at issue between the consumers and the Union Electric Light and Power Co.

Did Not Say "Substantially."

Mr. Holman did not use the words "substantially lower" during the interview.

I was sitting in a chair a few feet from his desk, paying particular attention to what he said.

After he had made these statements I did not ask him any more questions on this subject. He remarked that he had done some other work, of an engineering nature, for the Union Electric Light and Power Co., but he added that he did not think the public would be interested in that.

After dropping the subject of electrical rates, Mr. Holman then discussed for a few minutes the difficulty of the general rate problem. He said he had been engaged for several months in trying to work out a satisfactory water rate schedule for the city of Denver. He found the problem a very difficult one, he said, as the Denver authorities wanted a rate to cover a period of 20 years. He said it was almost impossible, under these conditions, to prepare a schedule of water rates that would be entirely satisfactory to the public.

Bringing the interview to a close, I thanked Mr. Holman for the information he had given me, and expressed the wish that he would thoroughly enjoy his vacation when he got around to it.

Two Important Statements.

In writing Mr. Holman's interview, his statements regarding the "theoretically lower" rates, and the failure to make a practical investigation to aid him in arriving at his conclusions, were what I endeavored to bring out sharply and distinctly so that the reader could grasp the significance.

I eliminated my own questions from the interview, as they were not essential in conveying to the public the statements Mr. Holman had made to me.

Personally appeared before me this 22nd day of May, 1908, George W. Eads, a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH, who said:

"I was sent by the Editor of the POST-DISPATCH on Tuesday, May 19, to interview M. L. Holman, who had been employed by the Union Electric Light & Power Company to compare its present rates for electric light service with the rates in effect before last November. I wrote the results of the interview and they were published, as written by me, in the POST-DISPATCH. I solemnly affirm that I accurately quoted Mr. Holman and that those things which I represented him as saying he said."

St. Louis, May 21, 1908.

TO THE PUBLIC:

In the Post-Dispatch of today a purported interview with me is published, in which I am quoted as follows:

Mr. Holman told a Post-Dispatch reporter that after comparing the present rates with the old ones he had arrived at the "CONCLUSION" that the rates are "THEORETICALLY LOWER" than they ever have been.

Didn't Compare Bills.

Mr. Holman admitted that his "conclusions" were not based upon a comparison of consumers' bills under the new and old rates.

"The Union Electric Light and Power Co. employed me to chart its rates," said Mr. Holman to the Post-Dispatch. "I prepared several big charts for the purpose of making comparisons.

"My conclusion is that the present rates are THEORETICALLY LOWER than the old rates.

"I made no comparisons of consumers' bills to ascertain whether the charges are actually lower than they were."

I desire to say that I did not say to the Post-Dispatch or to any of its representatives, that "My conclusion is that the present rates" of the Union Electric Light and Power Company "are theoretically lower." I did not use the words "theoretically lower." What I did say was that I had by my comparison found the new rates substantially lower than the old rates for similar service.

Neither did I say anything whatever about making or not making "a comparison of consumers' bills to ascertain whether the charges are actually lower than they were."

Respectfully,

M. L. Holman

HOW MUCH IS A LAWYER WORTH? ANSWERS VARY

A diversity of opinion as to the worth of the services of an attorney was in evidence in Judge Shield's court Friday, as shown by opinions of a number of attorneys on the motion of Walter H. Saunders for allowance of fees.

Saunders was attorney for Marhilde Bosse and others in a suit against the National Bond Co.

There is on deposit in the State Treasury $100,000, out of which the attorney's and other fees must be allowed.

On the witness stand Saunders said the case had run along about two years, during which time he was always doing something or other in his client's interest.

He was asked by B. F. Schnurmacher, for the State, what he considered his services worth and replied he did not know, but would abide by the opinion of other attorneys.

Priest Says $10,000.

Judge Henry S. Priest was called to the stand and said he thought the services performed by Saunders were worth at least $10,000.

Judge Franklin Ferriss said he believed $7500 would be about right.

Judge Henry W. Bond couldn't see any more than $5000 in the case.

John F. Lee said Saunders' services were worth between $8000 and $10,000. Mr. Schnurmacher ask him if it could be shown that Mr. Saunders would be willing to take $5000 he would reverse his opinion.

"No," replied Mr. Lee. "If he asked only $5000 for doing what he did I should take him for a very modest man."

James C. Jones, who said he was authorized to practice law and did so, said that he would put the proper fee at $10,000.

"If you were in Mr. Saunders' place, would you take less?" he was asked.

"I might take $9500," he replied.

Col. Blodgetts' Figure $8000.

Lee W. Hagerman, the master in the case, also made a motion for his allowance as such.

Col. Wells H. Blodgett was asked what he thought the master's services were worth and replied $6000 would be fair.

John F. Green thought $5500 would be about right, and Morton Jourdan considered no less than $7500 the proper thing.

eral machines idle. We also open the shop an hour later than we did last year. Nevertheless, we are charged $22.70 more in the gross amount of the bills, or $8.26 more, after allowing for discounts, for 312 kilowatt hours less service, according to the meter readings of the light company's own employes.

No Current, but Meter Works.

"Thursday we were idle and did not use a bit of power. At 1:30 p. m. an employe of the electric company read the meter. Twenty-five minutes later another employe came out and read the meter. His reading showed that during the 25 minutes, despite the fact that no power was used, the busy little meter had counted up one-tenth of a kilowatt hour against us.

"I have also written the Union Electric Light and Power Co. that their new schedule is unsatisfactory to us, and that we desire to return to the old system, as a clause in the contract gives us permission to do."

let me know that you will come, and mother will arrange for us to take a little trip away. Now, I am going to expect you, so don't forget, and write to me at once.

"I received the money you sent and the little souvenir. I wonder what the relatives would say if they saw it. Dearest, my bosom heaves with joy at the thought of meeting you, and I cannot wait until your letter comes, telling me when you will start.

"YOUR BABY."

Money Fell From Letter.

"My Dear Old Sweetheart:

"When I got that letter, the money fell out of it, and I was in a terrible state for a time, not being able to find the inclosure and not knowing where I had dropped it. You know what might have happened.

"Well, I told Walter all about what you said, and he thought it was pretty good sport, but you know that is no fun for me. I love only one man, and he is my Dear Old Darling Sweetheart, and I rather have a kiss from him than from any other man in the world, even if he was worth $20,000,000.

"Do you really love me so much as you said in that last note, because as you said in that last note, because if you do I am not sorry that I have let my heart and soul go out to you in such devotion.

When a Woman Loves.

"I don't believe a man can love as a woman does. It always seemed to me that men loved in a half-hearted way, but when a woman loves really and truly she loves so hard that it pains her—I don't mean figuratively, but literally—actual pain in her heart, caused by doubtings, hopes, fears, remorse for fancied oversights or slights—all the sweet punishments that a woman really in love must suffer for the privilege of loving.

"And yet it is a privilege to love such a man as you, my darlingest darling. To mme this living at a distance is the most excrutiating agony. I want you with me, dearest darling—I want you—I want you. Don't forget our kiss. "BABY."

His Remarkable Kisses.

One of the letters contains these paragraphs:

"My Dearest, Dearest Darling—I went out driving with —— Tuesday night and he tried to be too loving, the way he always does. But even if he is a young man he doesn't know how to love at all. It takes a man of mature years to know the real art of loving, and I would rather be with you any time than the handsomest young man I ever set eyes on.

"Your kisses are the sweetest kisses that ever a woman received. I can feel the fire of your kisses for months afterward, but, oh, my dearest dear, they take the soul out of me. I put my whole being into those kisses, and sometimes it takes days before I get over the numbness."

Would Accept Fur Coat.

"My Dear Colonel—I was surprised when you addressed me yesterday as I was noticing the various styles in fur coats in Coale's window. After I got home I thought it would be foolish to be angry with you, although I did not exactly understand the remark you made about that $50 fur coat I admired. If you meant by that remark that you might be disposed to make me a present of it, why, I would be foolish to decline.

"Be careful to burn this letter, and do not by any means let my husband know about this. If you send me the coat I will be sure to thank you personally."

Deceived Her Husband.

The following indicates that the Colonel sent the coat:

"My Darling—The coat has come and, oh, what a beauty it is! As I run my fingers through the soft fur I wonder if it isn't the beginning of something terrible. It is the first time I ever deceived my husband.

"But, after all, dear, it is something to have you sufficiently interested to make me such a present. Do you really mean what you said to me that night? I want to meet you again, and yet something makes me think it would be followed by a terrible catastrophe. Doesn't it seem peculiar for me to use the word 'dear' in addressing you? I like it because of that. I suppose, after all, I will meet you.

"P. S.—Please be sure to destroy this letter. This piece of paper would destroy my life if it ever was read by anyone else."

MAN FLOUNDERS IN POND; TELLS POLICE WEIRD STORY

Tony Haas Imagines He Was in Quicksand for Four Days Near Alton.

When a car on the Alton interurban line was passing through Benbow City, eight miles south of Alton, at 6 a. m. Friday, Conductor Bailey saw a man floundering in a pond and apparently in danger of drowning. With the aid of passengers he pulled the man from the water.

Two hours later another car was passing. The man hailed it and begged Conductor Hord to take him to Alton. There he told the police a weird story of having been thrown in the pond by three men and of having stood with his feet in quicksand and water to his neck for three days. He said his name was Tony Haas.

Investigation failed to verify his story. It was learned that at 10 p. m. Thursday John Roach, a road officer of the interurban, found Haas asleep on a trestle near East Alton. Roach led Haas from the trestle and watched him as he walked south on the Benbow road.

When or how Haas got into the pond has not been learned. He admits he had been drinking.

MARKS ON BODY INDICATE WIDOW WAS MURDERED

Hands of Young Woman Found Dead in Wisconsin Town Are Lacerated.

APPLETON, Wis., May 22.—Circumstances have just been revealed that in the opinion of officers lend substantiation to the belief that Mrs. Carrie Shaw, a wealthy and pretty young widow of Hortonville, was murdered there Tuesday night.

It was discovered that a gold front tooth had been knocked out, her lips cut on the inside and the fingers of her left hand lacerated severery and bruised.

An autopsy has been ordered.

Charles Abraham, a New London business man, who is charged with knowledge of the death of Mrs. Shaw, was arraigned here today. A hearing was set for May 29. He was remanded to Jail without bail.

Mrs. Shaw's body was found in a millpond in Hortonville Wednesday morning. Whether she committed suicide or was murdered remains to be determined.

Roosevelt Doubts Whether He Can Obtain Him Rank of Vice Admiral.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Rear Admiral Evans called at the White House today for the first time since his return from the Pacific Coast and received the congratulations of President Roosevelt.

"The President expressed the desire to obtain for me the rank of Vice Admiral," said the Admiral, "but at the same time he expressed doubt of his ability to do so. If the rank is conferred upon me I shall be very glad to get it. If not, I shall manage to do very well as I am."

The Admiral showed the effect of his recent illness, but said he felt very well.

CHARGED WITH 6 MURDERS, MAN CONFESSES TWO

Michigan Prisoner Arrested After Wife Appeals for Protection.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 22.—James Brimmingstall, 40 years old, is under arrest at Dowagaic, Mich., charged with six murders. The police say he has already confessed to two and Prosecutor Bresnahan is confident the prisoner will admit the other crimes.

His arrest followed an alleged attempt to make his wife his seventh victim. She escaped and appealed to the police. It is probable that Brimmingstall will be subjected to further examinations and that he will be held on a charge of murdering David Huff here last June.

The police say he confessed to killing a man in Kansas.

He had a grudge against him and was sentenced to 10 years in the Penitentiary. After his release he killed a companion and received a sentence of three years. He gave no names.

The list of Brimmingstall's victims, according to the officers is:

Man in Kansas, killed by Brimmingstall when 16 years old.

Railroad man in Missouri, seven years ago.

Smith Hortium, Dowagiac, February, 1908.

Mrs. Brimmingstall, apparently distracted, appealed to Prosecuting Attorney T. J. Bresnahan for protection. She said that "Jim" was going to kill her; she could not go to sleep for fear he would break into the house and murder her. She gave hints that led to the discovery that her husband has a criminal record.

David Huff, an aged citizen of Dowagiac, went to the Brimmingstall home to live a year and a half ago. He deeded his property to the Brimmingstalls on their proposition to support him for the remainder of his life.

One night last June a scuffle was heard in an upper room of the house. Huff was found dead in bed with the bed clothing very much disturbed. Brimmingstall said that Huff had some sort of violent illness and accidentally choked himself to death with the bed clothing. The body of Huff was buried next day and the apparent haste occasioned comment.

In February this year Smith Hortium disappeared. There are several incidents tending to connect Brimmingstall with the disappearance of Hortium. Hortium's body was found frozen in the ice of a nearby stream. His money had disappeared.

PASTOR'S NOTES TO GIRL FOUND BY HER MOTHER

She Shows Them to Board of Elders and Clergyman Resigns.

AN ACTIVE REFORMER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., May 21.—The Rev. Robert Arthur Elwood, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, tendered his resignation to the elders of the church this morning. The resignation was accepted at a special meeting of the elders this afternoon and it is not expected that the Rev. Mr. Elwood will occupy the pulpit of the church again.

Mr. Elwood has been very prominent in the movement to close the "joints" in Leavenworth and has been an ardent leader in reform movements.

Wrote to Young Lady.

The resignation of Mr. Elwood is said to be due to his writing letters to a young lady member of the church choir. Within the last year Mr. Elwood took personal charge of the music and management of the choir and this brought him into close contact with the members.

The letterts to the young lady are said to have referred to passages of scripture and to have been of a moderately affectionate nature.

Mr. Elwood is a married man with a wife and two children.

The mother of the girl found the letters and was displeased with them. She held the letters several months and finally showed them to members of the Board of Elders. After reading them the Elders notified Mr. Elwood that his usefulness here was at an end and a meeting was set for 3 o'clock p. m. to consider his resignation.

PANTS PARADE AT M'KINLEY HIGH BALKED BY WEATHER

Krausnick's Classmates Defer Their Sartorial Defiance Until June 12, Closing Day.

Weeping skies and chilly breezes were a combination too strong for the dainty Krausnick trousers, with the dark blue cuffs, Friday.

Charles Krausnick's class at the McKinley High had planned to appear at school wearing the trousers which he made famous—or rather trousers just like them, but the concerted display was called off because of the weather.

It is said that the class will carry out its original intention of wearing this latest thing in the college clothes line on the last day of school, June 12.

POLICEMAN, TAKEN FOR THIEF, IS SHOT AT BY HOTEL MAID

Mistaken for a burglar, Policeman Reddington of the Twelfth District became the target for a bullet fired by Josie Hellmich, a maid employed at the Windemere Hotel, 5601 Delmar boulvard, at 2:30 a. m. Friday. Reddington narrowly escaped being shot.

Reddington tried the doors and windows of the hotel, as is his custom. He had walked away from a back door when he heard a shot and a bullet whizzed past his head. He hurried back and Miss Hellmich excitedly told him she had seen a man peering through the window of her basement room and had concluded he was a burglar.

SEPTUAGENARIAN LEADS TODAY'S ODDITIES, RESULT OF FIVE-YEAR DIET OF SAND

Providence Man Renews Youth and Grows Fat Upon Five Ounces of the Stuff Daily.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A reputable resident of Providence, Henry Clarke, employed by the Water Department, has discarded physicians and has gone to the sand dunes of Rhode Island for his food and medicine. His age is 70 years.

"I was given up for dead," he said, "when a neighbor suggested sand. I tried it—four and five ounces a day—and now look at me."

Then he stood on his head, as we see small boys do.

Mr. Clarke has been eating sand for five years, he declares, and almost nothing else. On this diet he has grown fat. His nights are spent in refreshing sleep and his days are fruitful because of his work.

Sand in sugar is as old as the Sugar Trust. But sand as a substitute for beefsteaks and baked potatoes is a bit new.

H. I. MILLER TO RAISE TURTLES, GUINEA PIGS AND MUSHROOMS

CHICAGO, May 22.—Turtles, guinea pigs, goldfish and mushrooms will be the products of a unique farm which H. I. Miller, president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, proposes to operate at Barrington, a suburb of Chicago.

Mr. Miller was for several years connected with the operating department of the Vandalia in St. Louis, and is well known in that city. He left the Vandalia and became an official of the Rock Island, in Chicago, before he was made president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois.

Mr. Miller has purchased 200 acres of rolling timbered land and has begun the construction of ponds and lagoons for turtles and goldfish.

His mushrooms will grow wild in the woodlands. His guinea pig yards will be the largest in the country.

SKYSCRAPER NECK THE LATEST

NEW YORK, May 22.—The dangers of sightseeing took on another fearsome addition today when the surgeons of St. Gregory's Hospital discovered "skyscraper neck." John Aitz, 10 years old, was trying to see the flagpole of the Singer Building through the smoke clouds and mist, when his neck slipped, and he couldn't get his head down again.

John was more frightened than hurt, and his yells brought a wondering crowd around him. At the hospital the doctors used mental suggestion and massaged the boy's head on straight.

UTILITIES BILL WILL AGAIN GO TO GALLAGHER

Cramer's Much Pigeonholed Measure Up in House Tonight.

IS THREE MONTHS OLD

Only One Member of Old Committee Has Been Retained.

At Friday night's meeting of the House of Delegates the Legislative Committee of that branch of the Municipal Assembly will have in its keeping, for the second time within three months, the fate of Councilman Cramer's public service bill.

This same committee, of which "Jiggers" Gallagher is again chairman, pigeonholed the measure at the last session of the House, without vouchsafing its friends even a public hearing. It has had one reading and will receive the second Friday evening, before being referred to Gallagher's committee.

Advocates of legislation regulating public utilities in St. Louis regard Councilman Cramer's bill as the best of the dozen that have been submitted to the Municipal Assembly in the last eight months.

Commission Well Restricted.

While the appointment of the five citizens who are to constitute the public service commission is given by Mr. Cramer to the Mayor, with the approval of the Council, there are provisions requiring open sessions, access to its records and frequent reports to the Assembly, pending its investigations.

Commissioners appointed under Cramer's bill would have to be citizens and qualified voters of the city, and free from any connection with any of the public service corporations, here or elsewhere. They are to be named by the Mayor within ten days after the passage of the ordinance.

An appropriation of $25,000 is carried in Mr. Cramer's bill for the actual expenses of the commission and the payment of its expert, whose salary will be $10,000 a year.

Priesmeyer Also Has Bill.

Besides Cramer's bill the House's Legislative Committee has one drawn by Delegate Priesmeyer. His was introduced three weeks ago, and provides for a commission of three Councilmen and three Delegates, with the Mayor as chairman.

From definite announcements made by all the Democratic Councilmen, it is certain that Priesmeyer's bill would meet with no favor in the upper house. It is equally certain that the Mayor would veto any scheme to permit the House Combine participation in the making of a commission.

The objection of the Combine, that the Mayor would create a commission partial to the public utilities of the city is answered by the provision for open hearings, contained in Councilman Cramer's bill. Public sessions would distinguished the Public Service Commission, Mr. Cramer contemplates, from the Municipal Terminals Commission, which meets behind closed doors.

Except for Chairman Gallagher, none of the men who were on the legislation committee of the House last session, is retained.

Personnel of Old Committee.

Delegates Ferd Warner, Fred W. Priesmeyer, Matthew Tobin and Sam Stannard, with Gallagher as chairman, were the legislation committee of the last session.

At the time when Cramer's bill reached the House, last March, Stannard had deserted the combine and could not have done much in the measure's behalf, even if he had tried.

MAE WOOD WILL "ROT" BEFORE SHE ADMITS PERJURY

Says She Would Have Proved Marriage to Platt but for Theft of Papers.

LAWYERS DESERT HER

No One Offers to Give $5000 Bail—Jerome Promises Speedy Action.

WOMAN IN COURTROOM BEFORE ARREST AS PERJURER AND SENATOR WHOM SHE SUED

Sen. THOMAS C. PLATT
MAE-WOOD on the WITNESS STAND

NEW YORK, May 22.—"I'll rot first," shouted Mae Wood, the Omaha newspaper woman today, when asked if she would plead guilty to the charge of perjury on which she was committed to the Tombs yesterday after the dramatic dismissal by Justice O'Gorman of her suit for divorce against United States Senator Thomas C. Platt.

Although she had expressed confidence that she would be released on bond today, Miss Wood still was in her cell this morning, apparently no effort having been made to obtain he $5000 bail for her.

Says She Will Fight.

"I suppose I shall have to swallow any medicine they prescribe for me for the present," said she. "But you may say this for me: As long as I live and there is a Platt alive, I shall fight, and fight hard, for my rights."

"Do you still claim you are Senator Platt's wife?"

"I certainly do, and I would have proved it if they had not robbed me of all my papers. I did not expect to win. I feared that the suit would be dismissed, and I had counted on being permitted to go my way—I would not have bothered old Platt after that. I didn't expect this," she added, as she glanced around at the narrow cell.

Then the smile disappeared and her lips came together in a straight, tight line, as she declared she would "rot" before pleading guilty in case she was indicted.

Jerome Hopes for Conviction.

District Attorney Jerome said: "This case is one of a very vicious type not uncommon in this city. It will be presented to the grand jury as soon as possible, and if the woman is indicted, she will be placed on trial in hope that her conviction will furnish a salutory that such offenses cannot go on here."

Miss Wood will have to get other counsel to represent her henceforth, as Charles Le Barbier, who conducted her recent case, announces that he is through with the woman.

Miss Wood's first night in prison did not seem to depress her. She chatted with the Tombs matron and apparently did not seem to realize the seriousness of her position. She had some of her effects brought from the Manhattan Hotel and then laughingly remarked:

"But I guess I had better begin to accustom myself to some plain living.'

No credence is given at the prosecutor's office to the prisoner's statement that she will be able to interest "influential men at Washington" in her behalf.

Judge Denounces Woman.

The suit against the Senator ended dramatically. The taking of testimony had ended. Justice O'Gorman asked Miss Wood a few questions, then said:

"The Court can not credit the plaintiff's evidence as to the alleged marriage and the testimony in the case impresses the Court with the belief that it is a most wicked design to support a fictitious claim by forgery and perjury.

"The Court can not believe from the evidence that there ever was a marriage. On the merits of the case every issue has resulted in the Court's impression that the plaintiff has committed willful perjury in this case.

"Being impressed with the plaintiff's guilt of perjury, the Court commits her to the City Prison, unless she furnishes bail in $5000."

The Pessimist: Gracious, but my boy is hard on his clothes.
The Optimist: So much the more reason for buying the best.

DETECTIVE'S FATHER AND MOTHER AT DEATH'S DOOR

"Darby" O'Brien Asks Leave of Absence to Attend His Parents.

Detective M. J. (Darby) O'Brien had the sympathy of the entire staff of Chief Smith Friday morning when he asked to be excused from duty, saying his mother and father are both at the point of death. The mother, Mrs. Anna O'Brien, is at St. Mary's Infirmary, where physicians have twice given her up. James O'Brien, the father, is at the City Hospital, suffering from injuries sustained in a fall from the porch of his home on the second floor at 1217 South Compton avenue. His life has also been despaired of, owing to his age. The couple are both past three score and ten.

While attending his sick wife Mr. O'Brien became exhausted from want of sleep. He went out to the porch Wednesday night to get fresh air. He fell asleep in a chair and rolled from it to the ground, more than twenty feet below. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the City Hospital.

In order to allay the fears of the sick wife, members of the family invented different excuses for the absence of Mr. O'Brien and finally the physicians advised that she be taken to St. Mary's. Their only hope of prolonging her life lies in their ability to keep the news of her husband's condition from her.

Cat Made Monkeys Behave.

From the New York World.

Big Tom, the ship's cat, saved the Atlas liner Venetia from a pest of monkeys, according to the narrative of Capt. Huger, who arrived yesterday from Central American and West Indian ports.

At Santa Marta, Columbia, Dan Jose Velasquez, a gold prospector, came aboard with 30 blond monkeys. On the pleading of Don Jose the Captain consented to allow the monkeys out of their cages one day. They jumped and climbed everywhere. They pulled the tail feathers from the skipper's parrot, broke cups in the galley, and, posting themselves on skids, pulled off sailors' caps and then grinned as the men swore and threatened to knock off their heads.

Capt. Huger ordered Don Jose to catch his monkeys, but he could not. A sailor brought Big Tom. The cat swelled up, spat once or twice, and chased them all into the rigging. The monkeys stayed aloft for two days whining with hunger and cold. Then Big Tom was removed to the fo'c'stle, and the monkeys came down from their perches.

GIRL TRAMPS, IN MEN'S SUITS, STEAL A RIDE

Satisfied With Lark After a Night in Wet Coal Car.

It seemed a great lark to Mrs. Ella Burton Perkeiser, 20 years old, and Anna Shea, 16, to don men's clothes and start in an empty coal car, from Mitchell, Ind., to East St. Louis. But a rainy night on the road materially altered their point of view, and when they were taken, bedraggled, grimy and covered with cinders, to the police station in East St. Louis Friday, they were as uncomfortable a pair of young women as could be found.

Miss Shea, plump and blonde, bore her hardships with a senblance of cheerfulness, while Mrs. Perkeiser, slim and brunette, wept copiously.

Evan Perkeiser, Mrs. Perkeiser's husband, has a suit for divorce pending against her, and this was one reason, she said, for wanting to go to East St. Louis.

Miss Shea, her chum, decided to accompany her, and they appealed to E. C. Glover, who married Mrs. Perkeiser's sister. He had a position in view in East St. Louis, and his wife gave her consent for him to accompany the young women.

Had Just $12.

Between them, the three mustered just $12. The railroad fare from Mitchell is $6.05, and the young women thought it would be fun to save their money and "beat" their way on a freight train. They donned suits of Glover's clothes and left Mitchell at 8:30 Thursday night.

Mrs. Perkeiser had expressed a trunk containing her clothes and Miss Shea's, before starting out. It rained nearly all night, and the young women were heartily sorry, before they had gone far that they had undertaken the trip. They crouched in a corner of the open car, pelted with chilly rain. Glover got off at a station on the way and bought coffee and rolls for them.

Crowd Is Attracted.

On arriving at East St. Louis, the young women went to the Relay Depot to get Mrs. Perkeiser's trunk.

In daylight the most careless eye could penetrate their disguise and a crowd gathered about them. Patrolman Pabst arrested them.

When Chief of Police Purdy heard the story he agreed to furnish the young women with enough money to return Thursday afternoon to Mitchell on a passenger train, to which they joyfully assented.

Propose Two Gifts for the St. Louis.

As St. Louisans, who wish to present some token to the new cruiser St. Louis, are divided as to the gift, the Committee on Presentation has proposed that two gifts be presented. A silver loving cup for the officers and an orchestrion for the crew, are suggested.

ALL FACTORIES TO BE INSPECTED HADLEY HOLDS

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Contends That State Officer's Ruling Is Wrong.

State Factory Inspector Sikes has received from Attorney-General Hadley and his assistant, John Kennish, opinions as to the legality of collecting inspection fees in factories in which only the proprietor works or is found working.

The request for a decision on the point grew out of the case of Herman Adolph, a tailor at 3845 Finney avenue, who, on March 18 last, refused to pay the inspection fee of 50 cents on the ground that he was not running a factory.

The State Factory Inspector asked Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Falkenhainer to 'issue a warrant against Adolph for not complying with the law. This he refused to do on the ground that the law did not apply to a factory in which only one person was found at work and on his personal opinion that it was not right to inspect such a factory.

Sikes Says Small Places Worst.

Following this small bakeries and other factories all over the State refused to pay inspection fees.

In his letter to Mr. Hadley, the State Factory Inspector wrote: "The inspectors find the smaller places the filthiest, and the child-labor law most frequently violated, and danger of peonage by the foreign element and child-labor abuses if not inspected. If Mr. Falkenhainer's opinion prevails it will nullify the work of my department, as in most factories, bakeshops, tenement shops, etc., where only a few persons are working, they may be concealed during the visits of the inspectors and the law invaded."

Hadley's Opinion Rejected.

Attorney-General Hadley, in his reply, says: "The act of 1907 is clearly broad enough to include the case of a shop or factory with only one employe, or where the proprietor alone labors therein."

Friday morning State Factory Inspector Sikes sent copies of these decisions to Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Falkenhainer, again requesting that a warrant be issued against Herman Adolph.

The request was refused by Mr. Falkenhainer on the ground that he did not agree with the Attorney-General and his assistant, but that he would go over the acts of the Legislature again with Prosecuting Attorney Moss and decide the matter for himself.

LOVE LURKS IN FLAPJACKS: COOK TO WED BOARDER

Belleville Man's Heart Won by the Cuisine and Smiles of Miss Moore.

It is a good thing to be a good cook. Take the case of Miss Maude Moore of Belleville, for instance. She is a very good cook. She has won the heart of Thomas L. Blanning. Cooked her way to it, he says.

Miss Moore has been conducting a boarding house at 2105 West Main street. She has given her personal attention to the preparation of flapjacks for breakfast and the other things for the other meals.

The fame of the fare at her boarding house spread far and wide.

When Mr. Blanning came to Belleville from Bridgeton, N. J., he heard about the flapjacks and other things at Miss Moore's boarding house and sat at her table thrice daily.

He became so attached to Miss Moore's cooking that it seemed to him he could not live without it. And her smile was like predigested breakfast food to him.

There was only one thing that marred his joy. She also cooked for the other boarders and smiled on them, too. He wanted to monopolize both the cooking and the smiles. He asked her if she would not cook just for him, and all the time. She said allround cooking suited her well, but she wouldn't mind turning specialist, if he really wished it.

So the other boarders were notified to hunt for another boarding house. A marriage license was obtained Thursday. They will be married Saturday, and she will cook flapjacks and other things for him until death does them part.

One Grade Crossing Abolished.

The first grade crossing to be abolished in St. Louis in 18 years was put out of commission Thursday in the opening of the new Fyler avenue bridge across the Frisco tracks. The bridge cost $300,000 and was erected at the expense of the Frisco Railroad.

C. B. C. Alumni Will Meet Here.

The meeting, in August, of the National Alumni of Christian Brothers' College, has been changed from Chicago to St. Louis. President Joseph P. Hartnett of the St. Louis Alumni Association will call a meeting early next week to arrange for the event. At the annual banquet Thursday evening at the Mercantile Club, a ladies' auxiliary was proposed.

COLISEUM WILL BE FINISHED NOT LATER THAN OCT. 1

Political Parties to Be Able to Hold Final Campaign Meetings There.

The various political chairmen have been notified by Guy E. Golterman, secretary of the St. Louis Coliseum Co., that the new Coliseum, at the corner of Washington and Jefferson avenues, will be ready for use not later than Oct. 1. The C. L. Gray Construction Co., which has the contract, has informed the building committee that their contract will be completed at that time.

It is expected that several large mass meetings will be held in the building during the month of October, just before the close of the campaign.

The work of placing the foundations will begin in a few days, and the building pushed to completion with all possible speed.

The new Coliseum will comfortably seat about 15,000.

Will Get Well.

Doctor: Your wife is very ill, sir, and likely to die.

Husband: You needn't worry about her, doctor. She got a new dress the other day, and she hasn't tried it on yet.—Tit-Bits.

OLD MAN FINED $200 ON TESTIMONY OF GIRL OF 11

Judge Kleiber Dismisses Two Other Charges Against Carmein, Who Denies Wrong.

John Carmein, 68 years old, of 3015 Dickson street, who has a tailor shop at Dickson street and Garrison avenue, was fined $200 in the Wyoming Street Police Court Friday by Judge Kleiber for annoying Elma Meyers, 11 years old, of 2949 Thomas street.

The girl testified that when she went to the shop May 7 to ask for blotters Carmein locked the door and subjected her to indignities. She did not tell her parents then.

May 12 she and Margaret Margraff, 12 years old, of 2940 Thomas street, went to the shop on their way to the Divol School and they said that Carmein gave them a nickel apiece and asked them to come back after school. Elma told her parents then and they complained at the Dayton Street Station and Policeman Langston arrested Carmein. The case went to the South Side court on a change of venue.

Carmein denied on the stand that he had done anything wrong. He was fined $200 on the charge based on the incident of May 7. Two other charges, based on the incident of the 12th, were dismissed.

Bad Breath From Indigestion Is Far Worse Than From Onions

Best Way to Remedy Trouble Is by Curing Indigestion's Misery With Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets.

All of us suffer from bad breath—sometimes our own, but oftener that of our friends.

Nine-tenths of this bad breath comes from some stomach trouble, and cannot be overcome by breath perfumes or any other palliative measures.

If you occasionally have a bad breath; if there is heart-burn, flatulence and acid gulpings of undigested food; if the stomach burns or smarts; if there is sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches or any other of the many symptoms of indigestion, use Mi-o-na stomach tablets and get well.

Mi-o-na is not a mere digestive nor a physic, but a tonic remedy that strengthens the muscles of the stomach and bowels so that the flow of gastric juices is increased, and the food is digested naturally and does not stay in the stomach to ferment and poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A little 50-cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets lasts for a couple of weeks, and will ward off a dozen mild attacks of indigestion. If you suffer with a chronic case of stomach trouble, the use of Mi-o-na for a reasonable length of time will give you an absolute and complete cure.

If you want to enjoy your food and never suffer from indigestion, use Mi-o-na. It is the only remedy that is relied upon as a certainty today, relieving the worst troubles of indigestion and assimilation, and making a complete cure.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

They are made of madras and percales; in a great range of colors and patterns; cuffs attached or detached; coat style and plain; splendid $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3 values; all grouped in one assortment and priced 95c

They can imitate the price, but they cannot imitate our values, and the very fact that the price is being imitated is evidence that we have scored a decided hit with the extreme novelties we are offering at that figure. Get acquainted with the usual dollar Scarfs you will find at exclusive haberdashers, and then come and see ours at 55c. Then you will understand why our line is so popular.

Entomologist Brings Parasites Which Wipe Out California Fruit Pests.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—George Compere, entomologist, arrived here on the liner China after a tour of India and the Far East in search of the natural enemies of the pests that infest the orchards of California.

His quest was successful, and when he left Western Australia, three months ago, the parasite that he found in India was reducing the ravages of the fruit fly to a noticeable degree.

This parasite was discovered five years ago, but previous attempts to introduce it into Australia failed on account of the seasons. By putting the bugs to sleep in India with ice Campere got 100,000 of them to Australia alive. He woke them up in the best of Australian winters and, thinking they were still in India, the parasites went to work with a will. Three generations of native-born bugs saw the light before Campere left the antipodes.

He also took to Australia a parasite which swept away the cabbage aphis like fire. He has brought to California a parasite to destroy the mealy bug, a pest that causes great grief to the orange grower. He discovered this friendly bug in Japan.

O'REILLY PUTS BLAME ON MAYOR IN BRIDGE DELAY

Wells' Failure to Approve the Appointment of Chief Engineers Is Cause.

DOESN'T LIKE TERMS

Executive Would Refuse to Ratify Action on 5 Per Cent Basis.

Another delay in beginning the free bridge will be caused, President O'Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements says, by the Mayor's lack of promptness in approving the appointment of Brenneke and Fay as chief engineers, architects and superintendents of the work.

Mr. O'Reilly says the preliminary surveys, on which the design of the bridge will be based, will be completed by Saturday. If the appointment is not made then, he says, work can proceed no further.

Mayor Wells has submitted to the Law Department for its scrutiny the form of contract under which Brenneke and Fay were to be employed. It is said the Mayor is anxious to learn whether, if he rejects their names, they can hold the city to the contract.

Would Refuse His Consent.

If the Mayor finds he can disapprove O'Reilly's appointment without involving the city in litigation, he will refuse to give his consent to the employment of Brenneke and Fay. In that event another engineer will submit to the city a proposition to build the bridge for a fee of 2 per cent. Brenneke and Fay want 5 per cent—or about $100,000 on an estimated cost of $2,000,000 for the bridge proper.

One of the allegations which the Mayor is investigating in reference to President O'Reilly is that engineers of national repute—like Waddell & Harrington, Ralph Modjeska and Ira G. Hedrick were discouraged, from making any proposals. Politics also is charged as having influenced the selection of Brenneke and Fay.

Both allegations are denied by President O'Reilly. He says the appointment was meritorious and based on the achievements of Brenneke and Fay, as well as on their technical training and long experience.

Kansas City Man Favored.

If Brenneke and Fay are not employed, Ira G. Hedrick of Kansas City most likely is to be chosen. He is the man whom most members of the Board of Public Improvements favor. With a clean slate obtained by the elimination of Brenneke and Fay, however, the position of engineer probably will go to the lowest and best bidder.

Just how kindly President O'Reilly will take the Mayor's refusal to confirm Brenneke and Fay is a question full of interest. Unless O'Reilly wishes, he need not employ any man suggested by the Mayor or the Board of Public Improvements.

The Mayor can disapprove, but he can't hire any one. The Board is equally helpless. O'Reilly is supreme.

Commission Alone Has Power.

Only the creation of a commission of architects and engineers could deprive President O'Reilly of absolute power as to the selection of a bridge builder. That would have to be done by ordinance, as was the case with the municipal buildings and the City Hospital.

With the House of Delegates on his side, O'Reilly could prevent even that method of depriving him of control.

REPUBLICANS FAVOR DELAY IN EXPULSION OF LILLEY

It Is Reported That He Will Be Elected Governor of Connecticut Next November.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Deliberation on the stirring report of the special committee, on the submarine scandal, arraigning Representative Lilley, author of the charges, has led to a general understanding among the Republicans, that no steps toward expelling Lilley will be taken at this session. The Democrats are not so lenient toward the Connecticut man, however, and the Democratic minority leader, Mr. Williams, is considering the introduction of a resolution of expulsion before adjournment.

Only a few members have read the evidence. Reports from Connecticut are that Lilley is likely to be elected Governor of that State in November. In that case the Republicans are willing to give the matter a "dignified delay."

FOUGHT POLICEMAN, MAKES NEW ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Frenzied City Hospital Patient Will Be Sent to a Private Insane Asylum.

George Gall, an insane patient at the City Hospital, who escaped to a cupola on top of the building and battled with Policeman Omohundro there before he was returned to his cell, made another attempt Friday to escape. He kicked out his window by thrusting a foot between the iron bars, threw out his pillows and bed clothes, and tried to wrench away a bar. He was overpowered, and will be sent to the Insane Asylum.

The hospital authorities have found that Gall has $2000 in a St. Louis bank and $2000 in a bank at Kirksville, Mo. Relatives were notified of this, and told they must send him to a private institution, as he is able to pay for his own maintenance.

DEADLOCK IS ON OVER BISHOPS

Fifth Ballot of Methodists Results in No Choice.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 22.—The fifth ballot for bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church taken yesterday afternoon resulted in no choice. Announcement of the fact was made at today's session of the general conference.

A Message From Our President

To the Men and Young Men of St. Louis: The circumstances that prompt me to send this advice direct to you, are extraordinary. These are times when all must economize. No opportunity to save considerable money must be thrust aside without due investigation. That much you owe to your family. Therefore, "INVESTIGATE" is the title of this advice. I say publicly, in all truthfulness and over my signature (and that means much to me), that never in my quarter of a century's experience have I seen the equal of the Schloss Bros.' Suits now displayed in the Globe's show windows for 12.90, sold anywhere or any time in St. Louis for less than 20.00 and, in some cases, 25.00 and 30.00. I state publicly and emphatically that these Suits are the very identical ones for which we paid Schloss Bros. $15, $18 and $20 WHOLESALE, earlier in the season. I say, further, and without exaggeration, that I have seen what other clothing stores in this city are displaying in their windows, and they are asking $20, $25 and $30 for the same grade of merchandise. Finally, I tell you, that it does not require a clothing expert to determine the truth of these assertions. You, yourself, can tell "what's what" at a glance. If you're thinking of buying a Suit, or even if you won't need one until Fall (some of these are Fall weight), heed this advice: SEE THE GLOBE'S SHOW WINDOWS—TOMORROW. I would not make such public statements, unless I were convinced of my correctness in the matter. You won't regret seeing for yourself. LOOK TO IT!

DEATH PROPHECY DRIVES MAN TO TAKE OWN LIFE

DRINKS CARBOLIC ACID

Aunt Says He Had Been Brooding Over Mother's Financial Condition.

A fortune teller's prophesy so unnerved George Le Beau, 27 years old, that he ended his life rather than await the predicted death. This is the opinion of Mrs. Annie Creeley of 2225 Franklin avenue, his aunt.

Mrs. Creeley and her husband prevented Le Beau from killing himself Wednesday, and had him taken to the City Hospital for observation. He was released early Thursday, and went to the home of his mother, Mrs. Marie Aubuschon, 6521 Hamburg avenue. He swallowed carbolic acid Thursday afternoon in a saloon nearby, and died on a vacant lot outside.

Mrs. Creeley told a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday that George had told her he had consulted a fortune teller and that she had said he would be ill for 10 days, a burden on his mother's hands, and would die within three months.

Mrs. Creeley said Le Beau told her he would rather kill himself than undergo lingering illness. After he was prevented from ending his life he repeated to her, she says, that he would forestall the prediction. She did not learn the fortune teller's name.

Mind Believed Unbalanced.

"He thought he had lung trouble," Mrs. Creeley said, "although there was no indication of it that I could see. He worried, too, about his mother's financial condition. I think his mind was unbalanced."

The note found in Le Beau's pocket after he died is regarded by his aunt as supporting her belief that worry had unbalanced his mind. It was addressed to his mother and to Lee and Walter Aubuschon and Joe Lorain, and read:

"Let these people be notified in rotation. I am taking my life because I could not right my mother's wrongs. I have tried to be good, but I have not succeeded. My mother's troubles are on my mind. I have lots of friends, but that is not the question. I have tried to have my mother own the house where she is paying rent, but I have failed. So I am going to die. Notify Joe Kelly of Carthage, Ark., that I am dead and get my fiddle from him. I owe him $6."

Le Beau's father lives in Colorado. His mother married a second time.

Mrs. Aubuschon said her son worried because she could not sell a piece of property in St. Louis County and buy the house she lives in. Her mother, whose signature is necessary to make the deed valid, would not consent to the sale.

Mrs. Aubuschon knew her son feared death by tuberculosis, but he did not tell her of the fortune teller's prophesy.

WOMAN CARRIES $5000 FOR YEARS WHILE SHE BEGS

Theresa Robbe Starves Herself to Increase Savings Parents Started.

NEVER WORE A HAT

Hospital Patient Hunted Shoes in Alleys, Always Bearing Her Treasure.

For years Theresa Robbe traversed the streets of St. Louis, begging at back doors, with thousands of dollars wrapped in a rag in an old basket that swung from her arm.

She was ragged and dirty, thin and miserable looking, and no one suspected that she had a fortune in bank notes and gold in the old basket. That was discovered when her neighbors heard her screaming in her home early Thursday, and she told them that thieves had tried to rob her.

When the police came she clung to the basket in a way that made them wish to see into it. She sat with the basket on her lap and her arms around it. When the policeman sought to take it she hugged the precious thing to her breast.

Starves Herself for Years.

For years and years she had starved herself and denied herself, and had suffered for the necessities of life to save the $5607 that was in the basket, and it was dear to her.

Her father and mother had denied themselves the comforts of life, too, and had died in the appearances of direst poverty that they might hand down to this daughter the thousands of dollars they had saved. She inherited their money and their miserly habits, too.

Her father was a street sweeper for the city. His wages were $1.50 a day. He saved enough to buy a lot at 2211 South Eleventh street and to build a two-story brick house on it. The neighbors say that the Robbes did not have even coffee in their house in those days. They never ate meat. They lived principally on bread.

The first bath Miss Robbe had in all her 30 years was given to her Thursday at the City Hospital. And then she got three baths. She said to her attendants that she never remembered having a bath in all her life before.

When one of her neighbors bought a ton of coal she would wait until it had been carried from the street, and then she would go out and sweep up the little pieces that were left. But she always carried on her arm the old basket with the $5000 wrapped in the dirty rag.

In her room were boxes of horseshoes and screws and nails that she had picked up. She would accumulate a lot of this junk and then sell it.

Begged Soap Some Days.

Some days she begged only soap. She would go to a door and say that she was a poor washerwoman, who had work if she only had a bar of soap. She would come home with her basket full of soap on one arm, and the basket in which the $5000 was hidden on the other. Policemen found hundreds of cakes of soap piled up in corners of her home.

At times the woman would beg only tea. Her story then was that she was sick and needed a "drawin'" of tea. Almost every housewife would give it to her, wrapped in a piece of paper. The police found hundreds of these little packets.

She never visited the neighbors or talked with them and they kept aloof from her.

The police do not believe that robbers were in her house.

"She just imagined it," said Sergt. Lanz. But there is a long black-and-blue bruise on her forehead and many scratches on her face. The neighbors heard her screaming for help at 3 o'clock in the morning. No one went near her. At 6 o'clock the grocer, who had been told of her cries in the night, notified the police and Policeman John Kucera went to her house and found her walking about, with the basket clutched to her as she mumbled to herself.

He took her to the City Hospital in an ambulance. There two attendants held her in a chair and another wrenched the basket from her grasp.

There was a top layer of packages of different things, two or three cakes of soap, the heel of a loaf of bread, old rags and several sample packages of washing powder, all wrapped in paper. And then the attendants came to the package of bank bills. It was wrapped in a dirty rag and several pieces of paper.

The attendants stared when they saw the money. There was $5607 in all, and as they counted it aloud she said: "That is right."

She is 30 years old, she says, but she looks to be 50. Her face is wrinkled, her hair is turning gray and her form is stooped.

Saved Nickels and Dimes.

At the hospital she kept saying over and over: "Is my money all right? Will they give it back to me? Is that doctor an honest man?"

"We saved it in pennies a nickles and dimes," she continued, "and it took years to do it. I would hate to lose it now. It was so hard to save it. My father, dead now for 16 years, worked on the streets with a broom. He made $1.50 a day; mother and myself worked in a pants factory and made $1.25 a day apiece. We saved all we could."

"What did you do to save?" an attendant asked.

"Well, my father never used tobacco or drank. We did not wear very fine clothes. I never had a hat in my life. I always wore a shawl on my head. A shawl is better than a hat, anyway. I never saw my mother with a hat on. There's lots of things you don't have to have, like coffee and sugar and meat three times a day."

Wore Shoes She Found.

"They say that you never bought shoes, but wore the ones that had been thrown away in the alleys."

"Well," she said, puckering her lips into an expression of surprise. "Plenty of people waste good shoes, and good clothing, too. Must I throw away a pair of good shoes I find in an alley and go and buy new ones just to keep the shoe stores going?"

They are vegetable. Their action is exactly the same as the action of laxative foods.

They aid digestion, while cathartics ruin it. They restore the natural functions which cathartics wreck.

We now sell a million boxes a month to those who have quit harsh physics.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

BREAKS NECK BREAKING IN MOTORCYCLE

Many See Youth Dashed to Death in Lindell Boulevard.

WAS AN ENTHUSIAST

Retagliatu Attempts to Avoid Collision With Carriage and Auto.

John Retagliata Jr., aged 18 years, rode to his death on a new motorcycle while testing its speed limit on Lindell boulevard, near Spring avenue.

He was tossed from the machine and his neck was broken as he fell against the curbing in front of St. Peter's Episcopal Church. Retagliata lived with his parents at 800 St. Charles street. He was considered a careful motorcyclist.

Pavement Was Wet.

Retagliata, late Thursday afternoon, was speeding at the rate of 30 miles an hour on the wet pavement, going eastward. While attempting to pass between an automobile guided by Dr. W. L. Kingston of 1055 North Grand avenue and a carriage drived by L. A. Ford of 3315 Pine street, the youth lost control of the machine.

The carriage, which was slightly in the lead of the automobile and motorcycle, just as the latter was forging ahead of Dr. Kingston's machine, drew toward the curb, directly ahead of the cycle.

Realizing a collision was inevitable, unless quick action was taken by him, Retagliata swerved his machine in front of the automobile and it skidded against the curbing.

Many Witness Accident.

Many pedestrians witnessed the accident and were horror-stricken at the terrible fate which had befallen the young rider. Policeman Rainey went to Retagliata's assistance and summoned an ambulance, but he expired before it came.

Retagliata was a member of the South Side Motorcycle Club and was returning from Forest Park when he was killed. He was employed by his father in the Cobweb Bar at 800 St. Charles street.

STONE-COOK OLD "GUARD" DECIDES TO AID COWHERD

Hawes, Jourdan and Seibert Attend Conference Which Makes a Slate.

Democratic machine politicians are uniting on candidates for State offices to be voted on at the general primary election, Aug. 4. As the result of informal conferences in Jefferson City Thursday, the Stone-Cook forces have decided to concentrate their efforts on W. S. Cowherd for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

For Lieutenant-Governor the same influences will support W. R. Painter of Carrollton. John Knott of Hannibal, chairman of the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners, is to be slaughtered for Nove J. Winters of St. Louis, a former railroad conductor. The machine slate also contemplates the selection of James Cowgill of Kansas City for State Treasurer. He is a follower of James A. Reed.

Roach Is Not Opposed.

Con P. Roach of Carthage may get the nomination for Secretary of State by default. There is no formidable candidate opposing him, and the Stone-Cook men are depended on to let him have things his own way.

Bernard Dierkes of St. Louis is expected to get the support of the country machine Democrats for State Auditor, his claims being advanced by the Jefferson Club organization.

Harry B. Hawes, former Gov. Dockery, James M. Seibert, Morton Jourdan and others conspicuous in the political affairs of former Democratic State administrations participated in the general discussion of candidates. It was clear from the temper of these men that the Democratic leaders hostile to Folk were encouraged by the reappearance of many of their number at the Democratic State convention.

They do not hesitate to declare that the State will be "theirs" once again after the November election. Politicians no longer doubt a line-up of the Stone and Cowherd forces.

Representative James H. Whitecotton of Monroe County, on the train with a party of leaders returning from Jefferson City, charged that every man who opposed Folk in 1904 was shouting for Cowherd.

Conran Disputes Whitecotton.

Jim Conran of New Madrid County, a new Richmond in the field of State politics, challenged this statement.

"That is not true in my section of the State," he declared.

Senator Heather of Marion County agreed with Mr. Whitecotton. "All through Northeast Missouri the Cowherd men are fighting Folk," said Mr. Heather.

Col. Dave Ball declared to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Laclede Hotel Friday that the "old machine crowd" has agreed to a man to support Cowherd.

"I know the old State House bunch is against me," remarked Ball, "but I will win anyhow. I'll come to St. Louis with 25,000 plurality and I think I can get an even break here.

"Somebody asked me if I wasn't afraid of the Cowherd Business Men's clubs with all those big financial fellows among the Democrats.

Ball Says He Will Win.

"Well, I am not. I know of only one man among the executive officers of that organization who supported William J. Bryan in 1896 and 1900.

"I know Tom Francis, who heads off the list of Cowherd directors, didn't. But the country people know this without my telling them. It may seem funny to say it, but, mark my words, there'll be nothing to it but Ball on Aug. 4."

CALLS MOTHER-IN-LAW "BABY HATER;" SUES HER

Young Husband Says Trouble Began When Wife's Mother Became Grandmother.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Claude L. Day, suing his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Turner of Malone, N. Y., for $100,000, charges them with the alienation of his wife's affections, and alleges that Mrs. Turner is a baby-hater.

Until the birth of a daughter to the Days, the plaintiff says, he got along well with his wife's family. But when Mrs. Turner became a grandmother she ceased calling on her son-in-law. Five months later, Day says, she persuaded Mrs. Day to abandon him.

Day testified at the trial that Mrs. Turner had said to him, previous to his marriage to her daughter, that he must have no children.

"I don't want to be a grandmother," Day testified she told him, "and if you have a child, I will not own it."

"Mrs. Turner told me later that I had made a promise not to have any children," said Day, "and that I had not kept my promise."

Day said that, when his wife left him, he had expectations of becoming a father for the second time. This hope was not fulfilled.

Threatens Banker, Goes to Prison.

OMAHA, Neb., May 23.—James J. Fee, charged with attempting to blackmail Luther Drake of the Merchants' National Bank by threatening to blow up the bank with a bottle of "nitroglycerin" that afterwards proved to be colored water, has been convicted by a jury here and will be sentenced to the Penitentiary. Fee's defense was insanity.

MAN AND SON, EACH HEAVILY INSURED, DIE

POLICE INVESTIGATING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 22.—Detectives hired by three insurance companies, the Mutual Life of New York, the Metropolitan Life, also of New York, and the Reliance of Pittsburg, are investigating the deaths of Jacob G. Besons, who died on Jan. 5, and of his son, Jacob S. Besons, who died on April 30, both of whom carried insurance seemingly far in excess of their ability to pay premiums.

The son, who earned only $9 a week, carried an $8000 20-year endowment policy, but it has been learned that all of his earnings went for music lessons and other personal expenses. The earnings of his father were also out of keeping with the large insurance he carried.

Woman Insurance Solicitor.

The Besons lived at Youngstown, O. Mrs. Besons, the widow and mother of the dead men, is one of the leading life insurance solicitors of Youngstown.

The bodies of both men have been disinterred. An analysis of the contents of the stomach of the son shows quantities of strychnine. The analysis of the stomach of the father has not yet been completed. Mrs. Besons is prostrated over the developments. She declared she had nothing to do with insuring her husband or son, but admits she helped the latter pay his premiums. If strychnine was found in his stomach, she said, his death was the result of self-destruction because of an unhappy love affair.

Another Disappeared.

In 1899 another member of the Besons family, who was heavily insured, disappeared. Later, when his body was found, evidences of foul play were discovered.

There have been several suspicious deaths of insured persons in this district recently. The scope of the investigation now being made will be widened considerably if the Besons cases turn out as the detectives expect.

KILLS HUSBAND FOR $15,000; GETS 8 YEARS IN PRISON

Woman, Who Sought Insurance, Pleads Guilty After Confession Is Overheard.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHARON, Pa., May 22.—To obtain $15,000 insurance on her husband's life was the reason given by Mrs. Ann W. Dahringer for killing him.

The killing was done last September while the victim, Frederick Dahringer, was sitting at an open window in one of the buildings of the American Steel Foundries Co.

Mrs. Dahringer had entered a plea of not guilty, but decided to confess the crime when she learned that Miss Ida Owen, a Pittsburg detective, who had been her cellmate, was to testify she had heard Mrs. Dahringer admit to her lawyer that she killed her husband.

Miss Owen said that on May 1, while in a cell next to that occupied by the prisoner, she heard Mrs. Dahringer say: "I did it; I killed Fred."

Judge Williams fixed the crime as murder in the second degree, but let the self-confessed murderess off with eight years in the Western Penitentiary.

TROUSSEAU FOR LEITER'S BRIDE TO COST $6000

$100 FOR A NIGHT ROBE

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Mrs. John R. Williams and her daughter, Miss Juliette, who is to marry Joseph Leiter June 10, have returned after two weeks' shopping in New York. The trousseau, as yet uncompleted, is said to have cost $6000.

The bridal robe is to be of heavy white satin, made in the new directoire mode. Little trimming will distinguish the gown, but draped about the bride's shoulders will be quantities of rare old point lace, once the cherished treasure of her maternal grandmother.

The material for the robe was purchased in New York, but the making will be intrusted to a Washington modiste who evolved practically all of Miss Williams' clothes for her debutante year.

Two gowns are exciting feminine envy. One is a ball gown of old rose satin, made en empire, the shimmering surface having for its relief masses of filmy cream-colored lace. The second gown is a pitchy black chiffon.

Has a Score of Hats.

Lingerie gowns abound in profusion. Aside from these, however, Miss Williams has decided to buy nothing until she arrives at Paris, when she will put in a supply of frocks for the London season, when she will make her appearance as the guest of Mr. Leiter's sister, Mrs. Colin Campbell, and the Countess of Suffolk, formerly Miss Marguerite Leiter.

Scarcely less interesting than the frocks are the score of hats, each of which Miss Williams has decided to wear once before she dons them as a bride. One is a huge shape of black and white, trimmed simply with a great bow of chiffon ribbon perched jauntily in the very front of the high crown.

Next in interest to the wedding gown is the underwear, made of the finest handkerchief linen. For ornamentation, save for a bit of thread lace, there is nothing but the bride's initials, handwrought upon each piece.

Night Robe Costs $100.

One piece of lingerie is a night robe made almost entirely of lace and embroideries. The creation cost $100, and is the bridal gift of Mrs. William Bishop of New York, an old friend of the bride's mother.

Miss Williams will wear with her wedding robe a pair of real lace hose. The shade matches the satin slippers. The cost was $45. A hatbox, which will accommodate half a dozen of the bride's headgear, was bought for $85.

When it comes to bridal gifts, Mrs. Leiter is to present the Washington house, all its works of art and other furnishings, together with the Leiter silver and china, and the Leiter jewels. The bridegroom's most elaborate gift so far is a strand of matched pearls.

Col. Williams' gift to his daughter is a check for $1000, with which Miss Juliette purchased a horseshoe brooch of diamonds and sapphires to match the betrothal ring.

Mrs. George Summerlin, wife of Capt. Summerlin, U. S. A., under whose kindly eye most of the courting was carried forward, has presented a gorgeous ostrich feather fan mounted on tortoise shell. Emblazoned on the tortoise shell are the bride's initials in diamonds.

In commemoration of the auto trip to Virginia, which Capt. and Mrs. Summerlin chaperoned, and which was followed immediately by the announcement of the engagement, Mr. Leiter has presented Mrs. Summerlin with an exquisite jewel in the form of an automobile thickly encrusted with diamonds.

Wedding to Be Private.

Miss Grace Jarvis, granddaughter of the late Senator McMillan of Michigan, and a sister debutante of the bride-elect, has given her a beautiful brooch with the bride's three initials set in diamonds.

The wedding, which will take place at noon, will be witnessed only by the immediate members of the family and a few intimate friends.

Immediately after the service a large reception and wedding breakfast will take place at Rauscher's. Later in the afternoon the bride and bridegroom will set off for Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mrs. Leiter's country place, making the journey by auto. August 20 they will sail for Europe, the return trip being dated for September 20.

Mr. Leiter and his bride will take possession of the Leiter house in this city early in the fall and the youthful chatelaine will make her first essay as a hostess at a large ball she will give early in the fall to introduce her school girl sister, Miss Dorothy.

Mrs. Williams' gown selected to wear at the service is of such fragile fabric that there will be no temptation to don it a second time.

City Has Owned It for Three Years, Wants to Sell.

Politicians in need of coffins for themselves or their opponents may find a bargain in the City Hall. Supply Commissioner Boyce has a fine casket which he will sell cheaply. It is guaranteed to accommodate any ordinary man or woman.

BELIEF IN "EDDYISM" IS AMAZING TO DR. MITCHELL

Author Surprised That Americans Are "Taken in by Elderly Woman and Smile."

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—Declaring that "Eddyism" in some form is as old as civilization, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, newly elected president of the American Neurological Association, declared that "he was amazed that the disciplined minds of Americans, usually so skeptical, should be taken in by an elderly woman with a smile.

"It is not against psychokathy that I charge you, but against overstating its claims," he continued. "No organic disease was ever cured by it. The rational employment of it in some cases is beneficial.

"I have known a good whipping to better a sick child amazingly. A woman who could not eat, when told that she was getting thin and ugly, promptly recovered her appetite. But there is nothing of Eddyism in these instances."

LUSITANIA TEARS THROUGH OCEAN FASTER THAN EVER

Big Liner Maintains Average Speed of 24.83 Knots Per Hour for Whole Trip.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Tearing through the waves at a speed never before attained by a transatlantic liner, the Cunarder Lusitania has crossed the ocean by the long course in time seldom equaled, even on the shorter log, never navigated by the great passenger steamships except during the summer season.

She covered the 2889 knots of the voyage at an average rate of 24.83 knots hourly, making the run from Daunt's Rock to Sandy Hook in four days, 20 hours and 19 minutes. At present she is anchored off Sandy Hook in a fog too dense to make navigation of Ambrose Channel safe.

The third day's run at an average of more than 26 knots hourly was a surprise, even to the officers and crew.

EXPERT FINDS LIGHTING RATES LOW IN THEORY

Holman Admits He Has Made No Examination of Consumers' Bills.

WILL COMPARE CHARTS

Company Has Employed Him to Prepare Purely Theoretical Defense.

FORMER CITY OFFICIAL

Entered Electrical Corporation Service After Leaving Water Department.

The Union Electric Light and Power Company advertises Thursday in some St. Louis newspapers that it will publish the "conclusions" of a well-known St. Louis gentleman to demonstrate that its November rate schedule is lower than any other rate it has ever made.

M. L. Holman, former Water Commissioner of St. Louis, was recently employed by the Union Electric Light and Power Company to compare its present rates with the former ones. Mr. Holman drew a series of charts for the purpose of making the comparisons.

Mr. Holman told a Post-Dispatch reporter that, after comparing the present rates with the old ones, he had arrived at the "CONCLUSION" that the rates are "THEORETICALLY LOWER" than they ever have been.

Didn't Compare Bills.

Mr. Holman admitted that his "conclusions" were not based upon a comparison of consumers' bills under the new and old rates.

"The Union Electric Light and Power Company employed me to chart its rates," said Mr. Holman to the Post-Dispatch.

"I prepared several big charts for the purpose of making comparisons.

"My conclusion is that the present rates are THEORETICALLY LOWER than the old rates.

"I made no comparisons of consumers' bills to ascertain whether the charges are actually lower than they were."

Premises An Authority.

Union Electric says in its advertisement:

"We appreciate that many of you are too busy to figure out for yourselves whether our present rate schedule, as a whole, is lower or higher than our previous schedule. We have, therefore, requested a gentleman, than whom no one enjoys or is entitled to enjoy in greater measure the confidence and esteem of the citizens of St. Louis, to carefully compare our present rate schedule, now six months old, with our previous rate schedule.

"We will publish his conclusions in this space.

"In closing, we desire to state that when the name of this gentleman is made public, you will recognize that he is entitled to your confidence and esteem, not only by virtue of his well-known high character, integrity and honesty of purpose, but also on account of his great ability to deal intelligently with this and kindred subjects affecting the public welfare—an ability which has been recently, on at least two occasions, so signally recognized as to bring honor to St. Louis because it is his native city."

Company His Client.

The honors referred to are that Mr. Holman is at present president of the American Society of Engineers, and that he was selected as a member of a commission to appraise the Denver Waterworks.

After the expiration of his term as Water Commissioner, Mr. Holman was identified with the Missouri-Edison Electric Light Company. The Missouri-Edison is one of the corporations that was swallowed up by the Union Electric Light and Power Company when it started out to form the light trust.

Mr. Holman was paid a fee for preparing this chart, and becomes the rate expert of the Union Electric Light and Power Company.

The theoretical conclusions of Mr. Holman will not go into the condition of the consumer who is paying a great deal more for light and power, though the company represents that the new rates are lower than the old ones.

St. Louis, May 21, 1908.

TO THE PUBLIC:

In the Post-Dispatch of to-day a purported interview with me is published, in which I am quoted as follows:

> Mr. Holman told a Post-Dispatch reporter that after comparing the present rates with the old ones he had arrived at the "CONCLUSION" that the rates are "THEORETICALLY LOWER" than they ever have been.
> Didn't Compare Bills.
> Mr. Holman admitted that his "conclusions" were not based upon a comparison of consumers' bills under the new and old rates.
> "The Union Electric Light and Power Co. employed me to chart its rates," said Mr. Holman to the Post-Dispatch.
> "I prepared several big charts for the purpose of making comparisons.
> "I made no comparisons of consumers' bills to ascertain whether the charges are actually lower than they were."

I desire to say that I did not say to the Post-Dispatch or to any of its representatives, that "My conclusion is that the present rates" of the Union Electric Light and Power Company "are theoretically lower." I did not use the words "theoretically lower." What I did say was that I had by my comparison found the new rates substantially lower than the old rates for similar service.

Neither did I say anything whatever about making or not making "a comparison of consumers' bills to ascertain whether the charges are actually lower than they were."

Respectfully,

M. L. Holman

DUEL ON RAFT IN MID-STREAM

Man Fires Poisoned Bullets at Comrade Who Attacked Him With Ax.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., May 22.—At Shaker Ferry, on the Kentucky River, Henry Renfro shot James Henry three times. The men were from Beattyville and were on their way to Frankfort with four rafts of logs. Being unable to get through the lock, on account of high water, they tied up, bought whisky and began a poker game. A dispute arose and Henry started at Renfro with an ax. Renfro, to escape him, had to either shoot or jump into the river. Being unable to swim he used a pistol.

A singular thing in connection with the tragedy is that the day before Henry loaded Renfro's pistol for him and put in two cartridges with poisoned bullets, telling him that if he ever had occasion to shoot a man and one of the bullets grazed the skin nothing on earth would save the man. Henry is shot twice, and one of the wounds is from a poisoned bullet, according to his own statement, he is as good as dead.

Had Pockets Full of Dynamite.

From the Philadelphia Press.

With twelve sticks of dynamite in his pockets, William Sheppard, colored, who said he lived in Pittsburg, was arrested on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Sixty-third street and Lancaster avenue early yesterday morning. When taken to the Sixty-first and Thompson streets station Sheppard was handled gingerly and the dynamite was deposited in a bucket of water.

At the hearing before Magistrate Boyle Sheppard denied that the stuff was an explosive, and insisted that it was wax. Magistrate Boyle could not see it that way, and said that William would be protected from the rains and sun by the county for the next ten days.

COWBOY SAILS TO TAKE TITLE OF BARONET

Oklahoma Roper Is Really Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The room of "Mr. Harrison" in Mills Hotel No. 3 at Thirty-seventh street and Seventh Avenue is vacant, and a well-knit, clear-eyed Englishman of 38 is on the sea bound for London to meet his lawyers and to claim his title of Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave, his old Norman castle in Leicester, his 6000 acres, and his right to apoint a vicar for his domain and his tenants.

The Norman castle has accommodations for sixty guests and a stable that quarters forty horses, and the estate has an income of $15,000 a year.

"Mr. Harrison made the jump from Bald Knob, Colorado, to New York, and spent the last ten days here. He declined to announce on what ship he would sail, what name he would use as a traveler, but said good-by to his friend, W. F. Bullock, the New York correspondent of the London Daily Mail

Sir Genille has become famous in the West and to some extent in England as the "Cowboy Baronet." He was the second son of Sir Myles Cave-Browne-Cave, the eleventh baronet of his line, who died in February of last year. There was ahead of him in line for the title and the estate a brother, Geoffrey Lisle, but he died in 1880. The death of the father left the baronetcy and the estate to Genille, who has for the past fifteen years been busting bronchos, roping steers, and herding cattle in the West.

Not long ago the appearance of the "Cowboy Baronet" was heralded in the East, and a distant relative of the deceased head of the house in England was proclaimed as the heir. On his arrival in London he was met by a score or more of the nobility who wanted to welcome him back from the Wild West of America and who found that their reception was ill-timed and wrongly placed.

The real "Cowboy Baronet" has been here in New York for the last ten days, dining every day with Mr. Bullock and sleeping in a room in Mills Hotel No. 3.

Doesn't Like Hotels.

"My dear boy," said Sir Genille to an acquaintance when he was asked why he took a 7 by 4 apartment in the Mills Hotel, "you see, I'm a cowboy for just a few more days. I have been making my living by breaking wild horses and roping cattle. The money I have has been earned in your own Western way, and, besides, the soft life of your big hotels does not appeal to me. I have been sleeping under the heavens, on the ground, up with the break of day, and astride my horse Blue Dog. I'm the champion steer roper of the West, with only one man ahead of me, the champion of the world, and Blue Dog did more to make the record than I did."

The "Cowboy Baronet" sighed.

"But Blue Dog is in good hands, and I can't tell when the call of the West will exert itself on me again."

Sir Genille wore a faded red necktie. The band of it kept crawling up on his neck, and he kept shoving it down with muttered exclamations of hate for the thing.

"Lord! Lord!" he exclaimed. "We don't use neckties in the West, but the life on the plains has been altogether delightful to me. When I first learned of it I was in London. I did not care to be a club lounger, and was then a sort of riding master in the Thirteenth Hussars, stationed at Liverpool. I met a ranchman from this country, and he told me that if I ever wanted to go real riding and make a living at it I should come to America and be a cowboy. Soon after that I started for this country, and I had £300 in my pocket. When I got to Arizona the first thing I was asked was whether I could ride. I showed my employer that I could, but my first year was full of trouble. I got all of the outlaw horses that could be brought to our ranch, and I rode and broke them. In those days they used to pay me $10 each for every wild horse I broke in. It was fun and lots of money.

"The cowboys in the West laughed at me at first and played all sorts of tricks on me as a green Englishman, but they soon found out that I could ride with the best of them. I learned to use the lasso also, and make my own way. They are a mighty fine lot, fine riders, and fine men.

Learned "Gun Play."

"The years that I have been in the West have been full of pleasant experiences. I have ranched in Wyoming, Kansas, Arizona, Colorado, and other states, and have had some pretty exciting experiences on the Mexican border. I was in charge of a big ranch in Arizona when a lot of my employer's cattle were stolen. I stole them back, with some to boot, from an adjacent ranch. The head of that ranch came to me, but I had learned to shoot from the hip without pulling my gun from the holster, and when the American who wanted to get the drop on me started to try to get it he found himself covered and we became friends."

Sir Genille doesn't know just when he will get back to this country, but he has no idea of being out of it for any too long a time. He has become enamored of the West. He is known among the cowpunchers as "Kitty" because he dressed as a woman one night when a cowboy in Arizona was trying to elope with the only woman within 50 miles, and impersonated her during an elopement which resulted in a laugh on the would-be elopers.

"Why, they're the best people on earth," he said. "When I left Omaha on my way East the whole gang, between 300 and 400 of them, rode into town and fired a salute for me. Then they gave me a banquet, and one of them tore up my railroad ticket. It looked as if I would have to stay in the West, but when I told them that I couldn't do anything but the right thing and go back to England and become a baronet for a while anyway they went and bought me a Pullman reservation and all that, and gave me a banquet in a big shed outdoors. At Chicago the cowpunchers in the Miller Brothers' show gave me another send-off. I want to get with some of the boys in the Buffalo Bill gang, but I don't dare do it. I might never get back to England."

Won a Championship.

The steer-roping championship, which Sir Genille holds, was won at Oklahoma City four years ago. He threw and bound his steer in 22 seconds. The world's championship record is 19 seconds. For the championship of the West there is a gold medal, which has to be held for five years before it becomes a lasting trophy with the holder. Sir Genille believes that the contest this year will still find him with 22 seconds as the record, and that the medal will be his forever, as will be the title and the estates left him in England.

EXPECTS 100,000 VISITORS

1100 Reservations Have Been Made From New York State Alone.

DENVER, Colo., May 22.—From reports now in the possession of C. M. Day, president of the Denver Convention League, it is evident that more than 100,000 visitors will attend the National Democratic Convention in this city in July.

Eleven hundred reservations have already been made from New York State alone and the Empire State's delegation probably will number 2000.

Was a Real American.

In certain sections of the city, length of citizenship is computed in a peculiar way. A teacher in a downtown school reports one original method of determining whether or not a man of foreign birth has become a good American.

"How long has your father been in this country?" she asked a pupil.

"Oh, a long while," was the reply.

"But how many years has he been here?" persisted the teacher, who wished to get hold of a few facts.

"I don't know anything about the years," the child replied, "but he is a real American now, because he has shaved off his beard."

Later, the teacher made inquiry and found that in that particular neighborhood, not even a set of naturalization papers is considered so indubitable a sign of Americanism as the fact that a man has taken to patronizing the barber.

The ladies have done wel at Glasgow at the last graduation ceremony, 50 women and 59 men being admitted to the degree of M. A. Twenty years ago a woman in the class room was a rara avis, and we have some recollection of their first appearance at Edinburgh late in the '80s. There was eight young ladies in Prof. Tait's class of natural philosophy. He was explaining the octahedron, parenthetically remarking that it had eight plain faces. One of the sporting contingent in the back row interjected the remark, "Front bench," the ungallant reference being to the eight stalwart young ladies—the pioneers of the woman graduate—who occupied seats in the front row.

RIOTING AND DYNAMITE RESUMED IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., May 22.—With additional obstacles placed in the way of the arbitration of Cleveland's street car strike, rioting and the use of dynamite as strike weapons has been renewed.

Municipal Traction officials and union representatives met again at 9 a. m. to resume negotiations. These questions still block peace:

Inability to agree on a third arbiter; failure of the nonunion men to vote on waiving their seniority, and the declaration by President Dupont that the strikers, if they return to work, must surrender seniority rights until the award of the arbitrators is made.

Four cars were dynamited early today and last night and four passengers injured. One woman's foot was shattered.

LONG STRUGGLE FOR INCUBATOR BABY WILL END

Federal Appellate Court to Decide Between Real Mother and Foster Mother.

FIGHT COSTS $55,000

Most of This Spent by Woman Who Adopted Infant at St. Louis Fair.

CHICAGO, May 22.—The fate of the famous incubator baby of the St. Louis World's Fair will be decided in a few days by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Paul.

The decision will determine whether the baby shall belong to Mrs. Charlotte Thompson Bleakley, its real mother, or to Mrs. James G. Barclay, who adopted it.

Four courts already have attempted to decide this question. An Illinois Circuit Court decided that the child belonged to its real mother. The Illinois Supreme Court reversed this decision and gave the baby to its foster parents. A District Court in Kansas decided the little one belonged to its adopted mother. The Kansas Supreme Court gave it back to its real mother. At present, under the order of the Kansas upper court, the real mother and the child are living together at Sedan, Kan.

Sold by a Nurse.

The incubator baby, now grown to a pretty girl of 4 years, was born in a St. Louis hospital Feb. 15, 1904. While the mother, Mrs. Bleakley, lay ill, the matron, Mrs. Bleakley charges, sold the baby to the Baby Incubator Co. of the World's Fair. A dead baby, born in the hospital, it is alleged, was substituted, and Mrs. Bleakley was told her baby had died.

The baby in the incubator thrived, and Mrs. James G. Barclay, a wealthy woman of Buffalo, decided to adopt it. Mrs. Bleakley signed a deed waiving all claims to the incubator baby, as she was convinced it was not her child

Mrs. Bleakley became suspicious finally, and went to the hospital, where the matron admitted the incubator baby was the child born to Mrs. Bleakley.

Mother Gets Warrant.

When she learned the real mother had come to claim the child, Mrs. Barclay fled, it is said, with the infant from St. Louis. She was halted at Rock Island by a warrant charging her with kidnaping. The Rock Island court restored the baby to Mrs. Bleakley, who took it to Lawrence, Kan. Then began the struggle in the courts, in which Mrs. Barclay is said to have spent $50,000, while Mrs. Bleakley, who is poor, has spent $5000 in defending her claim. She knows the child as Marian Roberta Bleakley, while Mrs. Barclay calls her Dorothy Edith Barclay.

Several famous Kansas lawyers have handled Mrs. Bleakley's case free of charge. About $3500 has been contributed to help her by public subscription.

RECORDER OF DEEDS TO DRAFT BILL PROHIBITING INTER-RACIAL MARRIAGES

Children Can Wed Under Present Laws—Will Provides Imprisonment for Fictitious Names.

The desire of Frank Numata of 1311 Franklin avenue, a Japanese, to marry Miss Elizabeth Buerkle of 914 North Fourteenth street, a white girl, may set the legislative machinery of Missouri to grinding out new laws in miscegenation.

At least the young Jap's request for a license and Clerk Gus Ruedi's refusal to issue it have prompted Recorder of Deeds Charles F. Joy to draft a bill designed to correct various defects in the present statutes on the subject of marriage.

Mr. Joy believes that marriages between Mongolians and Caucassians should be prohibited. That will be one of the first amendments he will propose to existing laws.

His bill will provide a fine and imprisonment, together with invalidation of the marriage of such persons, the penalty for violating the law.

Those couples who use assumed names in obtaining licenses to wed will also receive attention. His bill will make such practice a misdemeanor. Fictitious addresses will be equally under the ban.

A definition of negro, as used in the statutes against miscegenation, will be asked of the Legislature. Mr. Joy wants to know whether an octoroon could get a license.

To prevent too frequent unions of May and December Mr. Joy will seek to have the Legislature fix a minimum age at which young persons may marry even with the consent of parents or guardians. A child 10 years old might now be licensed to wed so far as the law is concerned, if the consent of its parents were given.

35,000 MINERS TO END STRIKE

Will Return to Work in Missouri and Three Other States.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 22.—Thirty-five thousand coal miners of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, members of the United Mine Workers of America, who have been on strike since March 1 last, will return to work early next week. The convention of miners of these states here today ratified and signed the agreement reached by the joint subcommittee of the miners' and operators late last night.

Prices and conditions are to remain the same as they were last year. There are few minor points yet to be settled but they are not of sufficient importance to delay a final agreement.

CITY TO SUE A NEW YORK MAGAZINE, CHARGING LIBEL

Paterson, N. J., Is Tired of Being Called the Headquarters of Anarchy.

PATERSON, N. J., May 22.—Mayor McBride has instructed City Counselor Merrey to begin a libel suit against a New York magazine which has published an article entitled "The Menace of the Red Flag," which is said to contain reflections on this city. Paterson is becoming tired of being referred to as the headquarters of anarchy in America.

Mayor McBride says the statements made in the article in question are unwarranted and false; that the author knows they are false, and that he and other writers must cease publishing such falsehoods.

SQUIRRELS DROP INTO KITCHEN

Animals Startle Cook, Two Burn to Death.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A servant was preparing lunch for Mrs. John Sloane and family in the kitchen of their residence, 883 Fifth avenue, opposite Central Park, when three young squirrels dropped down the chimney.

Two of the squirrels landed on top of the range and were so badly burned before the cook could recover from her astonishment that they died. The third squirrel landed on an iron shelf that extended out from the back of the range. It was rescud and will be raised in the Sloane household.

WOMAN STOWAWAY, DANCING FOR BLUEJACKETS, ARRESTED

Seaman Offers to Marry Her on Next Payday, but She Is Not Released.

VALLEJO, Cal., May 22.—A young woman, giving the name of Olga Isile and her home as Los Angeles, was arrested last night on George street wharf while singing and dancing for a crowd of bluejackets from the torpedo flotilla.

She admits having come up from San Pedro as a stowaway on board the torpedo boat Hopkins. One seaman reported at the Police Station and offered to marry her on his next payday, but she is still in prison.

BILL PIGEON-HOLED TWO YEARS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Senator Beveridge today gave notice that he will move to discharge the Committee on Agriculture from further consideration of his bill requiring packers to put the date of canning on all meat products. The bill has been pending before the Senate committee nearly two years.

Senator Beveridge says that the present system of canning without the date is a menace to the entire nation. He said two senators narrowly escaped death after eating canned meats that were supposed to be fresh. One was Mr. Beveridge himself.

DOGS AS SAFE IN DOG DAYS AS IN WINTER

Rabies No More Common Then Than at Other Times, Says Scientist.

THEY LIKE THE WATER

Government Report Combats Popular Beliefs, Urges General Muzzling.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Practically every popular belief entertained by the American public in regard to the disease of rabies is contradicted by the Bureau of Animal Industry in a report just issued.

The report was compiled by George H. Hart, V. M. D., of the pathological division of the Bureau, and contains the following positive statements, at variance with general supposition:

Dogs do not go mad in the so-called "dog days" with any greater frequency than at any other time of the year. The weather has nothing to do with rabies. The "dog days" received their name because during their course the dog star, Sirius, is in the ascendancy.

Rabid Dogs Seek Water.

Dogs suffering from rabies do not shun water. On the contrary, they seek it with avidity, and only the paralyzed condition of their throats keeps them from drinking great quantities, as the disease causes intense thirst.

No person ever developed rabies through having been bitten by a healthy dog which later came down with the disease.

So-called "mad stones," which are applied to the bites of rabid animals and are supposed to suck out all the poisonous virus and insure the safety of the person bitten, are about as effective as pieces of ordinary blotting paper would be used in the same way.

Don't Kill Biting Dog.

"In many cases in which a person is bitten by a dog," the report says, "there is immediately a clamor to have the animal at once destroyed. This should always be discouraged. The mere fact that a dog inflicts a bite on a human being does not by any means prove that he has rabies. This is the dog's only means of defense and he bites instinctively when harmed.

"On the other hand, if the animal were left to live it could be examined by a competent veterinarian for evidences of rabies, and if it remained normal for 10 days the bite would be harmless.

"Therefore, after a person has been bitten, do not kill the dog unless a competent veterinarian has pronounced the disease rabies, or the dog is showing well-marked symptoms. Instead, when practicable, the animal should be tied up securely and watched carefully for a week or 10 days. In case suspicious symptoms do develop the dog should be examined by a veterinarian familiar with the disease, and if he pronounces the case rabies the animal may then be killed."

Muzzle All Dogs.

As to means of eradicating the disease, the writer says:

"Rabies is one of the most easily eradicated of all infectious diseases.

"The factor of success in the undertaking can be summed up in three words, namely, muzzling all dogs. Could this be efficiently carried out in the United States for a few years rabies would be entirely eradicated, as has been demonstrated by the experience of other countries. Other domestic animals have the disease, it is true, but its transmission by these animals is rare and need not be considered.

"When the muzzling of dogs is suggested, however, the sanitarian meets with many obstacles. Many dog lovers cannot appreciate, or are indifferent to, the anxiety, mental terror, and suffering of several thousand human beings in our country yearly, and the actual death of from 100 to 300 yearly, not to mention the suffering and death of countless dumb brutes.

"But once a dog-muzzling law is passed dog owners are up in arms, using their time, influence, and money to secure its repeal or prevent its enforcement on the ground of alleged cruelty.

Muzzles Not Cruel.

"In reality there is no cruelty whatever inflicted on a dog by causing it to wear a muzzle when in public places or running at large. The animals soon become used to it, and manifest not the slightest inconvenience.

"In the absence of muzzling the disease will continue year by year, causing constantly increasing suffering, financial loss and death."

The writer advocates State and municipal muzzling laws, and the enlargement of pounds, with the killing of stray dogs.

EVERYBODY DRINKS IT

Demand So Great Acid Tablets Have to Be Used to Sour the Milk.

BY MARGUERITE MARTYN.

SEE what Mr. Mulvihill has driven us to drink—buttermilk.

No more root beer or anything that sounds like beer—no more chocolate fizzes—or anything that fizzes—no ginger ale, unless the ale is left out, and no mint drinks, for fear they'll look like juleps—none of these things has a woman dared ask for at a soda fountain since Mr. Mulvihill pronounced against them.

Now, there is no novelty or variety in ice-cream sundaes, so what is left for our cheer and refreshment except buttermilk?

And it seems to be filling a large void. One soda fountain on Olive street sells from twenty to thirty gallons every day, and restaurants and tearooms testify to its marvelous vogue.

Scientist Says So.

Some time ago, when an eminent Russian bacteriologist, successor to Pasteur, stated his belief that the infirmities of old age may be postponed by the free use of sour milk, his statement was widely published and there was an immediate demand for the lacteal fluid.

But that isn't the reason it has taken such a hold on feminine patrons of the ice cream saloons.

They drink it because they like it—because it is a satisfying habit and it has become the fad.

Buttermilk had always been associated in my mind with wayside farmhouses and long, dusty drives on country roads, not with soda fountains, until yesterday, when the heat drove me to an old haunt in search of a cool drink.

Order Anticipated.

I had not had time to give an order before a glass of buttermilk was thrust under my nose. Looking up, I was struck with the change which had come over the countenance of my old friend, Reddy, who has done much to relieve my thirst in other warm seasons.

A SODA FOUNTAIN WHICH USED TO BE A MINIATURE BAR

He looked careworn and bitter and it was he who had thrown the glass at me.

"Why, don't you remember me, Reddy?" I said, "What's come over you? The long dry spell doesn't seem to have sweetened your disposition."

Soured His Disposition.

"Well, buttermilk is enough to make anybody sour. You are the first lady that's come in here today that hasn't ordered buttermilk. When I seen your merry widder, I didn't look no farther, but just began to pour one more buttermilk. But you don't like ice cream and we haven't got anything else you do like."

I held tight to the buttermilk, for it struck me that was just what I wanted.

"I tells the boss I don't see where the profit comes in. I spends half my time a-washin' greasy glasses, and the other half up on the eighth floor churning.

Expects Cows Next.

"No, they ain't moved a dairy farm in here yet, but I guess they'll have to. They can't get buttermilk fast enough, or fresh enough or something, so they just set a lot of fresh milk, with a glass over it, up there in the sun, for as long as they can spare it, then I got to go up and churn it."

"But it's good, Reddy," I had to admit as I finished the glass and decided it was a meal in itself. I fear, from the disgust written upon his face that I forfeited the heretofore constant loyalty of Reddy.

Looking about, it was noticed that every other woman was drinking buttermilk, and some of them couldn't have been alarmed about their health or complexions. There are many soda fountains on Olive street and they all had the same story to tell.

"We sell from twenty to thirty gallons a day," one proprietor told me, "and have no time to bother with that churning business. We have a compressed lactone tablet, containing a pure culture of the lactic acid bacillus which we dissolve in fresh milk. It induces rapid fermentation and we get a product just as good."

Needless to say this statement was from a druggist.

So Old It's New.

The habit of drinking buttermilk is so archaic as to make its revival a new experience in this city, and its effects on us physically can not yet be determined, but we are certain to have an opportunity to judge of whether it makes us fat or thin, old or young, animated or stupid, for a drink habit is not easily cured.

Vice-President Fairbanks says he is addicted to its use, and he may be taken as a living proof that it causes one to grow long.

Suggestion for Bryan.

If it is to be proven that one lives long from drinking buttermilk, would it be giving it an exalted purpose to induce Mr. Bryan to try it, for he is certain to be President if he lives long enough, some say.

But suppose, when Mr. Mulvihill learns it has become a habit he remembers that buttermilk is a fermented liquid. Won't a buttermilk lid be exciting?

HAS PHYSICIAN RIGHT TO HASTEN DEATH BY OPIATE?

St. Louisans Disagree on Ethics of Case Which Caused New Yord Medico-Legal to Denounce Practitioners.

St. Louis men and women disagree on the question whether physicians attending William H. Marsh, a wealthy New York inventor who was dying of hydrophobia, were justifiable in administering opiates to relieve his suffering in his last hours.

That the anesthetics hastened death is the conclusion of the New York Medico-Legal Society, which stopped Marsh's burial and preferred a formal charge against his physicians, according to a press dispatch to the Post-Dispatch. It was agreed by several physicians after Marsh was stricken that he could not long survive.

The dilemma presented by the Marsh case is like that famous example offered by Ingersoll, when he said that a man on a burning ship, facing certain death, was justified in jumping from it and choosing the easier way out of the world. Administering an anesthetic, it is agreed, almost invariably hastens death, when the patient is in a dying condition.

Surgeon's True Mission.

Dr. C. H. Hughes, specialist in nervous diseases, does not believe in giving anesthetics in such cases as Marsh's.

"When Napoleon wanted Baron Larrey, his chief surgeon, to give euthanasia to wounded soldiers," Dr. Hughes said, "Baron Larrey replied that the function of the physician is to save and prolong life, not to destroy or shorten it. That must always be the right view. To ease a patient's pain at the cost of a single hour of life is contrary to all the principles of the medical profession, which lives to prolong life."

Charles P. Johnson, lawyer, said:

"The physicians who relieved Marsh's pain had no intention of committing a wrong, and they cannot be held civilly liable. I believe in doing all that is possible to alleviate suffering under such circumstances."

Mrs. Philip N. Moore, clubwoman and charity worker, said:

"That is a thing which must be decided by the physician, in conjunction with the immediate relatives and the patient. Every case is individual, and must be decided alone. Even if the anesthetic hastens death, as it often must, there are circumstances under which administering it would be justifiable."

Dr. J. William Williamson, a physician, declared himself strongly against such a practice.

"As a matter of fact, the person dying of hydrophobia does not suffer so intensely as is usually supposed," Dr. Williamson said. "The pain is deadened by the poison. I remember attending a boy who asked for ice cream between convulsions when dying of hydrophobia. I sent for it and let him have it.

"An anesthetic can't prolong life. Almost invariably it hastens death. It does no good, and a physician has no more right to commit murder that way than any other."

Rests With Physician.

Mrs. T. Griswold Comstock, clubwoman, said: It is the thing to do if the physician thinks best. It seems the merciful way, since it makes the passing easier. But it is a thing for the physician to decide always.

Chief of Detectives Smith doesn't believe in opiates.

"The practice of deadening pain in that way is bad," he said. "If the patient lives, he is likely to become a drug fiend—it has been my observation that most drug slaves start in that way. If his disease is fatal, death should not be hastened in any way. He should be left in full possession of his faculties as long as he can retain them."

DOCTOR SURE HE HAS HYDROPHOBIA; STILL AT WORK

NEW YORK, May 22.—Notwithstanding the fact that he believes firmly that he inoculated himself with hydrophobia germs while assisting in the autopsy on the body of W. H. Marsh, the Brooklyn victim of the disease, Dr. Ira Van Giesen of the City Health Department was about his work today, exhibiting no concern over his condition.

"I am sure I was inoculated," he said today, "but the only thing to do is to take treatment and await the outcome. I am not alarmed. I hardly believe I am going to be among the one per cent of those who die from the disease after taking the Pasteur treatment."

The doctor's only handicap is the frightful burns on his arm, where the scalpel he was using in the autopsy scratched him. He cauterized his wound with carbolic and nitric acid and the flesh is eaten away in places.

The remaining victims of the Marsh family pet dog, Ramsey Marsh, son of the dead man, and Miss Thompson, his stenographer, are feeling no ill effects of the Pasteur treatment and all are confident of escaping the disease.

Country Homes Full of Disease

Every summer cottage that has remained empty during the winter months is in a condition which threatens the lives of any one who moves into it.

During the vacant period disease germs have perfect conditions for breeding in all the dark corners and in the sinks, toilets, cellars, etc., and it is criminal negligence to take one's family into one of these houses before it has been thoroughly cleaned and disinfected from "cellar to garret."

To accomplish this you should add a non-poisonous germicide like CN Disinfectant to the scrubbing and cleaning water and sprinkle it about everywhere, also allowing plenty of sunlight and fresh air to penetrate into every corner. Then you can safely move your dear ones into a country home.

SONS OF ITALY EAGER TO SING WITH CASAZZA

Conried's Successor With Metropolitan Opera Has Abundance of Latin Choristers.

Say, wonta you geev him da job?

NEW YORK, May 22.—Italian grand opera chorus singers have poured into New York by the hundreds since Signor Gatti-Casazza succeeded Heinrich Conried as director of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

That name, Casazza, is the magnet that draws. Many a son of Italy who has been forced to waste the sweetness of his voice on the desert air of a tenement fire escape and earn his bread by working as a street laborer now sees a chance to shine where he belongs, or thinks he does—behind the footlights.

Many Wish to Sing.

Signor Gatti-Casazza has received many letters from ambitious Italian singers in St. Louis, Cincinnati and Chicago asking him to give them a place in the monster Italian chorus which he is organizing.

When Herr Conried was at the head of the Metropolitan he often complained because Italian choristers wouldn't come his way.

Now all is changed. The magic of the name Casazza is already at work, and if he hires all of the applicants there will soon be a shortage of men in the repair departments of street railways in many cities.

Demand Is Great.

The demand for Italians in the Metropolitan chorus will be greater this year than ever before as Sig. Gatti-Casazza plans the production of at least half a dozen Italian operas which have never been sung in America.

PAINTING BY REMBRANDT NEGLECTED IN ART SALON

Canvas Was Supposed to Be the Work of Another Until Signature Was Found.

CHICAGO, May 22.—What may prove to be a master picture by the great Rembrandt, worth tens of thousands of dollars, is hanging at the Chicago Art Institute, catalogued and labeled as the work of another and inferior hand.

Not even the owner, Allison V. Armour of New Jersey knew the signature was there.

It is a somber painting of a young man, apparently of the early seventeenth century, is dark brown in tone and done in heavy shadow.

It is supposed by its owner to be worth some $4000 or $5000, but if it is a Rembrandt it is worth $50,000 or more.

Except under close observation and in bright sunlight, it bears no signature. On the frame is the name, "Ferdinand Bol." Bol was a pupil of Rembrandt.

WOMAN EMPTIES ASHES IN WRONG YARD AND IS ATTACKED

Flat Dweller Causes Neighbor's Arrest, Says He Struck Her With Shovel.

Mrs. Emily Hill, 51 years old, of 1441A Kentucky avenue, caused the arrest Thursday evening of John Mahon, who lives in the flat beneath her, charging him with assault. She told the police of the Magnolia Avenue Station that at 5 p. m. she went into the yard, which is used by both flats, to empty ashes. Unthinkingly, she emptied them on Mahon's side of the yard, and he became angry. During the quarrel Mahon struck her on the back with a shovel, she says, and then struck her in the face with his fist.

Mahon was locked up, but later released on bail. He is about 60 years old and refuses to discuss his arrest. The case was set for trial in the City Hall Police Court, but Mrs. Hill was unable to be present on account of her injuries, and it was continued.

EAST SIDE IMPROVEMENT CLUB ORGANIZES, LASTS FIVE MINUTES AND DISBANDS

"Silk Stocking" Element Forces Adjournment After a Row With the Minority.

Five minutes after the Alta Sita Improvement Association selected its name and fixed the initiation fee at $5, the organization disbanded. The "silk stocking" element forced the adjournment and no date was specified for another meeting. The members are residents of Alta Sita, a residence suburb of East St. Louis.

The club was organized two weeks ago and braved the storms of organization for three meetings. Only temporary officers were selected, and the objects of the club had not been outlined before dissension arose.

Thursday night Chairman Rudesill failed to name Alexander Flannigen, a lawyer, on the Executive Committee, Flannigen having made the motion that the committee be appointed.

Flannigen and his followers referred to the majority as the "silk stockings," and promised that last night's meeting would be a "live one." Rudesill did not attend the meeting last night and T. J. Canavan was made chairman. When the bylaws were presented, Flannigen's followers discovered that the boundary included only what he termed the "silk stocking" district and would cut out most of the minority members. A motion to adjourn was carried.

The "silks" met later at an Alta Sita drug store and informally outlined another club to be restricted to the Alta Sita territory only.

WOMEN HOLD SUNSHINE MEETING

Cabanne Branch Entertains Members From Others.

The Cabanne branch of the International Sunshine Society gave a reciprocity reception at the home of Mrs. Samuel Lloyd Jones, 5183 Maple avenue, Tuesday, from 2 to 5 o'clock. Many prominent club women attended.

The program included piano solos by Miss Margaret Reardon, recitations by Miss Ruth Wilson and Mrs. N. B. Stanza, a violin solo by R. Richter and a vocal solo by Miss Georgia O'Neill. Tables were presided over by Miss O'Neill, Misses Kalowsky, Mrs. Brace Jarrett and Mrs. Drew Jarrett. Mrs. Philip N. Moore spoke on sunshine work in Boston.

The "reciprocity" consisted in extending invitations to other branches that had invited the Cabanne branch to their receptions.

BLUECOAT SAVES A FAMILY FROM DEATH BY GAS

The family lives above Jacob Siedhoff's blacksmith shop at 1944 North Broadway.

Wetzel, passing the shop at 3 a. m., smelled gas and noticed that a light, usually kept burning in the shop, was out.

Running upstairs he tried to rouse the Vogt family. When they did not respond to his knocks he broke in the door.

All the members of the family were semi-conscious. The policeman opened the windows and worked with the family until all were out of danger.

An Open Letter to Dyspeptics.

"Do any of your readers suffer from dyspepsia or acute indigestion? No doubt many of them do, and I wish this space to tell of a very effective home-made medicine. I was a sufferer for nearly five years and obtained immediate and lasting benefits which I consider worth more than a thousand times the cost of these simple but powerful ingredients. Get at most any drug store one ounce compound essence Cardiol, two ounces essence of Pepsin and two ounces Syrup of Ginger. Mix together thoroughly and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. It is pleasant to the taste and gives much prompt relief. Because I had suffered so much and had doctored in vain for so long, I want to make this valuable formula known to all. Some drug stores may not keep all the ingredients, but can easily get them from wholesale firms who supply doctors and druggists. Ask for them and the trouble will repay any one.

Sincerely,
MRS. S. A. J."

P. S.—I am told this prescription cured Mr. Rockefeller three years ago.

GIVE US PUBLIC EXPERTS.

Employing an expert to chart its rate schedules and to inform the public whether or not its present rates are lower than its former rates, the Union Electric Co. practically admits that none but an expert, after a careful examination, can tell what the schedules mean in actual figures until the bills appear. Certainly the ordinary consumer of electricity is confused by the electrical terms, the complicated system of classifying and charging consumers, and the elaborate explanations of the system. He is at the mercy of the company.

There is but one way to find out whether the rates are reasonable and impartial—that is for experts representing the municipality to go through the books of the company and examine into the conditions of service. An investigation by an honest and efficient municipal commission would determine what rates would be fair to the public and to the corporation.

The public is entitled to protection from monopoly oppression. The company is entitled to a fair return for its service. The Municipal Assembly is empowered to regulate the public utility corporations in the interest of both. Let us have this regulation in the light of the facts. Let a good commission be created to report facts and conditions upon which reasonable rate schedules may be based.

The people should demand that the House of Delegates put through the commission bill.

A BREATH OF FRESH AIR.

The country will accept the report of the House committee which investigated Representative Lilley's charges of corrupt practices with respect to submarine boat legislation with a huge sigh of satisfaction.

For once seekers of evil have not found what they sought. After all the inquiries and investigations and general muck raking of the past three years, people had begun to fear that there was not one that doeth good, no not one. But it was a mistake. At least the persons aimed at in this investigation did not do evil. We should believe the committee whether we agree with all the particulars of the findings or not.

Let us give thanks for this breath of fresh air and pray that the bad odors which have laden the atmosphere these three years may be dissipated by an inflow of public decency and honest purpose. We are not so bad as we thought we were.

EMPLOYMENT THE TEST OF PROSPERITY.

If the National Prosperity Association can promote a general agreement among employers of labor to put men back to work on June 1, its mission will be achieved. If it can promote a sufficient resumption of labor to provide an impressive example to the country at large its mission will be well on the way to achievement.

The employment of men is the test of prosperity. Wage-earning is the sure guarantee of prosperity for everybody, and lies near the base, if it is not the base, of prosperity.

So, too, it is the wage-earner who is immediately and directly affected by industrial adversity, and it is he who deserves first attention, from the humanitarian as well as the business point of view. In any case, the condition of the wage-earner, the workingman, is the first interest of the nation.

If panic and sudden depression are due in great part to want of confidence, so to the same extent confidence may make and restore good times. Slow recoveries from similar hardships have been the rule in previous years, but it is equally true that the case has never been so clearly diagnosed as at present, and never has the trouble so largely appeared due to want of confidence.

With unimpaired resources and unimpaired finances, indeed, with the banks bulging with money that presses for occupation, we have a dislocation of industry which should speedily be reset and resumed. That it can be resumed to the full extent with profit by common agreement seems reasonable. No sane man can doubt the force of a common agreement, if such existed. No employer need fear the danger of an attempt, if a number of his brother employers will agree to set the factories smoking and the wheels turning at the same moment. Money is not afraid of the effort. The effort will have generous and unfailing support from finance.

The moment a date is set for resumption of closed or reduced industry on any considerable scale the effect will be immediate. Even though the date should be set more remotely, business would begin at once to anticipate the benefits.

The thoughtful intelligence of business men cannot fail to support the plan of the National Prosperity Association. Organized resumption must succeed, while a failure to take advantage of the certain promise thus held out presents an alternative of real dangers and prolonged distress.

HARMONY FOR WHAT?

The Democratic leaders and organs in the State are shouting over the apparent harmony achieved in the Jefferson City convention. All the factions in the party are represented in the State delegation sent to Denver. From the standpoint of the party organization to bring together in one delegation Stone and Reed, opponents of reform, with Folk, the reform leader, and Francis, the leader of the Gold Democratic wing, with the ardent supporters of Bryanism is an achievement which on its face points to a burying of hatchets and a settlement of differences.

But partisan harmony does not always spell political victory. That depends upon the significance of the harmony and what the factions have come together for. In this day of intelligent and independent voting the mere agreement of party leaders to co-operate for mutual personal advantage counts for little. Harmony for spoils regardless of principles or policies is not a slogan to win by.

If the harmony accomplished at the Democratic convention means compromise with vicious elements or bad policies, it will not help, but hurt, the party. If it means that the men who have discredited the party by betraying public to private interests and by using the party power to promote corporate greed are to be placed in control, it will mean the destruction of the party. If sound Democratic doctrine is to be sacrificed to populistic and socialistic vagaries the hope of Democratic victory is vain. If the reforms that have been accomplished in the State by the Folk reform movement are to be nullified and the reform policies abandoned to placate the boodle bosses and the tools of corporations, Missouri will be lost to the Democracy.

In this State, as in the nation, the Democratic party faces a crisis. If it forsakes its principles, if it abandons the policies that make for the public welfare, if it thrusts aside leaders who represent sound principles and sound, progressive policies to satisfy its rascals or to gather in political hoboes its opportunity will be lost.

FROM VOTERS TO VIGILANTES.

Woman's political evolution is going on with a rapidity that makes the conventional term seem slow and inadequate. From the purely philological standpoint it looks hardly possible to evolute at a gallop, yet that is what the women of Wyoming are doing before our eyes.

The women of Wyoming are not only going some, but have gone so far that they can never be headed off by mere man. We do not refer to their free and equal suffrage with men on all issues. They have gone far past the mark of advancement achieved in the ballot and are lording it over the cowering male inhabitants with the female posse comitatus and female vigilance committees.

Civilization pauses aghast, divided twixt fear and admiration, at the work of the lady vigilantes who yanked a wife beater out of bed the other night, snubbed him to a post with riatas, gave him 20 lashes on the bare back, untied him, ducked him in a barrel of water, tarred and feathered him and rode him clear out of town on a fence rail!

Law and order are enthroned in Wyoming with woman on top of them, scanning the plain for more conquests and it would appear wise for the rest of us to behave ourselves. If Wyoming should develop further Mesopotamian wonders in the shape of a Princess Xenobia mounted at the head of a troop of shapped and sombreroed Amazons breezily in quest of trouble it will be high time for effete masculinity and anemic mollycoddles to take to their cyclone caves and there ponder the question of which is the weaker sex. Hats off to the Wyoming sisters!

The London suffragettes who were clubbed by the police on Monday may be cheered by the news from Wyoming, where a posse of women voters tarred and feathered a man.

CONSTRUCTIVE WORK.

The Missouri Democratic convention acted wisely in singling out the improvement of the great waterways of the Mississippi Valley for its most important resolution. The principal work of a political party which expects to win the confidence and support of the people must be constructive. Provision for the future development of the country's trade and industry is a paramount duty.

No work offers greater opportunity not merely to promote the interests of the Mississippi Valley, but of the whole country, than the improvement of the valley's waterways. Foremost in this work—the first to be undertaken and completed—is the lakes-to-the-gulf channel. That is the pivotal project upon which the efficiency of other valley waterways depends.

And as the convention suggested, a continuous appropriation sufficient to complete the work to the best advantage in the shortest possible time is the right way to go about it.

Negroes and Intermarriage of Races.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Who is this self-appointed defender of the negro cause by name Grace Wright? The negroes of this city are well contented in having the dogs of war sleep. The above correspondent reminds one of the little steamboat with such a large whistle that every time it was blown it stopped the boat. The intermarrying of the blacks and whites is looked upon with as much disgust by the respectable negro as by the whites and the participants in such a wedding could be none other than degenerates and would not be received by either race socially. Let the Jap correspondent have them.

NEGRO GENTLEMAN.

One Kind of Hobo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I notice in the Post-Dispatch a letter signed "A Boomer," in which he desires to "set someone right" who, describes a hobo as a man who does construction work on railroads, etc. "A Boomer" says that a genuine hobo never soils his hands with any kind of manual labor. I have worked from twenty-five to one hundred and fifty hoboes for the last six years, and I want to set "A Boomer" right by saying that there is no better class of laborers on earth for construction and extra gang, pick and shovel and wheelbarrow, quarry work or any kind of common labor usually known as public work. They can be put a few in a place, without a boss, tell them what is wanted and they will do an honest, faithful day's work and do it right, as they nearly all know how to do this kind of work and do it to advantage—make every move count. They will not, as a rule, stay long on a job, but while they do stay there are no better workers.

ALL TRUE.

Wall Replies to Wixford.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Replying to Mr. Wixford's questions in the Post-Dispatch, I will say that there is no essential difference in principle between the use of sulphate of iron and lime for water purification as developed and used at Quincy, Ill., and the use of the same chemicals for the same purpose at St. Louis. The lack of perfect uniformity in the methods in use at the two places is due to the difference of conditions, necessitating changes in the manner of applying the chemicals as well as in the amounts used. The process used at St. Louis during the World's Fair and since, was not a discovery at all, but an adaptation of the Quincy process, modified to meet St. Louis conditions. The Quincy process was first suggested by Mr. W. B. Bull and installed at the Quincy Waterworks in July, 1902. I have not said that Mr. Wixford had or had not patents covering the use of sulphate of iron and lime for water purification, so that his Question 4 calls for no reply.

A GOLDEN DAY.

From the Indianapolis News.

The St. Louis scheme to make June 1 "employment day" ought to take a good deal of the blue out of that particular Monday, anyhow.

THE ST. LOUIS STREET RAILWAY CASE.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

In effect, the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States asserts the right and power of a municipality to exact a license fee, based upon the number of passengers carried, regardless of the omission of such a provision from the charter ordinance. It holds the city may impose this tax without the consent of the street railway companies affected. It does not fix the limit of such an exaction, but it is plainly of the opinion that 1 mill for each passenger is not "confiscatory" in the case of the St. Louis company. It might draw the line against 1 cent on each passenger, or on 2 mills, possibly, for the Supreme Court rules on no matters that are not before it. It is probable, however, that various councils will become active in trying to locate the limit.

THE GOOD MEDICINE.

From the Joplin (Mo.) News-Herald.

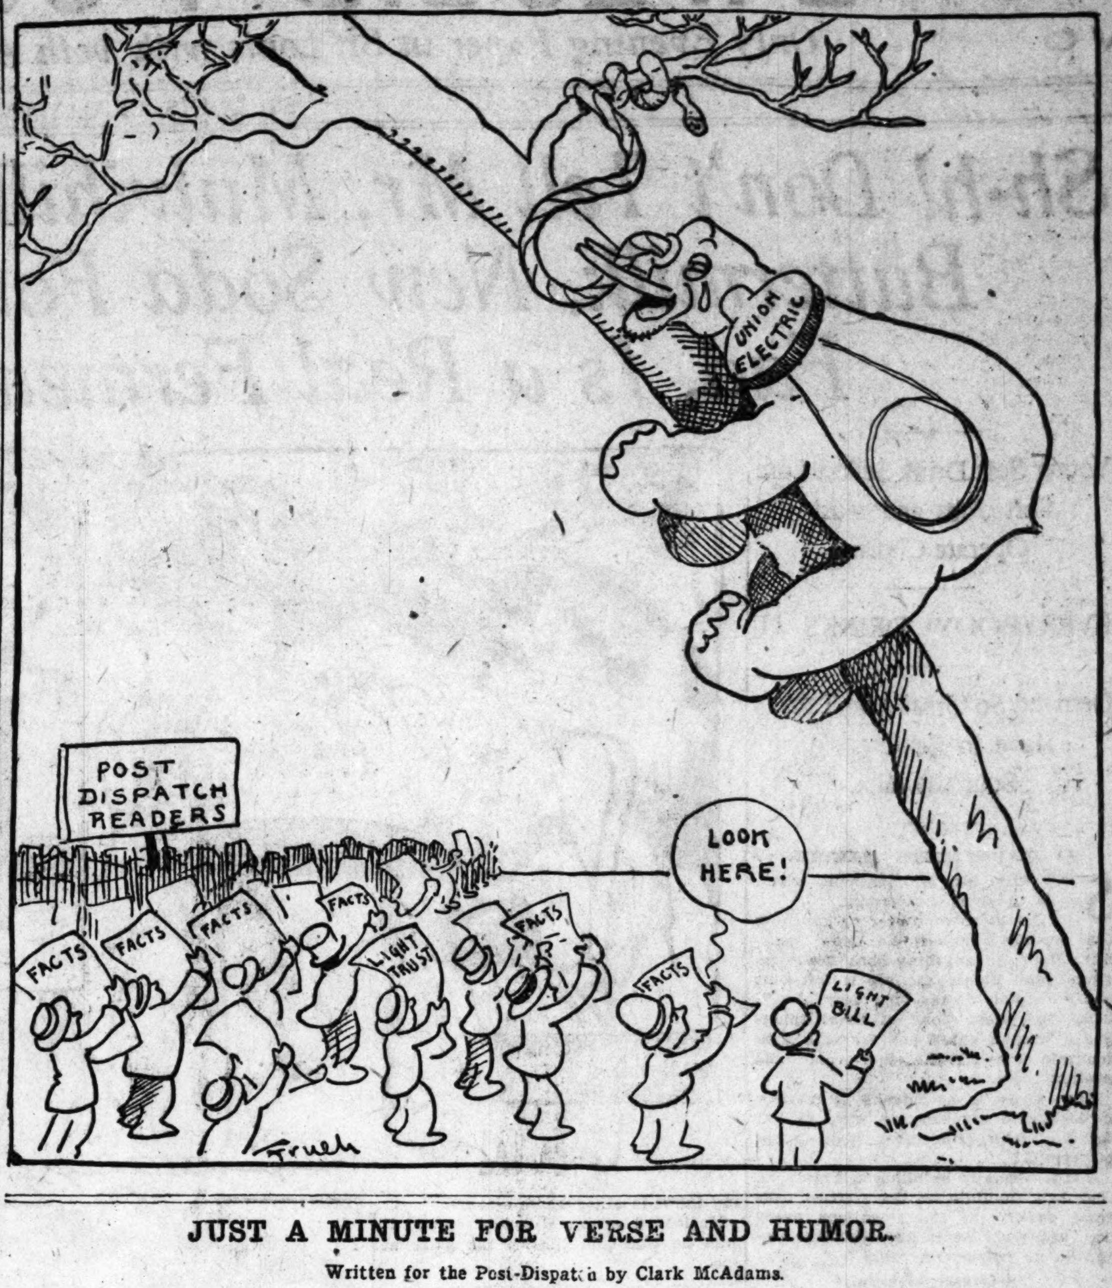
Sunshine societies are the proper caper in these days. St. Louis merchants have been gadding about the country—even penetrating the stygian finance darkness of the East—and spreading the gospel of prosperity. The country is catching on, feeling better for the smile and before long our troubles will be over. But Bryn Mawr College has gone the St. Louisans and their publicity bureau one better. The authorities of that institution have just awarded a prize to the member of the senior class who showed "throughout her four years in college in the highest degree the qualities of joyousness, high courage, fortitude and faithfulness." That such a prize is established in memory of a woman is the highest possible testimonial to her. Though temperament may have something to do with the manifestation of these fine qualities, it is largely a matter of self-training and victory over the natural pessimism of the individual. To win a prize for excellence in these qualities will be considered just about as valuable as a medal for Greek.

FOOLISH TACTICS.

From the St. Louis Mirror.

County conventions rigged and fixed by friends of Missouri's old gang continue to condemn and denounce the Post-Dispatch. This is good advertising for the Post-Dispatch. Every fellow who votes for the damnatory resolutions buys the paper regularly to read its reply. Other people read it because of the gang that hates it. But the people at large know that the Post-Dispatch is not denounced, as is alleged, for opposing Mr. Bryan, but for its attacks upon Senator Stone and others, like Ex-Secretary of State Sam B. Cook, who are thus tied up with Bryan. We think this is bad policy, because its tendency is to make people read the Post-Dispatch. This being the case, many people will read therein things against the Senator, Mr. Cook and others that cannot fail to hurt him and them. The Senator's friends were much wiser to ignore the Post-Dispatch and not to increase the publicity of the charges against the Senator and his crowd. Denunciation of a paper for criticism of public officials is poor business for Democratic conventions anyhow, especially as the people, at the polls, have ratified the paper's criticism by signally smashing such officials in 1904 when they were up for re-election. Why not denounce the whole Democracy of the State for defeating Sam Cook and Albert O. Allen?

LIGHT TRUST UP A TREE.



JUST A MINUTE FOR VERSE AND HUMOR.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

EXPLAINED.

A mad man paced behind the bars,
With frenzy in his eyes,
Which were distended till they seemed
To be of twice the size
Of normal orbs, and they were glazed
As eyes become when men are crazed.

"What ails you man?" a caller said,
With pity in his tone.
"Why are you here, with reason quite
Departed from its throne?
What was it, tell me, my good lad,
That made you mad, that made you mad?"

The patient rolled his frenzied eyes
And fingered at the door,
And then he did a little turn
Upon the limestone floor.
"Ah me," he said, and paced his cell,
"I tried to manage Rube Waddell."

PRACTICE.

AT LAST.

If what they are saying in the East is true, we are at last to have a presidential issue that we can all understand.

It is notorious that the tariff was never understood by the great mass of voters. Though Mr. Cleveland won the presidency twice upon a proposition to revise the tariff, and the Republicans several times triumphed upon proposals to fix it according to their notions, it is a fact that the rank and file of neither party understood the issue or could have made at the time an intelligible differentiation between an ad valorem and any other import tax.

The silver issue was even less understood. A great and enthusiastic body of voters followed Mr. Bryan in the cause of free coinage, and as many more went off under the gonfalon of Mr. McKinley whooping for gold. Neither side understood what it was all about, but they were as enthusiastic in voting for the one or the other as they could possibly have been had they been perfectly aware what they were doing.

But this time, if we are to believe what they say in the East, we are to have an issue that we can really understand. They have looked the whole thing over very carefully. The Democrats are not going to make the race on the tariff. The Philippines are no longer an issue. The State conventions have discovered nothing but the election of United States senators by the people and the diminishment of the powers of courts in the matter of injunctions, neither of which will do for a national issue. Both sides claim to be trust busters. Neither party opposes any of the reforms proposed by the other.

Therefore, we get at it very easily. The issue is to be—which do we like the better, Mr. Taft or Mr. Bryan?

Glory!

Col. Mose Swetmore ebbs and flows with the Bryan tide.

All campaign managers seem to be liars.

Swimming ought to be getting ripe.

MR. BEGGS COMES TO TOWN.

MR. BEGGS was down from Milwaukee, and dropped into the electric light office. After looking around downstairs a bit to see if they had a good deaf man hearing complaints, he took the elevator up to the corner office with the frosted door.

"Is that new rate contract ready?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. Here it is."

"So this is it! Let's see. Section 1. (Reads.) Rotten!"

"Rotten, sir?"

"Yes, rotten! Why, anybody can understand it!"

"Impossible, sir. We've tried it on several customers, and none of them could understand it."

"Ah! (Smiling.) Then we'll take it up later."

"Yes, sir."

"Now for Section 2: (Reads.) Great Scott, man! This is ruin! This will never do in the world!"

"No, sir?"

"Of course not! Any noodlehead can read this and make out just about what his electricity will cost him. Have you tried it on anybody?"

"Yes, sir."

"He had you arrested."

"No, sir; he signed it."

"Ah! (Smiling.) Then we'll take this up later, also."

"Yes, sir."

"Section 3: (Reads, scowling.) O, rotten—rotten—rotten!"

"Rotten again, sir?"

"Worse than rotten. Why, this reads like 'See the fish. Can the fish swim? Like a rubber duck!' It's ruin—ruin—ruin! It would take a stage villain to get anybody to sign a paper like that."

"Yes, sir; have we made it too plain what a kilowatt hour is?"

"Made it plain! Why, if you had come right out and said there are 27 minutes in a kilowatt hour you couldn't have made it plainer. A contract like this is like putting a placard on the strawberries saying 'Don't be deceived by the fruit on top—it's smaller below.' If you found a man drunk enough to sign this, his hand would shake so that we couldn't prove his signature."

"Yes, sir."

"Is there a Philadelphia lawyer in this town?"

"Yes, sir."

"Send for him—and tell him to be nimble about it."

"Yes, sir."

Write but one question. Sign but one initial. Legal questions must be simple. No bets decided. Business addresses not given. Address "Answers," Post-Dispatch.

W.—See Answers April 18.

A. R.—License for electric jobbing is necessary.

J. L.—Lighted or lit, says the Standard Dictionary.

CONSTANT.—We do not advise as to investments.

M. W.—Have a talk with the music store people about disposing of songs.

A.—Try writing War Department, Washington, to trace your Confederate soldier.

A. H. F.—Baseball club names: The Roosevelt, the Chadwick, the Olympics, the Delehanty.

BILLY.—We have no list of clubs, and therefore do not know names that have not been used.

READER.—Write Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, D. C., for employment as laborer.

STRANGER.—Topographical draftsmen are employed by railroads; salary in accordance with ability; minimum about $75 to $100.

X.—Business Men's League, Seventh and Locust, would probably give you full information as to where deep waterway facts may be obtained.

ANESLY.—You don't need a divorce to marry, never having been legally married, unless, perhaps, some trouble might come of a common-law marriage proved. See a lawyer.

HERBST.—Articles the growth, produce and manufacture of the United States, when returned after having been exported, without having been advanced in value or improved in condition by any process of manufacture or other means, may be imported free of duty. This does not apply to any article upon which an allowance of drawback has been made. Manufactured tobacco exported without payment of internal revenue tax is, when reimported, retained until internal revenue stamps in payment of legal duties have been placed upon it.

B.—Colored Universities: Atlanta, Atlanta, Ga.; Claflin, Orangeburg, S. C.; Clark, Atlanta, Ga.; Fisk, Nashville, Tenn.; Knoxville, Knoxville, Tenn.; Leland, New Orleans; Morris Brown, Atlanta; Shaw, Raleigh, N. C.; State, Louisville, Ky.; Walden, Nashville, Tenn.; Wiley, Marshall, Tex.; Colleges, Talladega, Ala.; Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.; Scotia Seminary, Concord, N. C.; Colleges with no restrictions as to color: A. and M. Institute, Rochester, N. Y.; Talladega, Talladega, Ala.; University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn.

BETSY.—The cheaper variety of ostrich plumes are never in a very presentable condition after once losing their original fluffiness. Seldom can they be made dainty in the manner which freshens plumes. The curling iron may be used to great advantage in giving cheap plumes a fresh appearance. The curler must not be too warm, and care must be taken in catching the feathers to have the sheath side of the curlers on the upper side, or the tip ends will be reversed. Take only a few feathers at a time, curl toward the stem and gently pull apart with a hairpin. They will stay in curl until worn on a damp day.

WANT TO BE SURE.—There may be people in the Highlands of Scotland who could not carry on a conversation in English and who depend on Gaelic for intercourse, but they are few in number and very old people. In some sections, although a fair English education has been had, facility of expression has been impaired through the constant use of Gaelic in the homes. During the Skye-crofter trials in the High Court of Justiciary, Edinburgh, Scotland, some 23 years ago, many of the witnesses objected to testify, saying "a hevna the English." Being compelled to, they were complimented by the Court on their proficiency.

A.—If the hair is to be brightened it should first be thoroughly washed with a shampoo which contains no ammonia, and dried with a hot water brush, which is the most rapid way of drying the hair now known. Then wet the hair with a teaspoonful of chemically pure peroxide of hydrogen, diluted in a teacupful of water, then dried as before. Should one wish to lighten the hair very perceptibly, it is wet after the preliminary shampoo with half water and half peroxide. Peroxide used in this manner is not injurious. Ammonia is never to be used in connection with it, for ammonia used on bleached hair will ultimately destroy the constitution of the hair.

SUFFERER.—As to snoring, Dr. S. W. Tufts (American Medicine) has had difficulty in controlling mouth-breathing by the ordinary methods. A simple plan of overcoming the difficulty is to fasten the lips together with a piece of silk isinglass court-plaster. He has used this method, and finds it as popular as the ordinary headgears are objectionable. For a number of years he has made mouth-breathing a subject of careful observation. He finds that 90 per cent of his patients with acute and chronic diseases of the respiratory tract are mouth-breathers at night. Stenosis must be relieved in every case, but this is not sufficient to overcome the mouth-breathing, which remains as a fixed habit.

SMALL.—(Supplementary answer). A writer familiar with Indians says: It is not wholly correct to say that Indians never have a beard or mustaches. Indian women probably do not, or the Wild West show would carry a bearded squaw; but bucks sometimes have mustaches, and now and then one has a beard. Keokuk, for whom the Iowa port was named, was a bearded Indian. Vincente, a full-blood chief of the Navajos, has a very decorative pair of mustaches. A mustache or a beard distinguishes an Indian above his fellows, which probably explains why these facial adornments are less infrequent among chiefs than among subjects. However, the race is smooth-faced in the main, and is ethnically classified as beardless.

H. K.—Fishing law: It shall be unlawful to take, catch or kill any fish in any of the waters of this State, by means of any seine, trammel net, gill net, fish trap, or any other kind of net, trap, device or means other than by the ordinary hook and line, gig, spear or trotline. This shall not apply to any ponds or reservoirs wholly on the premises belonging to any person using such device; but the use of seine and trammel nets shall be allowed all residents in their own county to catch fish for their own family consumption during June, July, August, September and November. This shall not apply to such ponds, lakes, sloughs and bayous as are formed by the overflow of the running streams within or bordering on this State and lying wholly on deeded land. Any person may use a small seine not more than 20 feet in length and 4 feet in width, known as a minnow seine, for catching minnows to be used for bait only. (No fishing license required.)

BUSYBODY.—Largest city in each State: Alabama, Birmingham; Arkansas, Little Rock; California, San Francisco; Colorado, Denver; Connecticut, New Haven; Delaware, Wilmington; Florida, Jacksonville; Georgia, Atlanta; Illinois, Chicago; Indiana, Indianapolis; Iowa, Des Moines; Kansas, Kansas City (opposite Kansas City, Mo.); Kentucky, Louisville; Louisiana, New Orleans; Maine, Portland; Maryland, Baltimore; Massachusetts, Boston; Michigan, Detroit; Minnesota, Minneapolis; Missouri, St. Louis; Montana, Butte; Nebraska, Omaha; New Hampshire, Manchester; New Jersey, Newark; New York, New York; North Carolina, Charlotte; Ohio, Cleveland; Oklahoma, Oklahoma City; Oregon, Portland; Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Rhode Island, Providence; South Carolina, Charleston; Tennessee, Memphis; Texas, San Antonio; Utah, Salt Lake City; Vermont, Burlington; Virginia, Richmond; Washington, Seattle; West Virginia, Wheeling; Wisconsin, Milwaukee; Wyoming, Cheyenne; North Dakota, Fargo; South Dakota, Sioux Falls.

THE ROMANCE OF LOVE-MAKING

A Series of True Stories From the Lives of the World's Greatest Men.

BY THORNTON HALL.

Copyright, 1908, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS. The earlier instalments described the romantic and unusual beginnings of famous men's love affairs (the love stories of Washington, Franklin, Garibaldi, Ruskin, etc.); the history and philosophy of kissing and certain strange ways whereby wives have been wooed and won. Historic love-letters form the theme of one chapter, and celebrated fictional proposals of marriage are cited in another.

CHAPTER VIII.

How the Men Actually Propose.

ONE of the most remarkable matrimonial offers ever penned was surely that of George Whitefield, who wrote thus to the parents of the lady he wished to wed: "This comes like Abraham's servant to Rebekah's relations to know whether you think your daughter, Miss E., is a proper person to engage in such an undertaking? If so, whether you will be pleased to give me leave to propose marriage to her? You need not be afraid of sending me a refusal, for, I bless God, if I know anything of my own heart, I am free from that foolish passion which the world calls love. I write only because I believe it is the will of God that I should alter my state; but your denial will fully convince me that your daughter is not the person appointed by God for me."

To the lady herself Whitefield wrote: "I make no profession to you. The passionate expressions which carnal lovers use, ought, I think, to be avoided. I can only promise to keep my matrimonial vow."

"I am convinced that I could never make your happy," wrote another "poor worm" to the lady who had won his heart. "You are of a different world from mine. You are to me as white marble to dull red clay. The devotion of my life would not recompense you for the sacrifice you would make in marrying me. I know I can never hope to make you happy, but if you think otherwise let me know by return." The woman who could accept so craven a lover as this can scarcely hope to be complimented on her judgment or on her capture.

That pity may (as, no doubt, it often does) pave the way for Cupid was proved by the experience of William Blake, the famous painter. One day he was describing to Miss Catherine Boutcher the shameful way in which a certain coquette had trifled with his affections. The young lady listened, with eyes moist with sympathy, to the tale of his woes, and when the recital was ended, said tenderly, "I pity you from the bottom of my heart." "You pity me?" exclaimed Blake, in pleased surprise. "Then if you pity me I love you for it." "And I love you," was Miss Boutcher's prompt and frank rejoinder.

It was a similar sentiment that led to Boswell's unhappy marriage with Miss Montgomerie. A pretty Irish girl had played sad havoc with Boswell's heart, alternately transporting him to the seventh heaven of rapture with her smiles and plunging him in the depths of despair by her frowns, and had crowned her cruelty by laughing in his face when in desperation he sued for her hand in marriage. When he poured out his troubles in the ears of his fair cousin, Margaret Montgomerie, that lady's sympathy so affected him that he proposed to her on the spot.

Bismarck's iron resolution was never better demonstrated than in his love-making. At his very first meeting with the lady who was to share his life for so many years he proposed to her and was accepted; and on the following day, presenting himself at the house of her parents, who knew him only as a young man of undesirable reputation, he demanded the young lady's hand and refused to leave the house until his suit was granted.

Gainsborough's wooing was made almost absurdly easy for him. He had completed a portrait of Miss Burr, a charming young lady of 16 summers, when his fair sitter was so delighted with her presentment that she more than hinted that while she took the copy the artist might claim the original. Gainsborough was not the man to decline such a tempting offer, and closed with it right on the spot.

Probably no gallant who ever laid his heart at a fair lady's feet was more undecided than Lord Byron when he wrote the letter which committed him to his unhappy marriage with Miss Milbanke. He had just proposed to another lady and as he held her letter of refusal in his hand he said to a friend:

"It seems that it is to be Miss Milbanke after all. I will write to her."

He sat down and wrote the "fatal letter," handing it to his friend for perusal. "A very pretty letter," the friend remarked after reading it. "It's a pity that it shouldn't go." "Then it shall go," exclaimed Byron; and thus opened one of the most tragic chapters of his checkered life story.

Edison's method of wooing was very characteristic. One day he strolled into one of his workrooms and stood behind the chair of a pretty operator who was absorbed in her work. The girl glanced round, and looking shyly up at him, said:

"I knew it was you, Mr. Edison! I always know when you are near."

He answered, to her amazement:

"I've been thinking a great deal about you lately, and if you are willing to marry me I would like to marry you." A month later the pretty employe was promoted to a partnership which she has never since regretted.

Spohr won his wife with equally dramatic suddenness. After playing a duet at a concert with Dorette Scheidler, a beautiful and gifted harpist, and while the tumult of applause was still ringing in their ears, he said to his companion, "Shall we play together thus through life?" For answer "the lady burst into tears and sank into his arms." What answer could be more conclusive or eloquent?

But Cupid had a hundred devices to aid lovers in the formidable task of proposing. It was, for instance, through the innocent medium of a book that Spurgeon won his wife. One day, while reading Tupper's "Proverbial Philosophy," he came to the lines:

"If thou art to have the wife of thy youth, she is now living on the earth;
Therefore pray for her and think of her

and, pointing out the couplet to the girl he loved, he asked, "Do you pray for him who is to be your husband?"

But even when the lady declines to lend a helping hand to her coy wooer, there are other ways out of the difficulty, as that desperate lover found who, after shivering in silence for a quarter of an hour on the brink of a proposal, turned to the cat at his lady's feet and said:

"Pussy, won't you ask Lizzie if she will marry me?" The ice was broken, and Lizzie promptly accepted the cat's mediation.

Oliver Wendell Holmes tells a pretty story of a young couple who were walking to the nearest town by a field footpath. The lady had a basket, of which her escort politely relieved her. "I wish," the gentleman ventured, after a long period of silence, "you would let me carry your basket—always." "With pleasure," was the maiden's answer; and so they went the rest of the way hand in hand, and agreed to carry the basket between them all their life.

When Schumann, the famous composer, fell head over heels in love with Clara Wieck, his master's daughter, his path of courtship was by no means one of roses, for Herr Wieck had no wish to see his only daughter the wife of a penniless musician, and forbade the young lovers to hold any communication with each other. But love laughs at parental frowns; and as Schumann was not allowed even to write to his lady-love he poured out his soul to her in a series of "Letters to Clara," printed in a musical journal of which he was editor. When the time was ripe for setting his destiny he made music the vehicle of his passion. He actually proposed to Clara on the piano under the very nose of her father, without a single word being uttered; and received her joyful assent through the same medium.

One day when Dr. Dawson, eloquent preacher of a century ago, called to see Miss Corbett, a wealthy admirer of his oratory, for whom he had conceived a not altogether Platonic affection, he found her reading the Bible. Stealing up behind her, he looked over her shoulder to see what she was reading; when, without showing any recognition of his presence, the lady's forefinger rested on the words of Nathan to David, "Thou art the man." Even a less marked hint would have been sufficient for Dr. Dawson; and we cannot wonder that Miss Corbett soon changed her name.

The romantic story of the late Lord Kelvin's proposal is perhaps better known. In the early seventies Sir William Thompson, as the great scientist was then, was dining with some friends at Madeira when he endeavored to explain to them his improved method of signalling at sea. The only person, however, who appeared to grasp its technicalities was his host's daughter, Miss Blandy, whose charm and intelligence had won his admiration.

"I quite understand," she said at the close of his explanation. "Are you sure?" Sir William asked. "If I sent you a signal from my yacht, do you think you could read and answer it?" "Oh, yes," was the confident answer, "I feel sure I could make it out." The next morning the signal was sent and deciphered. The question was, "Will you marry me?" and swiftly the answer sped back, "Yes."

THUMB READING.

THE closer the thumb is set to the wrist, the greater the amount of amiable qualities a person possesses. And, conversely, the higher on the hand the thumb is set, the lower the order of his mental and moral make-up.

Monkeys' thumbs abut from the hand at a point close to the fingers. The closer to this formation a human being comes, the more monkey-like intelligence and character he is apt to have.

A thumb set very close to the wrist shows sympathy for all in distress, great generosity, independence, love of liberty for self and others, and a readiness to share with the unfortunate.

When the second phalanx of the thumb is much longer than the nail-phalanx, there is a discordant relation between reason and will.

Reason preponderates to such an extent that the entire life is spent in planning what to do, without ever doing.

A person of this kind sees clearly what is best for him, but lacks determination to put it into execution.

He sees the goal and the steps necessary for attaining it; but in the same glance he takes in all the obstacles, and, while he is pondering the matter the opportunity to win success escapes.

WOMEN DO THE UGLY WORK.

DISCUSSING "The Woman Out of a Job" before the conference of the Woman's League of New York State, at the Waldorf-Astoria, Herbert N. Carson gave these facts and figures:

"There are 6,000,000 women in the United States who toil for a living.

"What do they do? Crochet and embroider and tat? No; they do the dirtiest work in the world.

"All the skyscrapers in New York are cleaned by women, who get down on their knees and scrub the floors.

"The necessities of self-support among them is so pressing that they have invaded all but nine of the 303 occupations listed by the Census Bureau.

"They are moving up from servants to scientists, from janitors to journalists.

"There are 8000 women carpenters, 508 women machinists.

"One-half of the single women of the country, one-half of the divorced women and one-third of the widows are supporting themselves.

"There are 750,000 women working in New York State and 400,000 working in the City of New York.

FACTS ABOUT NATIONAL FORESTRY

In area the national reservations west of the Mississippi River cover 234,170 square miles, or 149,869,000 acres.

There is being spent in the Western States $40,000,000 for reclamation, and $5,000,000 is needed at once for the Eastern States. Proposed Eastern forest reservation include 660,000 acres, or 1030 square miles, in the White Mountains, and 5,000,000 acres, or 7800 square miles, in the Southern Appalachians. In 1907 President Roosevelt added 17,000,000 acres to the Western forests, and a bill is pending in Congress to provide for the two national forest areas in the Eastern mountains, with a preliminary appropriation of $5,000,000.

Beans vs. Meat

Beans and meat have about the same food value, but not the same cost

Which would you rather serve?

Beans are 23 per cent nitrogenous—84 per cent nutriment. They are Nature's choicest food. If you could serve them once a day, think how much you would save on your meat bills.

Will it not pay you to get the best beans—beans that are always ready—beans that your people will want?

Encourage your folks to eat beans. They are appetizing, hearty, cheap

You who serve home-baked beans don't serve them often, because they are hard to prepare and hard to digest.

Beans, to be digestible, must be factory cooked. Your oven isn't hot enough; you can't break down their fibre.

And beans should be baked in live steam, as ours are. Then they are mealy and nutty and whole.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

The beans that we buy cost $2.10 per bushel. Other beans sell as low as 30 cents.

We spend five times as much to make our tomato sauce as other sauce costs ready-made.

That's why some brands may be cheaper. But the most economical, in the long run, are those that your people like.

Our beans, our tomato sauce and our pork are baked 90 minutes together

Thus we get our delicious blend.

And Van Camp's have a nutty flavor, a sparkling zest, a piquant tang that you can't get in other brands.

Keep a dozen cans in the house—a dozen meals always ready. For you will eat more beans than you think you will, when you once get a taste of Van Camp's.

10, 15 and 20¢ per can.

TRAINER QUIRK HAS BROUGHT THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH TO THE BROWN VETERANS GIANTS USE SIGN LANGUAGE AS PLAYING SIGNALS, McGRAW ADOPTING TAYLOR "TALK" GOSSIP

DINNEEN, FULL OF ELECTRICITY, YOUNG AGAIN

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

BOSTON, May 22.—About the sweetest piece of news James McAleer, our leader of the Browns, has heard since starting East, was whispered in his ear last night. Big Bill Dinneen, that grand pitcher of former days, quietly approached his manager and said he was ready for business. Bill thinks his arm is in shape now to pitch the same kind of baseball for the Browns as he did for Boston back in 1903 and 1904, when the Bean Team captured the pennant in the American League.

Mr. McAleer has been chuckling and whistling to himself ever since these words beat their way to his mind, for it is on "Big Bill" that McAleer is basing his hopes for success this year.

Dinneen and Powell and Howell are all brainy pitchers. Give them good arms along with their brains and experience, and the Browns are bound to win a lot of games.

Dinneen's quick conditioning has been due to the work of Trainer Joe Quirk and his little buzzing electric battery that he is using every day. He will soon have the whole team charged with electricity and then it should work like lightning. Dinneen took most kindly to the little battery and the vigorous rubbings of Trainer Joe right from the start, and the result in his case has been remarkable.

Like Fountain of Youth.

"I feel just like fighting someone all the time," said the big twirler. "That electricity seems to drive out all the tired and lazy feelings a fellow has and fill him up with youth and vigor again. I would have laughed if anyone would have told me before that it had such powers. But it does the work all right, and it's me for it all the time. Wish I had tried it two or three years ago."

After rain broke up the contest between the Browns and Red Sox ("Red Sox" by request, as Bostonians take delight in it and ask that the name be copied) the two teams will clash in what will really be the first game today.

It is not likely that a double-header will be played this trip to get rid of yesterday's game. If that rain had delayed about five minutes longer the Browns might have been forced to accept a licking. Four full innings had been played and the Boston nine was one run to the Browns' nothing.

Half Inning Saved Browns.

If the Browns had played just another half inning and failed to score Boston would have won the game. But the kind weather king for once favored the Browns and hung out his "wet" sign just in time to chop the contest up without being a full game.

Harry Howell was pitching for the Browns and could not get his wing flapping properly at the start of the game. He appeared to grow stronger, and it is quite likely that Boston's one run would not have won the game had it gone the full nine innings.

The Browns were just beginning to pick on the curves of the clever little lefthand thrower, Burchell, whom "Papa" McGuire sent to the slab for Boston. He is about the quickest flinger we have seen since the days when Pat Flaherty, now of the Boston National Club, was at his best.

For three innings he held the Browns hitless, then after two were out in the fourth, Stone sent a lucky single on the bound over Unglaub's head and Williams drove him to third with a hot single. But the two runners died there when Wallace grounded to short.

Red Sox Hit Luckily.

McConnell started with a single to left and Lord followed with another to the same spot. Cravath tried to sacrifice and bunted a pop right behind Howell, and that, too, was scored as a hit, and the bases were full.

Spencer got Laport's pop foul, Howell scooped Carrigan's grounder, getting the runner at first, but the man on third got home. Unglaub's grounder was handled by Ferris. The home team did not come close to scoring again, although twice they got a man to second.

CRUSINBERRY'S COMMENT.

Hobe Ferris was cheered and applauded loudly when he went to bat the first time by his old Boston friends, but he did not get any gun and fishing rod and he didn't jump the club last night.

Shortstop Wagner of the Boston team made a great impression on the fans last year, but he never has learned to hit.

Manager McGuire says he has another nine on the bench almost as good as the one in the field.

Roy Schweitzer once more played in Hoffman's place because a left-handed pitcher was working.

Old Cy Young was out batting flies to the Boston outfielders and he appeared better than last year. He will probably pitch the Saturday game.

Bobby Wallace came near being injured by the rough-house work of Wagner in the second inning. Bob was at second and taking a big lead when he was caught by a quick throw by Burchell. Wagner literally walked all over Wallace as he tried to sprawl back to the bag.

RANDALL M. A. C. BOXING MENTOR

Eddie Randall, the clever St. Louis fighter, has been engaged as boxing instructor for the Missouri A. C. to succeed "Brooklyn" Tommy Sullivan, resigned. Randall will not take his new position until Sept. 1, when he will form boxing classes at the club and will also take charge of the amateur boxing squad at the club. Randall was appointed boxing instructor of the club at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Missouri A. C. held last night at the club.

Randall is a light weight. He is young, but exceedingly clever, and besides has a hard punch. He started out in preliminaries at the old West End Club and did not lose a fight. He defeated a number of big men afterwards in bouts for side wagers and for purses and suffered one defeat. Billy Courtney, the "fighting motorman," and Randall fought at Alton, Ill. Courtney was unable to lay a corner by one of Courtney's rushes and before he could recover stumbled and Courtney sent over a swing that sent Randall down and out.

Randall has not made a business of fighting, as he is a quiet-mannered young fellow and holds a good position with a news agency.

The annual interscholastic league championship baseball game between the Central High School and Smith Academy baseball teams scheduled to be played at Kulage Park this afternoon has been postponed. The date for playing the contest has not yet been agreed upon.

FINGER TALK AND CRANDALL BEAT LOCALS

Dummy Taylor's Language Used by McGraw to Run the Giants.

Manager John McGraw may not need his well-advertised pitcher, Christy Mathewson as badly as he supposed if a certain Mr. Crandall, who showed in the larger part of yesterday's game against the Cardinals continues to pitch the kind of baseball that helped the Giants to beat the locals 8 to 4 yesterday.

Beginning in the second half of the fourth inning, this youngster twirled out the game and the Cardinals, although they started out with every evidence of winning the second game of the series, were closed up like a jackknife. But one single was made off Crandall and but two men got to first base during his tenure of the box, an error giving one man a pass.

In antithesis, the work of the Cardinals' pitching department was saffron-hued. McCloskey's boxmen have been heralded as the greatest in the National League. Within a space of a week the fans have seen Beebe, Fromme and Karger badly battered and bent.

Karger Off Badly.

Yesterday Eddie Karger started in to work for the Cardinals. Despite a four-run lead in three innings, which the Cardinals batted out on "Dummy" Taylor, who opened the contest for New York, Karger was unable to hold his advantage. He had been scored against twice and had passed men to the bags until Fromme, when the umpire chased Karger to the bench for questioning a decision, inherited such a burden that he was extremely fortunate to close up accounts with New York at a sacrifice of two more runs.

But Fromme was anything but a world-beater yesterday. Following his advent to the game the Giants continued to seek and find his curves and four more runs swelled their total before the game was over.

Taylor Not At Best.

"Dummy" Taylor is evidently not at his best, like McGinnity and Mathewson. The man who is responsible for the most unique signal code in baseball was a mark for the Cardinals. A double and a triple, coupled with Nicklin's fumble on Charles' grounder, a force out and a long fly, netted two runs off the deaf mute in the first inning. In the third, with two men out, Delehanty and Konetchy's safeties, followed by O'Rourke's timely rap, netted two more runs, and Dummy was chased to the bench in favor of Crandall.

If "Dummy" never does another thing in his life he will be worth doing in oil and hanging in the Brush mansion. Since his advent to the team it has become necessary for every member of the aggregation to acquire a working knowledge of how to talk with the hand. In a game Taylor's only method of communicating with his captain or manager has been through the mute's finger language, and so through his presence on the club, all the team members have become familiar with the employment of this means of communication.

Runs Team by Fingers.

Realizing the value of this in running his team, McGraw has had his men pay especial attention to it until now al' his plays from the bench are described in digital terms.

It was for his failure to follow signals delivered in this manner in the first Giants-St. Louis game here that Doyle was taken off the regular team at the outset of yesterday's game and replaced by Nicklin.

OLSEN WINS IN SPRINTING BOUT

Charles Olsen almost covered the Marathon distance of 25 miles in his wrestling match with Frank Gotch at the Standard Theater last night, as Gotch chased Olsen hard for 15 minutes and Olsen traveled about the stage at about a 10-second clip for the entire time.

Olsen, nevertheless, got another $100 of the world's champion wrestler's money as Gotch could not put his shoulders to the mat inside of the stipulated 15 minutes.

Olsen also lasted 15 minutes with Gotch Tuesday night. It is probable that Jim Prokus, the Greek, will oppose Gotch this evening.

COOK MAKES WINNING ON TWO

NEW YORK, May 22.—Fred Cook, the St. Louis turfman and bookmaker, won his first money from the Eastern Racing associations yesterday, when his two horses, Lawrence P. Dailey and Tom Dolan, won. The former horse began the day well and the latter galloped away with the last race.

Both winners were at odds on, but as Cook was confident they would win, he bet enough money on each to win the expenses of his stable for many months.

Penn Crew Is Winner.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—The University of Pennsylvania crew defeated the New York University eight in a hard two-mile race on the Schuylkill River yesterday by three and a half lengths in 8m. 51s.

GOLF TITLE TO REST BETWEEN THE STICKNEYS

Brothers Almost Certain to Meet in City Tournament Final.

Stuart G. Stickney and W. Arthur Stickney, brothers and both members of the Country Club, are almost certain to win their matches in the semi-final round of the annual tournament for the city golf championship on the Glen Echo Country Club links this afternoon, weather permitting, and, if they do win, they should furnish a great contest when they clash in the final contest of 36 holes tomorrow.

Stuart Stickney is playing better tournament golf in the present tournament than he ever displayed in competition before. Arthur Stickney's fine putting has won over all the "wise" followers of the game to the belief that he will retain his title of champion of the city won last year by defeating his brother in the final match Saturday.

Today's matches will be at 18 holes, Arthur Stickney being paired with W. R. Orthwein and Stuart Stickney with Jesse Carleton. Orthwein lacks Stickney's experience. He does not play the golf that Stickney does, as he has only been competing in local tournaments for a comparatively short time. Stuart Stickney will no doubt have the harder competition in his match with Jesse Carleton. The big Glen Echo champion is playing his best game right now, and yesterday defeated Bart S. Adams, former State champion, 2 up and 1 to play. William Duffy, golf professional at the Glen Echo Club, declares that Carleton is playing the best golf he ever did in his life, and that anybody that counts him out of the championship final does not know what he is talking about.

Arthur Stickney's Good Game.

Arthur Stickney is a hard man to beat right now also. He always has a few speed notches in reserve and when he cuts loose he can speed up at quite a lively rate. His defeat of Chris Kenney of the Algonquin Club was quite a creditable performance, as Kenney had been playing fine golf. Stickney holed one 30-foot putt and also sent in several others from almost the edge of the green. Stickney had always been a strong driver and a good man on the approach, but when he started rolling the ball into the cup from the edge of the green his friends opened their eyes.

Stuart Stickney's defeat of Ralph McKittrick of the Country Club, former city champion on two different occasions, and former State champion, is the best feather that has been placed in his cap in a long time, especially as Stuart showed an abundance of gameness and did not "blow up" or weaken when he found himself in a tight place. McKittrick was off in his approach shots yesterday. Usually McKittrick can make a bad drive, but on the approach shot he recovers.

High Wind Blowing.

A gale was blowing when the men started out yesterday. Stickney had made the low score in the qualifying round, 76, but McKittrick was generally expected to win from Stickney, as it was not figured that Stickney could stand the strain of playing McKittrick.

GANS-NELSON BOUT WILL BE BATTLE, SAYS EDGREN

Distance Will Give Both Men Opportunity to Deliver Gruelling Punishment— The Men Sized Up.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, May 22.—It has been many moons since two great world's championship matches have been made within a day of each other.

This week has been a record breaker. First Burns signs for the fight with Johnson, leaving it to the big Zulu to make good all of his bluffs and come to time; then Gans suddenly comes to terms with Battling Nelson and signs for a 45-round contest instead of the 20-round for which he has been holding out.

Gans and Nelson have been hanging fire for a long time. Neither one, to tell the truth, has tripped over his own feet in anxiety to chase the other fellow into a corner. Neither one has forgotten by any means that terrible gruelling 42 rounds at Goldfield.

What a contrast Willie Britt is to Bill Nolan, former manager of the Dane. Nolan would have been haggling yet, and then some. Britt merely came into the august presence of James Coffroth, promoter, and Selig, representative of Joe Gans, nodded when the proposed terms of proposed contest were read, curtly declined Gans offer of a $5000 side bet and slapped his signature to the articles.

Make no mistake—this will be a fight. Nelson may have taken a slip or two back since he entered the ring with Gans on that famous day. In fact, it might be said that Gans shoved him, for no fighter living can take Gans' wallops for 42 rounds without an after-effect.

As for Gans, probably the constant digging into his vitals that formed the greater part of Nelson's fighting did him no good. When all is said and done Gans may have come out of the fight in much better shape than Nelson, but he didn't come out without a scratch. The body pounding that made Gans lie in his chair like a sick man after the fortieth round—a seasick man—must have had its after effect, too.

Gans has done some great fighting since the Goldfield affair. He has whipped some good men and some that were just fair second-raters. His fight with Hermann was a joke. Kid Hermann was a good preliminary boy. Jimmy Britt had already lost his old fighting nerve when Gans beat him. Memsic—another joke—for Gans played with him and purposely let him stay 20 rounds so that he could "retire," hand Memsic "the title" on a platter for a while, and let new victims spring up. Unholz was the toughest of the lot—but easy at that.

Up to date Joe Gans has not shown a sign of the long-expected retrogression.

Nelson's case is a little different. It was 10 months after the Goldfield fight before he entered the ring again, and Jimmy Britt whipped him to a frazzle in 20 rounds, but could not knock him out. Six months later Nelson emerged and knocked out tough Jack Clifford in five rounds. Then he fought a sloppy 10 rounds with Britt in Los Angeles—an even fight. Boer Unholz outfought Nelson 10 rounds in the same ring. But the Boer never had Nelson winging. He just had the best of a 10-round mixup. Nelson very seldom made any sort of a showing in his short fights but this. He is essentially a stayer—a plugger. He fights along at a hard clip, without any brilliant spots, until something drops.

So Nelson's 10-round battles give a very poor line on what he is still able to accomplish in a finish affair. The Dane has never been knocked out. No one knows just what his limit may be.

If Gans knocks Nelson out this time he might as well retire for a while and let a new crop come up—a crop of youngsters that will not be afraid to meet him. Packey McFarland will probably be the first of these. McFarland is interested in Gans now, but wisely prefers waiting for the old master's bones to grow brittle before running against Joe's fists.

GOOD BLOOD

NATURE'S PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE

The preservation of health and prevention against disease is almost entirely dependent upon pure, healthy blood; every organ, tissue, nerve and sinew of the body draws on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength. Poisons, humors and germs from various sources often get into the blood, and then this great life stream becomes a source of infection and disease, instead of a nourishing, health-sustaining fluid. Heredity is likewise an important factor, regulating the quality of the blood. Some persons are born with tainted blood from diseased ancestry, and Scrofula in one of its numerous forms is sure to crop out some time in life. Not only poisons in the blood are responsible for disease, but when the circulation is run down and becomes poor and weak in quality, then we see the effect in a general bad condition of health, such as weakness, sallow complexions, boils, and various skin eruptions. All blood troubles require a tonic and blood purifier, and none other equals S. S. S. It goes down to the very foundation of the trouble, and removes every particle of the poison or impurity from the blood. And not only does S. S. S. antidote the poisons, humors and germs, but it possesses health-giving, tonic properties, which build up and strengthen weak, impoverished blood, and fortifies the system against disease.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

S. S. S. permanently cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Eczema, Tetter, and all other skin diseases and disorders. Book on the blood and any medical advice free.

ONLY THREE IN THE NATIONAL BATTING .300

National League pitchers are either exceptionally effective or the batters in the older major league are weaker than in the American, for but three men are hitting over .300, while in the Johnsonian organization no less than 9 are above the qualifying mark for star batsmen.

Bemis, in 10 games for Cleveland, has hit the ball at the rate of .340 and is leading the league. Rossman of Detroit and McConnell of Boston are tied for second place with .347, while New York's phenomenon, Ball, is a rattling fourth with .346.

Ty Cobb has fallen off in the percentages to .340 and the other .300 hitters are Chase, Turner, Pickering and Lord. Criss, with .273, is a long distance in front of the other Browns, who are batting very tamely.

In the National League, Dooin of Philadelphia is doing the best hitting, with a record of .347 for the season. Leach and Titus are .338 and .311 respectively.

Murray is the best hitter for the Cardinals, his figure standing at .290, with Delehanty next best at .262.

ALBERT COREY TO RUN IN BELLEVILLE MARATHON RACE

Albert A. Corey of Chicago has entered for the 14-mile road race to be run over a course from the Missouri A. C. to Belleville, Ill, on June 6. It is expected that Hatch of Chicago, winner of the M. A. C. Marathon for three years, and Alex. Thibeau of Chicago will also compete.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY A. C. ENTRIES ARE REJECTED BY A. A. U.

Eight entries for the Western A. A. U. championship track and field meet to be held on May 30 on the C. B. C. campus have been received from Martin A. Delaney, athletic director of the Kansas City A. C., but the entries will not be accepted, as the list closed last week. John J. O'Connor, president of the W. A. A. U., states Delaney knew the closing time for the entry list and that he should know that entries could not be accepted after the time set for the closing of the list.

GEORGE EDWARD WADDELL, whether he adheres to his decision to play with the Union League or not, should be canceled in the entry list of big-league possibilities, now and forever. As a youth, a baseball player, or any other foolish person, can be indiscreet with a reasonable ground for hoping he will be forgiven. But when a man, a full-grown man, with an arm strong enough to put another kink in the horn of a mountain goat, persists in remaining boyish up to the age of 33, it is time to write him down in capitals as incorrigible.

Perhaps never in the history of the national game have baseball managers taken the insults, indifference and vagaries of one man so kindly as has been the case with "Rube" Waddell. He has, at one time or another, seriously embarrassed every team with which he has been connected.

His treatment, which must necessarily be lenient in order to keep on any club's roster, has caused many a heart burning and jealously on the part of less favored members of the teams with which he has been associated, and it was because he threatened to disorganize the Philadelphia Americans that he was let go by Connie Mack, who threaded his own hair with many a strand of gray during the years when Rube was in his charge.

Rube's existence in baseball at the present time is due purely to his drawing powers. Undoubtedly the big man's arm is not all out and he could pitch many winning games for any club if he would; undoubtedly he would cause many a dollar to roll into the coffer of baseball magnates. But baseball has no need of buffoons to keep it alive; or if it has, it is getting to be a burlesque.

WADDELL has been untruthful, unfaithful, uncontrollable and irresponsible. His eccentricity is not the mere overflowing of youthful energy and spirit—it is an ingrained irresponsibility. He is a menace to a team, not a benefit; and the club that relies on him is in bad case.

If dispatches are true Rube has been vilifying Manager McAleer in Philadelphia. Personally I was a member of the Browns party that went to French Lick Springs in February. Rube Waddell was one and our apartments adjoined.

At that time Rube had nothing but praise to hand to the Browns management. All he wanted, he said, was a chance to show Manager Mack that he was still an asset not to be lightly tossed away, and he would show him before the season was over.

He was almost fulsome in his favorable remarks about his connection with the St. Louis Club. In contrast with his statements yesterday, made when he is reported to have signed with the Union League, are these earlier declarations. They indicate that Rube is irresponsible, and instead of needing a trainer he should be provided with a keeper.

Probably not another cluz in the American or National League would take up Rube for his mere pitching ability. Some managers, well provided with pitchers, might take him on as an advertisement; but for his mere intrinsic worth, not a big league club wants Rube, in spite of his arm. The fact speaks for itself, and if Rube plays a game with the outlaw league it means the knell of his career.

THE National Commission should see to it that Waddell is kept out of baseball if he goes to the Union League this time. His name ought to be written in full caps at the top of a black list, if there really is such a thing in baseball; nor should the entreaties of himself or any notoriety-seeking management suffice to induce the ruling body in baseball to alter its stand in the matter.

Waddell has too long been the tail that wagged certain baseball teams. Connie Mack had to let him go. McAleer will lose nothing by his departure, save worry that would have put a few more gray hairs into his poll.

ST. LOUIS is probably the most peculiar town in the country in respect to tournament golf. In the last ten years the complexion of the city tournaments has scarcely changed as regards the men who have fought it out in the end for the title.

The Stickney brothers, Bart Adams, Harry Allen, Ralph McKittrick, Jesse Carelton, Albert Lambert, and one or two others have constituted the important factors in local championships for years; and today they are still the ones who made most of the running for the 1908 championship, now nearing its close.

Arthur and Stuart Stickney in the semi-finals today oppose William Orthwein and Jesse Carleton. Thus of the four in the semi-finals, Orthwein is the only comparatively new comer and he has been in at least two tournaments previously. His play is not of a championship caliber and his success in this tournament is due to the weak opposition of his end of the tournament schedule.

In a decade, so few new players of even average merit have come to the front that they can be numbered on the fingers of one hand. Chris Kenney is one of the best and he will probably be a formidable factor next year. But where are the youngsters of ability who should be developing in so big a golf field as St. Louis? With all the country clubs here it would seem that each year should bring to light at least one new player of caliber.

But the Stickneys, McKittricks and Lamberts still are the best we have. The best of these rates at a 3 handicap as compared with the best Western players and so, until we get a new cult of golfers, there is little chance of a championship coming to St. Louis—unless Miss Grace Semple should win the women's title for us.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 22.—Battling Nelson, who signed articles to fight Joe Gans at San Francisco, July 4, was timekeeper for the Kid Krant-Guy Buckles fight, Port Townsend, Wash., last night. Krant won the decision over the Omaha boy in 20 rounds. Nelson came here to fight Kid Scaler.

BRIGGS FIGHTS FITZGERALD TO DRAW IN SLUGGING BOUT

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 22.—Willie Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, the "fighting harp," and Tommy Briggs of Boston fought a terrific 10-round draw before the Olympia Club here last night. Briggs forced the fighting from the first, putting Fitzgerald on the defensive.

The latter gave a wonderful exhibition of boxing and avoiding Briggs' rushes hit him repeatedly. In the sixth round Fitz forced Briggs out of his crouch and beat him to the ropes. Briggs displayed remarkable stamina, however, and held his own during the remaining rounds. He was still in the ring and fighting gamely when the gong rang in the final round.

LAY SERMON IN CELL; TEXT IS "DON'T DRINK"

Prisoner in Central District Holdover Tells How He Became Thief.

HAD TO BEG OR STEAL

"Booze and Paint Won't Mix" Says Man Who Once Made Good Living.

"How I Became a Burglar" was the subject of an interesting sermon delivered Friday by Charles Anderson, alias Carroll, a holdover prisoner, to attaches of the Central District Police Station. Anderson's pulpit was a dark cell. The conclusion of his argument was, "Poor men have no right to drink."

Arrested on a charge of ransacking the home of William Wahlbring, 3203 North Eleventh street, Anderson, who is 54 years old, tearfully admitted his guilt. He told Lieut. Hess he stole a diamond stud, watch and chain and several articles of clothing from the Wahlbrink home. All of the articles he sold for $9, and with the money purchased drink.

"It was a case of starve or steal," said Anderson, "and I chose to steal. Years ago I had a good business and a fine family in Cincinnati. I have two children there, and it was for their sake that I gave the name of Carroll when arrested.

Couldn't Mix the Two.

"As a painter I was my own boss. I could wield the brush with any of them, but I could not control my desire for drink. It was too late when I finally discovered that paint and booze would not mix.

"I lost my business, my savings and then my family. I quit painting, came to St. Louis and tried my hand at cooking. For nearly six years I was chef for the Redemptorist Fathers of the Rock Church. I saved my money. The Fathers were good to me, and I was beginning to feel like my old self again. Then the old thirst came on again.

"Last October I fell off the water wagon. My money began slipping through my fingers, and soon my savings were gone. The Fathers held my job open a month for me, but I did not return. I just kept on drinking.

"I drifted to Evansville, Ind., and tried to take up painting again. I found I was a failure, and I returned to St. Louis. I had only a few pennies left.

How He Became Thief.

"I took a room at 11 North Sixth street. I owed two days' rent when I discovered that what little that had been left of my savings had gone for food and drink. Starvation was staring me in the face. I made up my mind to become a beggar.

"Then I grew desperate. The thought that drink had reduced me to such a state horrified me.

"The more I studied the matter over the more convinced I became that burglary was no worse than begging. I hit upon a plan. I decided to knock at back doors. If I got a response I would ask for something. If no one happened to be home, I would take something.

"I was trembling with fear and shame when I approached the back door of the Wahlbrink home. I knocked and knocked. No one answered. I tried my key. It worked. You know the rest. The property has been recovered. That's what drink did to me."

Anderson looked and acted as though he were telling the truth and the policemen who heard him sympathized with him.

TRIP TO CAPE GIRARDEAU COSTS BOAT MAN'S LICENSE

Capt. Sims Loses His Papers as Master and Is Under $500 Fine.

Capt. Thomas B. Sims' license as master has been revoked, and he is under $500 fine imposed by Surveyor of Customs Gallenkamp for failure to obey the orders of Government inspectors, who forbade him to take the City of Memphis from St. Louis to Cape Girardeau.

The Government inspectors say the hull of the boat is in bad repair, and that the hose is dilapidated. They gave orders that the boat should not leave St. Louis May 14. Hunter Ben Jenkins, agent here for it, says this order was not given until two hours before time for departure, after several passengers and a perishable cargo had been taken aboard.

The license was revoked and the fine imposed Thursday, on the boat's return. Capt. Sims will appeal from the fine.

20 PEASANT RIOTERS HANGED

Russian Agrarian Disturbers Condemned by Courtmartial.

KHERSON, Russia, May 22.—Twenty peasants who took part in recent agrarian disorders in the Yekaterinoslav district were hanged here today under decrees of a courtmartial. They belonged to a peasant association, the avowed object of which was to drive out landed proprietors by the burning of their estates.

The resort to the death penalty for agrarian outrages is a new departure. Flogging and short terms of imprisonment have been the usual punishments, even during the great disorders of 1906.

Young Fairbanks and "Baby" McKee Also Overlooked.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 22.—Tap day at Yale furnished many surprises in the list of annual elections to the senior societies. Robert Fairbanks, son of the Vice President, was regarded as sure of an election to one of the three, but failed. The ceremonies take place on the campus, each successful candidate being slapped on the back in token of his election.

Others of the class of 1909 who failed of election were Ponson Chu, the Chinese Prince; Benjamin Harrison McKee ("Baby McKee") of New York, grandson of the late President Harrison, and William Howard Taft of Washington.

TUBERCULOSIS FOES MEET

The Missouri Association for the Relief and Control of Tuberculosis held its second annual meeting in the opera house at Springfield, Mo., Wednesday night. A large number of physicians from all parts of the State were in attendance.

Dr. George Holma, president of the association, delivered an address on "The Everyday Fight Against Consumption." In a report read by the secretary, Robert J. Newton of St. Louis, he stated there were now 11 anti-tuberculosis organizations in the State, whereas a year ago there only was one.

STORM CUTS CURIOUS CAPERS AS IT PASSES

12 STUNNED IN A CAR

Des Peres Drives People Upstairs, Lightning Strikes 2 Houses at Once.

Wind, lightning and a deluge of rain played havoc in all parts of the city Thursday night. During the storm the greenish tinge of the sky, changing to a light yellow in the Southwest, alarmed many people who had in mind the month and day of the great tornado 12 years ago. The wind had a velocity of 42 miles an hour at its height.

As the storm approached from the West it appeared to be at its zenith, but during its passage over the city decreased, to rise again as it disappeared in the Northeast.

Lightning struck the building of the Corn Products Co. in West Granite City, Ill., about 6 o'clock. The panic stricken girls working on the second floor fled to the basement. Miss Leona Coffelgt was struck by lightning, but not seriously injured.

2000 Thrown Out of Work.

The storm damaged Granite City $5000 and 2000 people will be thrown out of work for two weeks.

In St. Louis County was again threatened by a flood when the torrents of rain fell shortly after 6 o'clock. Maple avenue was turned into a creek and the flood threatened the De Hodiamont power house. The home of Joseph Green, 6224 Bartmer avenue, was flooded and he was compelled to move his family and effects to the second floor. Others in the neighborhood fled to places of safety.

Live Wire Scatters Crowd.

River des Peres was on the rampage, and Spencer place was under water, making the inhabitants prisoners for an hour. A live wire belonging to the King Electric Co. fell into a crowd of people waiting for a car at 6600 Delmar avenue, creating a panic.

An uncompleted building at 6400 Easton avenue, being erected by J. E. Doyle, a contractor, was blown down.

Lightning struck the roof and a bay window of the Amelia apartments, 5476 Vernon avenue, hurling timbers across the street, which broke windows in the houses of E. B. Anderson, 5472 Vernon, and Dr. J. H. Tanquary, 5476 Vernon.

William D. Watts of 1820 Olive street, a lineman, was thrown to the street from a 30-foot telegraph pole on Twenty-second street, between Biddle and Division streets, at 11 o'clock by a live wire. He was repairing a broken wire of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. He was taken to his home in a carriage, where he was attended by Dr. Heine Marks. He was burned and bruised, but will recover.

A freak twist of lightning caused the homes of August Overbecks, 1920 Sullivan avenue, and James Clifford, 1918 Sullivan avenue, to be struck simultaneously. The damage amounted to $150.

Twelve Stunned on Car.

Twelve passengers on a westbound Market street car were stunned shortly before 7 p. m. Thursday when a bolt of lightning struck a tree in Forest Park, just north of the automobile drive in Forest Park Highlands. No one was injured.

Some Wigs Ruined.

The plate glass window of Mme. Veatch's hairdressing parlors, 308 North Grand avenue, was shattered by lightning and hair on the heads of several "dummies" was ruined. Damage, $100.

Lightning struck the residence of Henry Rocklage, 1412 Hebert street, damaging it to the extent of $50.

Levee Bursts at Havana.

HAVANA, Ill., May 22.—Efforts of men working all night availed nothing, for the levee surrounding hundreds of acres of Fulton County farm land burst today and $10,000 loss will be sustained.

Oak Said to Be 1500 Years Old.

From the Westminster Gazette.

Salcey forest, near Northampton, where some fine old oak trees have been damaged by fire, is the least known of all the royal forests, though it formerly extended across the border into Buckinghamshire, and there are still nearly 2000 acres in charge of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests. It was settled in 1665 "without timber," by Charles II, upon Queen Catherine, as part of her jointure. The great glory of this forest has been the Salcey oak, now a mere picturesque sylvan ruin, which is 47 feet in circumference and fabled to be 1500 years old. This famous tree was spared, not for sentimental reasons, in the Eighteenth Century, when all the finest oaks were felled for the navy by shipwrights from Deptford dockyard, who "converted" the wood on the spot to save the excessive cost of transport.

Pennsylvania Has Giant Pine.

From the Ridgway Daily Record.

A giant white pine tree was cut in Cameron County which produced the following number and length of logs: Twelve 16-foot logs, two 14-foot logs, and six 8-foot logs, and the whole bunch scaled the magnificent total of 10,800 feet board measure. The butt log measured 60 inches, or 5 feet, in diameter at the small end. The tree was not 394 feet high, as it would seem from the figures, but had two forks and three branches of immense size, hence the large number of logs. The tree was cut down during the deepest snow of the last winter, and hence it was not much broken, because the snow deadened the fall.

NATAL COAL TRADE MAKES BIG STRIDE

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

DURBAN, Natal., South Africa, May .—The Natal coal trade is taking great strides towards a foremost place among South African industries. An official return just issued shows that the coal mined in the colony in 1907 was over 1,530,000 tons, and as the total of 1906 was only 1,230,000 tons there has been an increase in output in the 12 months of about 25 per cent.

The Natal State railways consumed 245,000 tons, vessels bunkering at Durban took 666,000 tons, 450,000 tons were exported by land or sea, and about 160,000 tons remained to satisfy the ordinary wants of the colony. The importance of the coal mines to Natal is shown by the fact that it was the proximity of an ample fuel supply that recently influenced Messrs. Kynochs (Ltd.) in selecting the colony for the establishment of a South African explosives industry.

Mr. Arthur Chamberlain has stated that he could have obtained an adequate site and water facilities from other governments free of cost, but Durban was the only South African port at which he could get coal not only for the factory, but in sufficient quantities to provide return cargo for the boats bringing raw material for the industry. The factory, which is already being erected at Umbogintwini, will consume from 50,000 to 60,000 tons of coal annually, and a like quantity will be exported.

Confesses She Drowned Infant.

BRISTOL, Tenn., May .—Mrs. Moxie Peltier, dying in a hospital here, has confessed that she murdered two children, one an infant, which she says she threw into a river from a train. She involves a prominent young business man of this city.

BODY BURIED 96 YEARS EXHUMED

WASHINGTON, May .—The body of George Clinton, twice Vice-President of the United States and first Governor of the Empire State, of which he was the executive for 21 years, was exhumed at the old Congregational Cemetery and transferred to the United States Naval Hospital, where it now lies, awaiting removal to the old Clinton home at Kingston, N. Y.

The body was found to be in a most remarkable state of preservation, in spite of the fact that it had rested in the leaden coffin for 96 years. The chemicals in the soil had seemingly petrified most of the upper portions of the body and head, and even the cloth of the coat and silk of the long stockings seemed to be as strong and substantial as when new.

After workmen had been engaged for two weeks in removing the monument and its foundation, and an excavation ten or twelve feet in depth had been made, no trace of the coffin had yet been found. By the use of a pole driven in the earth as a probe, exactly after the method pursued by Gen. Horace Porter in seeking for the body of Paul Jones, and after considerable exploration, the metal box was finally struck, at a depth of nearly 20 feet. The digging was then renewed and finished and the leaden box was brought to light.

A Tremendous Success

OUR $100,000.00 MONEY-RAISING SALE has proven to be a FINANCIAL as well as a BENEFICIAL sale to every one concerned.

Never in the history of our business career did we ever succeed in raising as much money as we have done in the last seven days.

Our store has been jammed and packed with hundreds of customers from morning till night, all anxious to get the benefit of this remarkable sale.

We did not have enough salespeople to wait upon the generous public, and therefore beg to APOLOGIZE to those who have not been waited upon promptly or turned away. We have engaged additional salespeople and also made preparations for a larger selling space.

It is impossible to mention all the bargains we are offering in this GREAT PHENOMENAL $100,000.00 MONEY-RAISING SALE.

Up to the present writing we have realized close on to $35,000.00, but WE are DETERMINED to raise enough money to PAY EVERY BILL we owe, thereby keeping up our EXCELLENT CREDIT as heretofore.

Owing to the heavy loss we are sustaining during this sale GOODS CANNOT BE CHARGED. ALL ALTERATIONS are FREE OF CHARGE.

$15 and $20 SUITS $9.85

We have put in this line our reserve stock, close on to 500 Suits. Every one of these Suits was bought to sell at $15 and $20, but owing to the depression of business and the cold weather, we find ourselves heavily overstocked, and therefore sacrifice them at the low price of $9.85.

$25, $30 and $35 SUITS $14.75

These Suits were bought to sell at the above figures, but having too many fine Suits in our house we are afraid that we cannot dispose of them all this season at the original prices, and rather than to carry them over until next year have reduced them to $14.75. No merchant tailor can equal the Style and Fit of these garments.

GOV. JOHNSON IS FIGURE IN PLAY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 22.—Gov. John A. Johnson has been dramatized.

"The Timber Thief," a play by George W. Ward of Alexandria, Minn., which is based on the 1904 campaign in Minnesota and the election of Gov. Johnson, is meeting with success in the East. Mr. Ward, who was formerly a student at the University of Minnesota and is a capable actor, takes a prominent part in the play, but the leading role is assumed by William Owen, the well-known actor. The Daily Register of Sandusky ,O., says the play is in a class with "The Lion and the Mouse," and observes:

"That Mr. Owen can play other than Shakspeare parts was clearly demonstrated by his portrayal of Abel Minton, the grafting politician who runs for Governor of the State of Minnesota, but is defeated by Johnson through the manipulations of a clever young newspaper free-lance editor."

The play drew its inspiration from the Minnesota campaign, but Mr. Ward declares that no real characters are given. Abel Minton, he says, is a pure fiction. As for Gov. Johnson, he does not appear as a character in the play. He is only talked about.

Four Farmers Swindled.

HOXIE, Kan., May 23.—It is reported here that W. G. Doubleday, Edward Croft, W. R. Meng and B. B. Buell, all of Colby, who recently traded for farms in Western Colorado, were swindled. According to the report the parties selling the farms did not own them, merely having them under contract.

Christian Endeavorers to Meet.

RICHMOND, Ky., May 23.—Upwards of 400 delegates attended the twentieth annual State convention of the Christian Endeavor Society, held here. Prominent ministers and lay workers from all parts of the State were on the program.

12,000 CAN SEE BRYAN LOSE OR WIN IN DENVER

Convention Nearly Ready, Has All Comforts of Home, Including Refrigerator.

BANDS IN BALCONIES

Every Seat a "Good One," but No Season Tickets Will Be Issued.

DENVER, Colo., May 22.—Seating arrangements for the big auditorium where the Democratic national convention will convene, next July 7, have been completed by Architect Robert Willison and accepted by the Democratic National Committee. The new convention hall will accommodate more than 12,000 people and the first floor alone will have 6006 regular seats.

Great care has been exercised by Architect Willison in arranging the seats in the entire building and special attention has been paid by him to the first floor, as this will be the scene of activities of the convention.

To begin with, it should be understood that the auditorium is constructed so that the huge stage is near the center of the building. Being built on this plan, one-half of the structure can be used as a theater, the other half being entirely shut off by the flies and wings of the stage. On the occasion of a big convention the stage scenery and equipment can be elevated to a storage roof and the entire building converted into a huge convention hall, with a balcony circling the whole structure and a large gallery at both ends. That will be the plan for the Democratic national convention.

Facilities for Newspapers.

In preparation for the convention the rostrum and platform will be erected at the west side of the auditorium, with the seats for the delegates and alternates extending along the floor of the stage proper. Upon the platform will be 445 seats, which will be reserved for the members of the National Committee and for the guests of honor. The number of seats on the restrum will be 101.

Directly in front of the chairman's platform on the rostrum will be four seats and tables for the noiseless telegraph instruments of the three newspaper associations. Additional room for these news services and for the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Co. is arranged in the basement.

Desks and seats for the newspaper correspondents and special writers will be arranged in a half-circle about the rostrum in such a manner as to give each writer an unobstructed view of the speaker and within easy hearing distance. There will be 303 seats in this section, each seat having a space 24 inches wide.

Seats for the delegates in front of the rostrum are arranged nearly in the center of the building. The exact number of seats is 1005, and immediately behind this section are the seats for the alternates, also 1005 in number.

The main entrance of the auditorium will be on Curtis street. On the Curtis street side, extending back from the sections to be occupied by the delegates and alternates, will be 1073 seats for the general public. The same plan will prevail at the opposite end of the building, designated the Champa street side, where 826 seats will be reserved for the general public. Back of these sections and also along the Fourteenth street side of the building, behind the section reserved for the alternates, boxes will be arranged with a total capacity of 544 seats. In addition there will be seating space for 700 people more at the Curtis and Champa street ends of the structure. Extra chairs can be placed in these two spaces if necessary. This makes a total seating capacity of 6006 for the main floor.

Entrance for Each Group.

One of the strong features of the arrangement of the building is the plan for entrances and exits. Confusion has been guarded against in this respect. The general public will be admitted at the main entrances on Curtis and Champa streets. Near the west end of the building on Curtis streets, an exclusive entrance will be provided for the members of the National Committee, the special and distinguished guests and speakers. At a corresponding entrance on Champa street the press representatives, their messengers and the telephone and telegraph operators will be admitted. The entrance on Fourteenth street will be reserved exclusively for the delegates and alternates.

It can be seen readily that by this plan there will be no confusion and that delay in opening the sessions of the Convention can be avoided.

The front rows in the balcony and gallery will be reserved for the families of the delegates, alternates and the Convention officers. The Sergeant-at-arms will have his desk and seat just inside of the section reserved for the newspaper correspondents. The actual seating capacity of the balcony will be 3626, and of the gallery 1889. This makes a total of 11,521 seats, but at least 600 more people can be accommodated in an emergency.

However, no attempt will be made at any session to overcrowd the building. No season tickets will be issued, and it is believed by the Convention managers that all of the visitors will be afforded an opportunity to attend at least one session of the Convention. Every seat will be desirable, for the reason that the auditorium is constructed without pillars or posts to obstruct the view, and the acoustic properties will be perfect, so that a speaker can be heard from any part of the building

To the right and left of the rostrum a flight of stairs will lead down to the basement, where the telegraph instruments and private telephone booths will be located. Beneath the rostrum will be a tunnel or hallway connecting the press section so that if any of the correspondents have occasion to cross from one side to the other they will not be compelled to pass between the speaker and the delegates and spectators. This same passage will be used by messengers and pages, to avoid confusion.

Official badges will be furnished delegates, alternates, guests, speakers, national committeemen, accredited press correspondents and the general public holding tickets, which will admit the bearers at the different entrances.

The auditorium will be fireproof, but extra precaution has been taken to guard against accidents of any kind. The exit area, including the outside doors, will be 210 lineal feet. This is sufficient space to permit 12,000 people to reach the streets within two minutes.

A band of music will be stationed in each balcony. A signal wire will run from each bandstand to the desk of the sergeant-at-arms, so that the musical program can be governed at will.

Denver's auditorium will be different from other convention halls in that it will be especially adapted to requirements. It will not be a barnlike structure, devoid of acoustic properties and arranged with the sole idea of jamming in the spectators and delegates. Retiring rooms will be located on each floor, both for the convenience of the delegates and the general public, and water coolers will be provided in large numbers.

The auditorium will be well ventilated and it will be cooled in summer by cold water running through the steam-heating pipes. Cluster electric lights will be arranged in an artistic manner for the main lighting scheme, and in addition there will be thousands of incandescent lights throughout the building.

The auditorium is built of brick, concrete, stone and steel, and is constructed for permanency. The walls are in place and the roof is nearly completed, so that in a few days the work of finishing the interior will be in progress.

SQUEEZES HEART, MAN REGAINS LIFE

HARTFORD, Conn., May 22—Dr. M. F. Sullivan and others were operating upon Nuncia Chial for the removal of portions of the lungs diseased by pneumonia. Through an incision near the left lung the man's heart could be distinctly seen beating normally.

Suddenly Dr. Sullivan observed that the heart's action had become irregular. Then it stopped. Thrusting in his fingers the doctor squeezed the heart softly and rhythmically and started life once more coursing through Chial's arteries.

Near the conclusion of the operation it was necessary to resort a second time to this last extremity and again the daring operation was successful. Chial is now resting comfortably in St. Francis' Hospital.

BOSTON CHANGED IN 59 YEARS

John Ryan, '49'er, Gets Lost Seeking "Frog Pond."

BOSTON, May 23.—John Ryan, formerly of Boston, more recently a resident of San Francisco, where he struck it so rich in business after going West in quest of gold in 1849, came back here to visit the old playgrounds and got lost in 10 minutes.

Ryan stopped for breakfast at the Boston Hotel and then started out for a walk to look up a few "old frog ponds." He says the elevated, subways and high buildings bothered him and he forgot the name of his hotel and policemen could not help him, so he just wandered on. Finally he got to the home of the McCarthy family, 103 West Broadway, and found them to be descendants of old friends, and decided to remain there during the rest of his visit, and one of the boys will show him about. He has given up the "frog pond" search. The McCarthys and the police also found his luggage at the hotel.

BULL FIGHTS CREW IN HOLD OF SHIP

BOSTON, May 22.—Bringing in a thrilling tale of a perilous bull fight below decks, the Houston line steamship Hortensius, Capt. Snell, is in port from South America, bringing wool, hides and quebracho extract. The steamer transported over 100 cattle from Montevideo to Para and among them three bulls.

The bulls were especially selected for bull fighting. One of them broke loose when a week out from Montevideo and before it was recaptured nearly killed one man and drove cattlemen and crew to the upper decks. Twelve cattlemen were on board to tend the animals and there were also two stowaways, Frank G. Nye, an Englishman, and Philip Shade, who says he is the son of the Sheriff of Pueblo County, Colorado.

While the cattlemen were cleaning out the cattle pens one day the bull slipped the noose that held him to his pen and started through the cattle deck with a roar.

Shade, the stowaway, was asleep on the floor when the cries of the cattlemen awoke him. He awoke in time to see the bull rush upon him and put one of its heavy hoofs on his chest, and he thought his time had come.

Shade closed his eyes and the bull pawed over him for a moment. Then some of the cattlemen secured a red tablecloth and shook it from a safe distance to attract the attention of the animal.

He turned and dashed toward the men. Shade jumped into one of the upper berths and covered himself with a quilt. The bull was unable to reach him and dashed back to the cattlemen's quarters and not finding Shade demolished the table, smashed several trunks and tore up some of the bedclothes.

Shade watched his chance and when the animal was at the other end of the apartment, he jumped out of the berth and ran toward the deck ladder. The bull swung around and chased the man. He threw up his head as Shade was on the top rung, throwing him out on the deck.

Then the cattlemen surrounded the bull, jabbing pitchforks into his side. The head cattleman tried to lasso the animal and after several unsuccessful attempts the noose finally got entangled in his fore legs and he was brought to the deck. Still fighting fiercely, the lariat was slipped over his head and he was secured to his pen.

DOG WAS POOR CHAUFFEUR

Nearly Killed Master and Wrecked the Machine.

ELWOOD, Ind., May 22.—Joe Fihe's bulldog came near causing its owner to lose his life as well as nearly wrecking his automobile. When out driving his big machine Mr. Fihe always takes his dog along, which rides on the front seat and takes a deep interest in the chauffeur's action.

This morning something went wrong and the auto stopped. Mr. Fihe got down to start the engine and the dog, whether accidentally or intentionally, threw the clutch in position for starting the machine, and the big vehicle shot forward, knocking the owner down and heading across the sidewalk toward the big decorated stained glass window in the Methodist Church.

Mr. Fihe regained his feet and catching up with the machine threw the clutch out and stopped the automobile just in time to save it from smashing against the big stone edifice. Meantime the dog never stirred, thinking no doubt that he had done a wise thing.

CHINESE LABOR INVADES INDIA

Special Correspondence to the Post-Dispatch.

CALCUTTA, Ind., April —.—Chinese cheap labor has been the bugbear of Western industrialism for a generation. It is a sign of the times that it is making its influence felt even in India. At a meeting of the Millowners' Association in Bombay, Vitaldas Damodher Thackersey, the chairman, called attention to the probability of increasing competition in the Chinese cotton market owing to the development of industrial enterprise among the Chinese. He pointed out that already the Chinese mills were turning out more yarn than India shipped to China, and the production per spindle was almost double that of Indian mills.

The trouble is that Chinese labor is not only cheap but efficient, and in this connection the following remarks may be quoted from a speech made by Mr. Larmour in the Bengal Legislative Council:

"Twenty-five years ago our workmen were nearly all Bengali Hindoos, and there was not a single Chinaman in our employ and only one or two Mohammedans. Now we have a large number of Chinamen, and among the Indians the Bengalis are in a very small minority.

"The Chinaman, it is true, gets larger wages, but he earns his money to the hilt, works steadily, takes only one or at most two holidays in the year, is sober, punctual, and intelligent, and does not need to be continually urged to his work. The Bengali, I am constrained to say, is very much to the contrary. He gets small wages certainly, but he earns for his employer even less than he gets. As a rule he takes little or no real interest in his work, and if not carefully watched will scamp his job."

N. Y. STOCKS CLOSE BELOW THE OPENING

Entire List Recedes in Active Market; Reading 2⅛ Off.

NEW YORK, May 22, 10 a. m.—With only a few unimportant exceptions the stock market opened fractionally higher this morning. These exceptions were Amalgamated Copper, which was one-quarter lower, and New York Central, which declined one-eighth. Canadian had the strongest opening among the rails, its initial sale being at a point higher than its close.

B. & O. and Missouri Pacific gained three-quarters each, B. R. T., St. Paul, Reading and Union Pacific one-half each and other issues from one-eighth to one-quarter point. Great Northern started at parity.

Pacific Mail led the advance among the industrials with a gain of 1⅛, Smelting was seven-eighths higher, Lead one-half and the Steels about one-quarter.

Following the trend of Thursday's market price movements became irregular in the early trading. The Harriman Pacifics advanced and Great Northern advanced ¼ each, Reading gained ½, and Missouri Pacific was unchanged. Pennsylvania receded ¼, and Northern Pacific and St. Paul lost ½ point each. The industrial situation was about the same as the rails. Pacific Mail made a further gain of 1½, while Smelting slumped 1⅛ points. The steels remained close to their opening quotations. St. Paul, Reading and Union Pacific were very active. Americans in London were firm and from ⅛ to ½ higher.

NEW YORK, May 22. (12:30 p. m.)—There was a decided drop in prices during the forenoon hours. Every stock on the list receded somewhat from the opening figures. Northern Pacific and New York Central lost 1⅛ points each, and the Harriman Pacifics made average losses of ⅝.

B. R. T. and Great Northern lost ½ each, Pennsylvania slumped ⅞ and Canadian Pacific ¾. B. & O., C. & N. W., St. Paul, Erie, Reading and Missouri Pacific lost 1 point each.

There was extensive trading in Union Pacific and Reading.

The industrials suffered about as much as the rails. Pacific Mail, which was so strong at the opening, lost almost 2½ points, and was very active.

FINANCIAL ITEMS.

MARKET OPINIONS.

NEW YORK, May 22.—A. O. Brown & Co say: "The general action of the market went far toward convincing its supporters that its line of least resistence continues to be upward and sentiment seems to favor higher prices generally."

Grannis & Lawrence say: "All hope of getting any financial legislation through the present Congress has been abandoned. This was given as an excuse for selling of stocks. The reaction was long overdue and one serves as well as another."

Miller & Co. say: "The great preponderance of factors on which the rise was unquestionably built remain unchanged, and we see no reason to change the opinion that the money is to be made on the positive side of the account."

E. F. Hutton & Co. say: "It is quite probable that the swing of prices will be to a somewhat higher level or until the purpose of certain bankers has been accomplished."

Marshall, Spader & Co. say: "At current values nearly all stocks pay much better dividend returns than can be secured in the loan or bond markets. This fact, and favorable political prospects, still dominate the situation."

PITTSBURG, May 22.—The Wall Street Journal says: "Notwithstanding that he had antagonized the most powerfully entrenched railroad interests in the East by his invasion of Pittsburg territory, George Gould challenged interests equally powerful in the West when in 1905 he started the Western Pacific, from Salt Lake City to San Francisco, 930 miles.

"The road was to have been completed by September, 1908. Engineering and other obstacles have somewhat retarded the work and the cost of it has exceeded original estimates, as is generally the case in railroad construction. It will, however, probably be finished in 1909.

"The placing of $50,000,000 first mortgage bonds before a spadeful of dirt has been turned was about the most brilliant thing in the way of finance in the recent history of the Goulds. That was an achievement of E. T. Jeffrey, president of the Denver & Rio Grande. It is understood that the bonds, bearing 5 per cent, were taken at 90, which meant $45,000,000 cash, and then, from the proceeds of the bond sale, money was set aside to pay the interest pending completion of the road. Interest at 5 per cent for three years would be $7,500,000, so it may be reckoned that the amount of actual cash available for the Western Pacific's construction up to the present time has been $37,500,000."

John D. Ryan was shown a telegram yesterday from Butte, Mont., stating that while no particulars of the East Butte-Amalgamated deal were obtainable, there was no question that the East Butte had passed to the Amalgamated and would be a subsidiary company. Mr. Ryan made a positive denial that any negotiations looking toward control or ownership of any kind in the East Butte by the Amalgamated were under consideration.

NEW YORK, May 22.—It is generally conceded that the best index for the degree of activity in all lines of trade in the business community is the weekly reports of the clearing houses of the United States. A student of the curiosities of statistics has brought into contrast the latest published "chronicle" figures for the week ended May 9 for Pittsburg and Kansas City, Mo., as follows.

Kansas City	39,545,487

Pittsburg, known as the greatest freight producing center in the country, was left behind by a city with a population not half its size. The cause is suggested: Depression in industrial centers versus prosperity of the farming community. This is further emphasized by a comparison of the two cities with the corresponding week of 1907, showing as follows:

Pittsburg, decrease in 1908 ... 31 per cent
Kansas City, increase in 1908 .. 25 per cent

The aforesaid student said: "These figures conclusively show that the prosperity of the farmer is the backbone of our commercial activity."

NEW YORK, May 22.—The Knickerbocker Trust Co. will build on its lot, at the corner of Broadway and Exchange place, and has entered into a contract with the Fuller Construction Co. for the erection of an eight-story office building, according to plans prepared by McKim, Mead & White. The new building will be ready for occupancy in April, 1909. Offices in it will probably be occupied by the trust company.

Six of the largest producers and dealers in copper report a better demand for the metal from domestic consumers. One of the large selling agencies quotes the price of electrolytic at 13 cents per pound.

A representative of one company said that if copper declined to 12½c per pound a foreign buying movement would set in that would equal the demand that prevailed for copper abroad several months ago.

NATIVE CATTLE—The supply in the native division today was very light, only about 500 being available.

Only a few beef steers were included in the light receipts, three cars of fair kinds selling at $6.15, and some odd and end lots from that on down. The few here sold readily at full steady prices.

Most of the butcher cattle supply was common and medium in quality, but prices were on a steady basis. The best heifers here sold at $5, cows at $4.75 and bulls at $4.60.

The calf trade was on a strong basis today, the tops bringing $7.50 and all kinds selling actively.

But few stockers and feeders were on sale, and the market was quiet, but prices were on a steady basis. Some pretty fair stock steers brought $3.85.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—Receipts in the quarantine division were liberal today, around 2500 head, and the quality averaged some better than yesterday. The supply consisted mostly of Texas grass steers, but both the light and heavy weight kinds were of better finish. A couple of loads of Oklahoma cattle and some Arkansas mixed lots completed the supply. Trading was active, with heavy steers and cow stuff selling at steady values, and the better classes of the light weight offerings selling at steady to strong prices.

Some good weight grass steers, just fair, fat kinds, sold from $4.50 to $4.75, and several trains of light weight grass steers from $3.75 @4.40.

Oklahoma steers and heifers brought from $2.90 to $4, heifers sold at $3.50@3.75, bulls at $3.25@3.75, cows at $3@3.50, and calves from $3.75@5.

HOGS—The market was again higher, early sales showing a gain of 5c over the yesterday market on good shipping and butcher hogs, but later the market was weak and most of the advance was lost. Packers were slow to begin business and hogs and that they secured showed very little or no advance. The top of the market was $5.75 for the first time this week and there were lots of hogs at $5.70, including almost all weights.

Good shipping hogs weighing 170 to 200 lbs. sold at $5.70@5.75 as a rule, while the butchers bought most of their hogs at $5.70. Best packers sold at $5.65@5.72½, and fair ones at $5.50@5.62½. Lights weighing 130 to 160 lbs., if good, were ready sale at $5.25@5.65, but the common to fair ones were very slow sale and no better than yesterday. The good hogs are now selling about 40c higher than at the close of last week, but pigs and lights on the Southwest order show no improvement at all.

SHEEP—The sheep trade was quiet but steady, and the best fat sheep and lambs sold readily, but the thin ones were not wanted at all, as buyers have been able this week to secure all of the sheep that they want and, therefore, are passing up those that are not fat. Spring lambs sold at $6.50 @7, clipped lambs at $5@5.65 and mutton sheep at $4.25@4.65. Bucks sold at $3@3.25.

HORSES AND MULES—Receipts of horses ruled nominal today, nothing of any consequence arriving for the immediate trade. Commission holdings are practically cleaned up.

The mule trade in the alleys was of a quiet character. The small supply, consisting of odds and ends, sold steady. Shipments to the exterior this week are about double the number of arrivals.

Modern Miller Crop Outlook.

Following is the Modern Miller crop outlook: Reports are increasing of deterioration in the winter wheat crop from excessive moisture, this being confined to low and flat lands in the soft winter wheat states. Illinois has suffered most loss, but from Missouri (Howard and Carroll counties) reports come of fields being plowed up. On high land, the general condition is good. Fly damage continues in Southern and Central Kansas, and in the extreme western section of that State and Nebraska the outlook for an average yield is uncertain; otherwise, the prospect in the hard winter wheat territory of these states is excellent.

WHEAT PRICES RANGE SLOWLY, CLOSE EASIER

Market Only Indifferently Active With Fluctuations Narrow.

CORN ALSO SELLS DOWN

Cables Disappointing and Argentine Exports More Liberal.

There was a strong element of fear in all operations on the local wheat market Friday, sentiment in the pit being badly mixed, and this made buying orders very effective at times, but the market bore a strained appearance and was in need of constant support to maintain a steady tone. Prices at no time got very far away from the previous closing levels and at the close were ¼c to ⅜c lower for the day.

There were heavy rains over practically the entire belt, which caused complaints of excessive moisture and serious damage in many of the low and flat districts. Insects were also complained of, which served to cause some slight firmness, but prices were soon affected by the liberal Argentine exports and the resulting easiness in foreign markets. Liverpool came ⅛d to ¼d higher early, but closed ¼d lower, and, though the early decline in the market was not so marked as at some points, still the tendency of prices was downward, a recession of about ¼c being suffered. There was little consistent pressure, however, and prices ranged back to about a level with yesterday's close, where during most of the morning the market ruled dull and featureless, but showed a fairly steady tone.

July wheat opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher at 86¼c to 86⅜c, was offered down to 86¼@86⅜c, advanced to 86⅝@86¾c, sagged to 86⅜c and advanced to 86¾@86⅞c. Sept. wheat opened ⅛c higher at 85c, declined to 84⅝c, advanced to 84¾@84⅞c, declined to 84⅝c and advanced to 84⅞c.

Argentine shipments of wheat were 3,552,000 bu, against 3,224,000 bu last week and 4,144,000 bu a year ago. Australian wheat shipments were 216,000 bu, against 96,000 bu last week and 344,000 bu a year ago. Indian wheat shipments were nil, against 8000 bu last week and 816,000 bu a year ago.

Cash sales in Chicago Thursday were 15,000 bu wheat, 16,000 bu corn and 515,000 bu oats. Export sales in all positions were 840,000 bu wheat and 26,000 bu corn.

Berlin wheat closed ¼c lower, Budapest unchanged and Antwerp unchanged to ⅜c lower. Liverpool receipts for three days were 80,000 bu wheat, against 160,000 bu last week, and 48,000 bu corn, against 32,000 bu last week.

There was a very good cash demand at Minneapolis and No. 1 Northern wheat sold 3c over July option, with No. 2 Northern 1c over. Minneapolis stocks decreased 375,000 bu for the week and Duluth stocks decreased 1,050,000 bu for the week. Minneapolis cars were 123, against 238 last year; Duluth, 42, against 65 last year, and Winnipeg 101, against 223 last year.

Broomhall estimates world's shipments wheat, Monday (exclusive of North America) will be about 5,200,000 bu, of which Europe will take about 4,800,000 bu.; last week, 7,326,000 bu; last year, 11,184,000 bu. Arrivals into the United Kingdom about 3,200,000 bu. Estimates moderate change on passage.

The market developed into a fairly active affair late in the day. The export demand, while not equaling the extensive inquiry of yesterday, still showed a good tone, there being many bids at only a shade below the market. Foreign damage reports were numerous, drouth being feared in Roumania and Bulgaria, conditions are unfavorable in most of Russia, and the wet weather in Argentine continues, which is holding back receipts there. Stocks of wheat at Argentine decreased 664,000 bu, now being only 2,576,000 bu. These factors, coupled with the domestic crop damage reports, tended to maintain the steady tone, but quite heavy pressure set in towards the last of the session and prices yielded. Frequent rallies were made, the tone being nervous, but the close was practically at the day's low point and was weak thereat.

July wheat declined to 86⅛c, was bid up to 86⅝@86⅞c, declined to 86¼c, rallied to 86½c, sold down to 86⅛c and closed at 86⅛@86¼c bid. September wheat declined steadily to 84c and closed at 84c. May wheat was offered ½c higher, at 97c.

The cash demand for wheat was slow and prices were dull and weak.

Primary receipts of wheat were 383,480 bu, with shipments of 493,779 bu, and local receipts were 63,975 bu, with shipments of 35,920 bu.

Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 97,000 bu. Bradstreet reports the exports of wheat and flour for the day at 2,930,000 bu.

Corn was only moderately active and ruled easy during most of the session. May option was offered freely, which seemed to indicate either that quite extensive private settlements had been made, or that efforts are being made to hold down arrivals of cash corn. Receipts were quite large, and though the very unfavorable rains have again set in, this caused only slight firmness at the start. Cables on corn closed ¼d higher. May corn went down almost 2c, which caused easiness in the other options, they closing ⅜c to ⅝c lower.

Argentine shipments of corn were 2,722,000 bu, against 2,755,000 bu last week and 731,000 bu a year ago.

Cash corn was in slow demand and weak.

Primary receipts of corn were 483,879 bu, with shipments of 490,261 bu, and local receipts were 131,010 bu, with shipments of 63,740 bu.

The week's exports of corn were 75,000 bu, and today's clearances were 9000 bu.

Oats futures were inactive, with quotations about steady, May being offered ¼c lower at 51¼c, and September being quoted unchanged at 36⅝c nominal. Cash oats were weak. Oats clearances were 1000 bu.

Primary receipts of oats were 325,740 bu, with shipments of 478,783 bu, and local receipts were 49,600 bu, with shipments of 33,840 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts were 8020 bbls.; shipments, 6310 bbls. Quote soft winter flour, patents, $4.60@4.80; straights, $4.40@4.50; extra fancy, $4.20@4.30 in wood; hard, jute sacks, patent, $4.40@4.65; straight, $4.10@4.30; clears, $3.65@3.85; low grade, $3@3.25; spring patents, $5.10@5.20 in jute.

TICKER TALK

NEW YORK, May 22.—C. Fairchild was the first of the traders to sell Union Pacific on its opening strength. The active floor traders were scrutinizing the buying very carefully. A number of them seem to be itching to sell short, but were afraid to take any position, or only one where they can run quickly. As some of them say this kind of market is generally hardened up over the end of the week.

NEW YORK, May 22.—On the decline the heaviest selling was by a new street house that has been more or less the headquarters for a certain bear plunger the last year.

PARIS, May 22.—The Bank of France weekly statement shows:
Gold on hand, increase 35,100,000 francs.
Silver on hand, increase 3,750,000 francs.

JOHNSON RAPS BRYAN RAILROAD OWNERSHIP PLAN

REVISION IS THWARTED

By a Staff Correspondent to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., May 22.—Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota has invaded the South and received Virginia hospitality. The mint is fresh in the fields, and the juleps in the Westmoreland Club have a frost of ice around the glasses that is refreshing. Everybody forgot the late unpleasantness, and Richmond hailed the man from Minnesota as a champion of State Rights.

Last night the Governor made a nonpolitical address to the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, which is in session in Richmond. Its members are chiefly Fall River Republicans and Columbia (S. C.) Democrats. He left today for Tuscaloosa, Ala.

In an interview here, Gov. Johnson said:

"There are three great issues today. First and most important is the tariff; second, and closely allied to it, is the trust question; third is the new federalism which has been forced upon us within the past few months.

Tariff Undefended.

"Our tariff system has reached a point where its apologists are at extremes to defend it. It pretends to be for the man who works, but experience has proven that he is not the real beneficiary, and if he is at all benefited, it is in such a remote and contingent degree as to be almost a nullity. The leaders of the opposition have publicly admitted that the schedules should be revised, but this is not their first public declaration, and their continuation in power has brought no change.

"We are now confronted with the same old declaration of the necessity for a change, but with no evidence that revision will become an accomplished fact within a reasonable period. The country is provided with a spectacle of a helpless majority, held firmly in control by a coterie of leaders in the House and one strong man in the Senate.

"The time may come when absolute free trade will be beneficial to the whole phople, but until our country becomes as thickly populated as are the European countries I believe some tariff schedules for other than revenue purposes are necessary.

Can't Trust Republicans.

"There is practically no difference of opinion between the great parties of the wisdom of a revision that will revise downward, and that will mean a more equitable division of the fruits of labor, but in the light of past experience I fear we cannot trust our Republican friends to make these changes.

"Onslaughts on the trusts, inaugurated and prosecuted by the present national administration, have been spectacular in the extreme, but their concrete results are hard to discover. There can be no effective control until the tariff question, which is the basis and root of the whole trust system, is solved.

Opposes Ownership.

"The question of Federal control of railroads doing an interstate business naturally suggests the question of the Federal ownership of railways. It does not now appear that any man large in the public view advocates Government ownership of railways, but when this question a year or more ago looked as though it might be a paramount issue before the people, I took strong ground in opposition to the idea.

"The trend toward federalism has been so marked in the past few months that I am more than ever convinced of the correctness of the position I then assumed. And I am more firmly than ever assured that the question will never become a national issue in this country. Strict Government regulation of interstate commerce will, I believe, solve the question to the satisfaction of the American people."

107; CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

NEW YORK, May 22.—Rosie Aronwald, an inmate of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob, a Jewish charitable institution, celebrated her 107th birthday yesterday.

A luncheon was attended by all the old men in the institution, led by Mendel Diamondstein, who is 106 years old, and the women, among whom Esther Davis is a leader by reason of her 112 years.

Mrs. Aronwald reads without the aid of glasses, and has all her faculties. Her disposition is sweet unless someone speaks of her as old. Then she flies into a temper.

She was born in Warsaw and lived there until 30 years ago. She boasts that she saw Napoleon in Warsaw.

ELKINS WEDDING IN ITALY

LONDON, May 22.—A Rome dispatch in this morning's Standard reads:

"The marriage of the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins appears at last to be definitely settled. One of the aides-de-camp of the Duke has just come back from America, where he was on a special mission to arrange some details with the Elkins family.

"It seems that one point still under discussion is whether the marriage shall take place in America or in Italy. It is believed that, in view of the position of the bride and the bridegroom, the customary course will be departed from, and the marriage will take place in Italy, where it would also have greater eclat, owing to the presence of the royal family and the court."

SECTION MEN'S WAGES SLASHED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 22.—A general cut in wages of all section men and unskilled laborers has been ordered by the railroads extending west from Chicago. Ten thousand men are affected.

This is the first wage reduction made by the Western roads, and is considered in some quarters as the first step in a general wage cut which is declared to be inevitable unless revenues can be increased by an advance in freight rates.

The reduction in the case of most section men is from $1.35 a day for ten hours to $1.25. Some extra gangs have been paid $1.45 a day, and they have been reduced to $1.35.
